"Pork" Evil in Congress Seen as Menace To the Nation by "Searchlight" Editor

LYNN HAINES, IN INTERVIEW WITH POST-DISPATCH MAN, GIVES STRIKING FACTS TO SHOW HOW GAME OF GRAB HAS BECOME MAIN BUSINESS OF BOTH PARTIES IN NATIONAL LEGISLATURE.

Committees on Claims Growing Out of the American Revolution and on Transportation to Atlantic Seaboard, Each With a Corps of Clerks, but Each Equally Useless, Cited as Evidence of Calloused Conscience of Lawmaking Body.

Each Party Equally Offensive in This Important Matter, Asserts This Investigator, Who Says That It Is of More Concern to the Country's Welfare to Smash Big Politics Than Big Business—How "Perquisite" Privileges Are Abused.

By Paul Y. Anderson.

"SMASH Big Politics before you try to smash Big Business. Big Politics is the shield and buckler which stands between Big Business and the voters. Congress has become a political corporation, whose chief business is 'pork' and patronage and whose chief aim is profit."

So declared Lynn Haines, Nemesis of derelict Congressmen and Senators, who directs The Searchlight, his magazine at Washington, upon Democrat and Republican alike. He was attending the conference of the Committee of Forty-eight here last week, and he talked to a Post-Dispatch reporter of politics as he sees it played at the national capital.

Haines previously, in an address before the conference, had spoken wittily on governmental affairs, the recording and editorial discussion of which is his daily work. He had said, among other things, that at least 400 of the present 435 Congressmen are "utterly incompetent, and simply constitute an unnecessary expense to the country."

The writer found, in interrogating Haines, that the latter had so many examples of waste, inefficiency and pork that he didn't know which one to give first. Some of them would be ludicrous if they were not so expensive to the taxpayers. But, first, it might be well to tell something about Haines, and where he gets the right to speak.

He originally was a country newspaper editor in Minnesota, and later became correspondent for several papers at the Legislature of that State. While there he became so impressed by the prevalence of petty graft, corrupt legislative practices and legislative incompetence, that, partly for his own enlightenment and diversion, he began compiling an actual statistical review of the records of certain legislators.

How Haines Became Nemesis of Dilatory Legislators.

Certain country taxpayers learned of it, and, being entirely satisfied with their own Representative, asked Haines for a report on him. He gave it. They went home with the report and a determination to change the Representative. The latter was deeply intrenched, politically. So far as the approaching campaign for reelection was concerned, he was "sitting pretty," as they say in some centers of culture. But they beat him—with Haines' report.

It worked so well on the first subject that it was decided to try it on the others, and accordingly the Minnesota Citizens' League was formed for the purpose. Haines dug into the records like a groundhog going to cover. Records and documents flew in his wake. The result at the next election was the defeat of 50 legislators, the only opposition candidate to weather the storm being that from the segregated district of Minneapolis.

"Right there I decided," said Haines, "that the people can be depended on if they can get the facts. I still believe that. I am certain that if the mass of the voters had any idea of what is going on in their Government they would, at the first election, kick the whole rotten mess higher than a kite."

He determined, therefore, to give Congress a dose of his remedy, and he proceeded to Washington, where he has been since 1911, writing books, acting as secretary of the National Voters' League, a national organization corresponding to the Minnesota league, and, more recently, editing The Searchlight, which was started as the league's organ, but has become an independent publication.

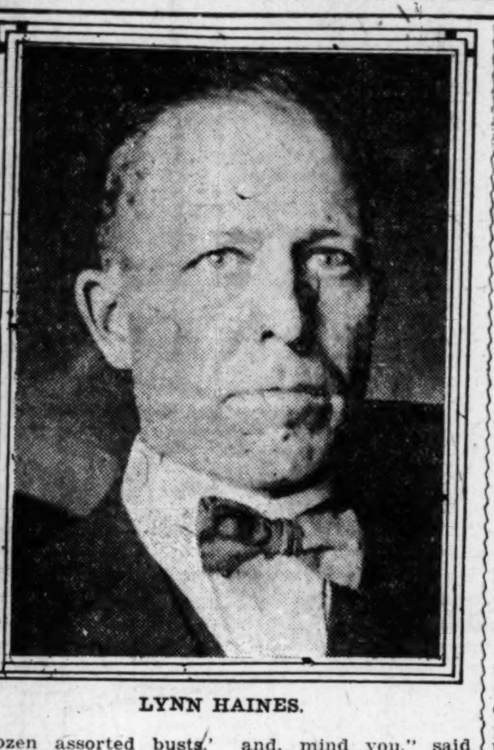
Good Vaudeville to Go Over Congressmen's Expense Accounts.

Whatever criticism may be made of Haines—and some people think his ideas are somewhat in advance of the times—he is rarely accused of partisanship. Republican and Democratic legislators dislike him with equal heartiness.

Can you blame them? This is the way he talks about them: "In the stationery account of the House, paid out of the contingent fund, we find items as varied and entertaining as the best vaudeville. I never look over these mute statistics of political finance without feeling that after them should be inserted the parenthetical interjection, 'laughter,' which appears in the undelivered speeches which the Congressmen have printed in the Congressional Record."

He explained that each Congressman has a "stationery account" of $125 a session. He can take the cash, or he can take its equivalent in goods from the stationery booth in the Capitol. Most of them take the cash, but some take it out in "stationery." "Stationery," in a congressional sense, covers a multitude of things. Manicure sets, for instance, and even egg crates are within its purview.

"In the annual report of the clerk of the House of Representatives for 1917," elucidates the hawk-eyed Haines, "we find that 744 decks of playing cards were handled under stationery accounts, and paid for by the dear people. So far, I have never seen a poker game in progress in the House chamber while that body was in session, but the number of cards would indicate that games were going on somewhere else most of the time. It has occurred to me that some members might have chosen that scientific and statesmanlike method of determining how they would split the pork in appropriation bills.



LYNN HAINES.

"The 'boudoir budget' of the stationery account is interesting. Here, along with manicure instruments, we find such toilet tools as a Parisian ivory box, a hair receiver, 'one fan' and 'one dozen assorted busts.' and, mind you," said Haines, "there was only one woman member in Congress.

Most of Them Take Cash, Use Committee Stationery.

"The members who take cash on their stationery accounts, and that is about 90 per cent of them, do not have to buy their own paper and envelopes. Not at all. They simply use the stationery of the committees of which they are members, of which there always is a plentiful free supply. How many of your readers would remember ever getting a letter from a Congressman that was written on any stationery except that of his committee? Very few, I dare say.

"Of course, these are petty items, and, as you pay the bills, you are entitled to laugh—or swear.

"But there are things that cannot be laughed at—indeed, they are a scandal to the Government of a civilized country. One of the worst is the army of unnecessary clerks who are regularly on the payroll, attached to standing committees—committees many of which have not met for years. The sole work of these clerks is attending to the political business of the committee chairmen."

He recalled the instance of the Senate Committee on Transportation Routes to the Seaboard, which has not had a meeting in 40 years, and yet has a regularly employed force of three clerks. Incidentally, Haines remembered, Senator McCumber of North Dakota is not now the chairman of this committee, as he stated in his speech before the conference, printed in Thursday's Post-Dispatch, having been recently succeeded by Senator Fletcher of Florida. It was Senator McCumber, however, who, during his last campaign, asked, and got, an extra clerk for the committee, Haines said.

How Committees Are Uselessly Multiplied to Care for Clerks.

"One time-honored practice is the appointment of committees on certain phases of general subjects, when the entire subjects are handled solely by one active committee. For instance, the Senate Committee on Interstate Commerce handles all matters remotely connected with transportation. Yet we find standing committees—with clerks, always with clerks—on 'Pacific Railroads,' 'Transportation and Sale of Meat Products,' and, when all other synonyms are exhausted, one on just plain 'Railroads,' to say nothing of that grand old Committee on Transportation Routes to the Seaboard.'

"Lo, even the poor Indian is the peg on which to hang additional standing committees—and clerks—so we have the Senate committees 'On Indian Affairs,' 'To Investigate Trespasses Upon Indian Lands,' 'On Indian Depredations' and 'On the Five Civilized Tribes of Indians.' How many members of that committee, do you suppose, know which five tribes are civilized, and how much greater, do you think, is the cost to the taxpayers of maintaining the clerical force than would be the paying of the damage from Indian depredations?

"One other standing committee of the Senate may interest you. It is that upon 'Revolutionary Claims,' whose function it is to pass upon claims arising from the Revolutionary War. Just imagine the tremendous burden of passing upon claims arising from the Revolutionary War!"

Haines paused to let the reporter's pencil catch up. His speech is deliberate, but constantly to the point.

"What do the clerks do?" he repeated, after a question. "They have plenty to do. It is a fact not generally known in this great and sovereign republic that many Congressmen keep card indexes of all the voters in their districts. They have you labeled. They know what kind of letters to write to you. They know whether to send you garden seeds or geological surveys. A chiropodist wouldn't have much use for reports on Alaskan railroads, or much esteem for the Congressman who sent them to him, as was the case of the city constituent who wrote to his Congressman to learn 'how in the hell you expect me to grow cantaloupes on a fire escape.'

"All these things have to be looked after. Thousands of letters—political letters—have to be written. Inquiries concerning constituents' business and private affairs must be looked up and answered. It is a sad and solemn fact that a Congressman who ignored these irrelevant matters and attended strictly to his legislative duties wouldn't last long enough to get one of his ideas on the statute books before he would be beaten by a more 'practical' man. Thus, the good men who do get into Congress are either debauched by the system or weeded out in a short time.

"Such errands as these are what make up the life of your Congressmen at Washington. That is their business there. That is the atmosphere. Every man—and his committee clerks—is busy at that, if he is busy at all. It isn't any wonder that we get the kind of half-baked legislation that we do, and it's getting worse.

"It doesn't make any difference which party is in power. They are absolutely agreed on that question. Did you ever see a campaign on the issue of abolishing or continuing patronage and pork, No, it is simply a contest to decide who is to control the patronage and pork. The only competition is over who gets it—not over whether it stops or goes on.

"I have only mentioned the standing committee clerks. That doesn't touch the 'patronage parade' of clerks in departmental bureaus under Cabinet officers. Here we see alarmingly emphasized the evils of the present system. A bureau head has to depend on Congress for his appropriation. When a Congressman wants a job in a bureau for one of his proteges, does he get it? You bet your sweet life he does, or that Congressman votes to cut down that bureau's appropriation."

How Congressmen Force Bureaus to Employ Useless Clerks.

Haines related an incident with which he said he was acquainted, concerning the efforts of a bureau head to promote efficiency in his department. He assigned a certain task to each of three extra girl clerks. The fastest completed it in an hour and a half, with 1 per cent of errors. The slowest required two hours and had 3 per cent errors. The same job was given to one of the oldest women clerks in the department, and she finished it in 11 hours and made 39 per cent errors. She was demoted from $1200 to $900 a year.

Immediately this bureau chief was summoned before the Cabinet member who was his superior, and shown letters from another Cabinet member, three Senators, several Congressmen and a high church dignitary, demanding the clerk's reinstatement. The bureau head said if she was reinstated he would resign, and, incidentally, would make public the letters and the result of the test. He stayed on. This was in the Cabinet of President Roosevelt, Haines said.

"But, remember, the average bureau chief would have bowed to the will of his superior, the solicitous gentlemen would have been gratified, and the merry little game of political patronage would have proceeded without interruption," said Haines.

Haines asserted that it is a house rule of many Washington business concerns not to employ any clerk who has been in Government service more than a year, the theory being that they have become so accustomed to loafing on the job as to unfit them for real work. He told how one new bureau head decided to conduct his office so efficiently as to save enough money out of his appropriation in a few years to institute a needed change of methods. A few days before the end of the fiscal year the chief clerk approached him much worried.

"We've got a lot of our appropriation left over," he said, "and we'll have to get rid of it in the next few days." He suggested junking all the typewriters and buying new ones, and getting new glass tops for all the desks. "If we don't spend it, Congress will reduce our appropriation."

How Congress Penalized an Economical Bureau Head.

The bureau head explained his plan, and later explained it in his report. No use, Haines said. Congress said he hadn't used all the money he had the last time, and the appropriation was reduced in the name of "economy."

"If he had piled up a big deficit, the appropriation would have been increased," said Haines. "That's the principle on which the whole system works—the more you spend, the more you get. That was not so painful before the war, when governmental expenditures amounted to so little, comparatively, that the average man didn't know when he paid his part, but now, with the country staggering under so enormous a burden of debt that hardly anybody realizes how big it is, this expensive Washington vaudeville hurts.

Among the things which Haines thinks are necessary to remedy the condition are:

A responsible executive budget system; publicity on all phases of legislation, with no secret sessions; reduction of the number of committees; compulsion of committees to report back on bills in a reasonable time; abolition of patronage; abolition of the seniority, or "senility," system; abolition of the printing of unspoken speeches in the Record; abolition of the mileage graft and all other petty perquisites, "so that Congressmen will not have to depend on tips."

He favors restriction of the franking privilege, and a recording of special shipments, "so that when a Congressman franks his laundry or a cow, the people who pay the bill will know about it." The work of Congress, he says, should be confined to things national in scope, instead of being 95 per cent local matters. Election of members on the basis of proportional representation, and reduction of the number of them, is desirable, he says.

"This isn't radicalism," he said. "It simply would be establishing in Washington such ordinary business methods, as every successful business house in the country has had for years."

"You will never smash Big Business and establish the rights of the people until you have the tools," he said. "The only possible instrument by which this may be accomplished is an honest, able and efficiently organized Congress. Smash Big Politics, and the rest will be easy."

"The American Army Won the War," Says Pershing in His Official Report

FRENCH MORALE NEAR COLLAPSE DURING GERMAN DRIVE

Pershing Tells How and Why He Chose Argonne Sector

A FURTHER conference at Marshal Foch's headquarters was held on Sept. 2, at which Gen. Petain was present. After discussion, the question of employing the American army as a unit was conceded. All the allied armies were to be employed in a converging action. The British armies, supported by the left of the French armies, were to pursue the attack in the direction of Cambrai; the center of the French armies west of Reims, would continue the actions already begun, to drive the enemy beyond the Aisne; and the American army, supported by the right of the French armies, would direct its attack on Sedan and Mezieres. It should be recorded that although this general offensive was fully outlined at the conference, no one expressed the opinion that the final victory could be won in 1918. In fact, it was believed by the French high command that the Meuse-Argonne attack could not be pushed much beyond Montfaucon before the arrival of winter would force a cessation of operations. The choice between the two sectors, that east of the Aisne, including the Argonne forest, or the Champagne sector, was left to me. In my opinion, no other Allied troops had the morale or the offensive spirit to overcome successfully the difficulties to be met in the Meuse-Argonne sector.—GEN. PERSHING.

By the Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 13.

GEN. PERSHING, in his special report to Secretary Baker, on the operations of the American army in France, says in effect, although not in terms, that the American army won the war.

"It was this spirit of determination animating every American soldier," says Gen. Pershing, referring to the Meuse-Argonne battle, "that made it impossible for the enemy to maintain the struggle until 1919."

"Twenty-two American and four French divisions," says Gen. Pershing, "had engaged and decisively beaten 47 German divisions, representing 25 per cent of the enemy's entire divisional strength on the Western front. Of the enemy divisions, 20 had been drawn from the French front and one from the British front. Of the 22 American divisions, 12 had at various times during this period (Sept. 26 to Nov. 11, 1918), been engaged on other fronts than our own. The First Army had suffered a loss of about 117,000 in killed and wounded; it had captured 26,000 prisoners, 847 cannon, 3000 machine guns and large quantities of material."

With the American army holding the heights dominating Sedan, the report said, and the German line of communications definitely sundered, "recognizing that nothing but cessation of hostilities could save his armies from complete disaster, he appealed for an immediate armistice (Nov. 6)."

Gen. Pershing's report follows in detail the growth of the American overseas forces from the date of his departure with a small staff, May 28, 1917, until it numbered more than 2,000,000 men. Every step of organization, every conference with the allied Generals and the important decisions reached are recorded.

The document, comprising a pamphlet of about 100 pages, or 35,000 words, is divided into three sections: "Period of Organization," "Operations" and "Supply Co-ordinations and Administration."

Military Situation When U. S. Entered the War Described.

Summarizing the military situation which existed in the spring of 1917, when the United States aligned itself with the allies, Gen. Pershing said:

"In the five months ending June 30, 1917, German submarines had accomplished the destruction of more than 3,250,000 tons of allied shipping. During three years Germany had seen practically all her offensives except Verdun crowned with success. Her battle lines were held on foreign soil and she had withstood every attack since the Marne. The German general staff could foresee now the complete elimination of Russia, the possibility of defeating Italy before the end of the year and, finally, the campaign of 1918 against the French and British on the Western front which might terminate the war.

"Financial problems of the allies were difficult, supplies were becoming exhausted and their armies had suffered tremendous losses. Discouragement existed not only among the civil population but throughout the armies as well."

Within one month of his arrival, Gen. Pershing recommended definitely that 1,000,000 men should be in France before May, 1918, it being evident that "a force of 1,000,000 is the smallest unit which in modern war will be a complete, well-balanced and independent fighting organization." Plans for the future, the recommendation added, "should be based on three times this force."

The General was equally specific in choosing the ground for American operations. He says:

"Our mission was offensive and it was essential to make plans for striking the enemy where a definite military decision could be gained. While the allied armies had endeavored to maintain the offensive, the British, in order to guard the channel ports, were committed to operations in Flanders and the French to the portion of the front protecting Paris. Both lacked troops to operate elsewhere on a large scale.

Why Metz Was Chosen as Field for American Operations.

"To the east the great fortified district east of Verdun and around Metz menaced Central France, protected the most exposed portion of the German line of communications, that between Metz and Sedan, and covered the Briey iron region, from which the enemy obtained the greater part of the iron required for munitions and material. The coal fields east of Metz were also covered by these same defenses. A deep advance east of Metz, or the capture of the Briey region, by threatening the invasion of rich German territory in the Moselle Valley and the Saar Basin, thus curtailing her supply of coal or iron, would have a decisive effect in forcing a withdrawal of German troops from Northern France. The military and economic situation of the enemy, therefore, indicated Lorraine as the field promising the most fruitful results for the employment of our armies."

American arms drew first blood, the report shows, at Passchendaele Ridge, Nov. 6-10, 1917, when the Eleventh Engineers joined the British in a successful attack which was part of a general operation designed "to hinder the German conquest of Russia and to prevent, if possible, an attack on Italy, or in the Near East."

Soon afterward, however, came the collapse of Russia and the Italian debacle at Caporetto, with the result that the enemy's legions began to gather thickly in France. Allied commanders viewed the situation with frank apprehension, Gen. Pershing's report indicates, and the pressure for an accelerated movement of American divisions was felt from all sides. At the same time came the suggestion that American units be brigaded with French and British in order that no time be wasted in training. In this connection, the General reports:

"My conclusion was that, although the morale of the German people and of the armies was better than it had been for two years, only an untoward combination of circumstances could give the enemy a decisive victory before American support as recommended could be made effective, provided the allies secured unity of action. However, a situation might arise which would necessitate the temporary use of all American troops in the units of our allies for the defensive, but nothing in the situation justified the relinquishment of our firm purpose to form our own army under our own flag.

"While the Germans were practicing for open warfare and concentrating their most aggressive personnel in shock divisions, the training of the allies was still limited to trench warfare. As our troops were being trained for open warfare, there was every reason why we could not allow them to be scattered among our allies, even by divisions, much less as replacements, except by pressure of sheer necessity. Any sort of permanent amalgamation would irrevocably commit America's fortunes to the hands of the allies. Moreover, it was obvious that the lack of homogeneity would render these mixed divisions difficult to maneuver and almost certain to break up under stress of defeat, with the consequent mutual recrimination. Again, there was no doubt that the realization by the German people that independent American divisions, corps or armies were in the field with determined purpose would be a severe blow to German morale and prestige."

Lent Combat Divisions Already There to Stop the Germans.

Gen. Pershing had refused utterly to drop his plan for a single American army, acting under its own flag, but consented, because of the existing emergency, to lend the combat divisions at hand to help stem the German offensive of 1918, which, the Allied War Council foresaw, "may very quickly place the allied armies in a serious situation."

The German rush developed as expected, the report shows, but the enemy's success was far greater than had been feared. At Amiens, the British were driven in on a 40-kilometer front; between the Oise and Berry-au-Bac, the French lost 50 kilometers on a 35-kilometer front in four days. And immediately the Germans utilized the Marne "as a defensive flank and the advance was directed toward Paris."

"The gravity of the situation," the report says, "led to the famous orders for holding up all supply and troop shipments except "infantry and machine-gun units." Gen. Foch, who was now made Generalissimo, estimated that 100 American divisions would be necessary for allied victory.

Gen. Pershing at this time was recommending that his troops be used to smash the Marne pocket in which the Germans had thrust themselves. He says:

"The Marne salient was inherently weak and offered an opportunity for a counter-offensive that was obvious. If successful, such an operation would afford immediate relief to the allied defense, would remove the threat against Paris and free the Paris-Nancy railroad. But, more important than all else, it would restore the morale of the allies and remove the profound depression and fear then existing. Up to this time our units had been put in here and there at critical points as emergency troops to stop the terrific German advance. In every trial, whether on the defensive or offensive, they had proved themselves equal to any troops in Europe. As early as June 23 and again on July 10 at Bombon, I had very strongly urged that our best divisions be concentrated under American command if possible, for use as a striking force against the Marne salient. Although the prevailing view among the allies was that American units were suitable only for the defensive, and that at all events they could be used to better advantage under allied command, the suggestion was accepted in principle, and my estimate of their offensive fighting qualities was soon put to the test."

The American forces found glory in the action which was undertaken. At Chateau-Thierry, when the Germans first advanced, the Third Division commander reported:

"Although the rush of the German troops overwhelmed some of the front-line positions, causing the infantry and machine-gun companies to suffer, in some cases a 50 per cent loss, no German soldier crossed the road from Fossoy to Crezancy, except as a prisoner of war, and by noon of the following day (July 16) there were no Germans in the foreground of the Third Division sector except the dead."

"No Germans Left in Front of Third Division But the Dead"

"On this occasion," Gen. Pershing added, "a single regiment of the Third Division wrote one of the most brilliant pages in our military annals. It prevented the crossing at certain points on its front, while on either flank the Germans who had gained a footing pressed forward. Our men, firing in three directions, met the German attacks with counter attacks at critical points and succeeded in throwing two German divisions into complete confusion, capturing 600 prisoners. * * *

"Due to the magnificent dash and power displayed here and on the field of Soissons by our First and Second Divisions, the tide of the war was definitely turned in favor of the allies. * * *

"The force of American arms had been brought to bear in time to enable the last offensive of the enemy to be crushed."

Organization of the First American Army and preparations for its maiden effort—the elimination of the St. Mihiel salient, was now taken up. Again it was proposed that American troops reinforce the French for the operation, but Pershing again objected. He explains:

"The plan suggested for the American participation in these operations was not acceptable to me because it would require the immediate separation of the recently formed First American Army into several groups, mainly to assist French armies. This was directly contrary to the principle of forming a distinct American army, for which my contention had been insistent. An enormous amount of preparation had already been made in construction of roads, railroads, regulating stations and other installations looking to the use and supply of our armies on a particular front. The inherent disinclination of our troops to serve under allied commanders would have grown and American morale would have suffered. My position was stated quite clearly that the strategical employment of the First Army as a unit would be undertaken where desired, but its disruption to carry out these proposals would not be entertained.

How Armies Were Disposed For Attack on Germans.

"A further conference at Marshal Foch's headquarters was held on Sept. 2, at which Gen. Petain was present. After discussion the question of employing the American army as a unit was conceded. All the allied armies were to be employed in a converging action. The British armies, supported by the left of the French armies, were to pursue the attack in the direction of Cambrai; the center of the French armies, west of Rheims, would continue the actions already begun, to drive the enemy beyond the Aisne; and the American army, supported by the right of the French armies, would direct its attack on Sedan and Mezieres.

"It should be recorded that although this general offensive was fully outlined at the conference, no one present expressed the opinion that the final victory could be won in 1918. In fact, it was believed by the French high command that the Meuse-Argonne attack could not be pushed much beyond Montfaucon before the arrival of winter would force a cessation of operations.

"The choice between the two sectors, that east of the Aisne, including the Argonne Forest, or the Champagne sector, was left to me. In my opinion, no other allied troops had the morale or the offensive spirit to overcome successfully the difficulties to be met in the Meuse-Argonne sector and our plans and installations had been prepared for an expansion of operations in that direction.

"The salient had been held by the Germans since September, 1914. It covered the most sensitive section of the enemy's position on the western front, namely, the Mezieres-Sedan-Metz railroad and the Briey iron basin; it threatened the entire region between Verdun and Nancy, and interrupted the main rail line from Paris to the east. Its primary strength lay in the natural defensive features of the terrain itself. The western face of the salient extended along the rugged, heavily wooded eastern heights of the Meuse, the southern face followed the Meuse for eight kilometers to the east and then crossed the plain of the Woevre, including within the German lines the detached heights of Loupmont and Montsec, which dominated the plain and afforded the enemy unusual facilities for observation. The enemy had reinforced the positions by every artificial means during a period of four years."

16,000 Prisoners, 443 Guns Taken in St. Mihiel Salient

"The operation was carried out with entire precision," the General continues. "The rapidity of our advance overwhelmed the enemy, who * * * apparently had started to withdraw some of his elements from the tip of the salient. We captured 16,000 prisoners, 443 guns and large stores.

"The material results of the victory achieved were very important. An American army was an

Importance of Southern Ports.

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch.

The editorial on "Our Southern Ports" was timely and to the point. The fight is now on to use our influence and let the country develop along natural trade lines, and it is to be hoped the Post-Dispatch, with its vast interstate circulation, will have more to say. The gulf and South Atlantic ports have not only been held back in a commercial way, but have been ignored in the Government's naval policy. There is a bill now pending in Congress to give them a knockout blow, and it is to be hoped that the business organizations and press of the Mississippi Valley territory, the heart of the nation, will make a protest.

It will be remembered that the naval board of experts recommended the construction of four drydocks on the Atlantic coast capable of handling the biggest ships of war. Three of these big drydocks have been completed, at Portsmouth, Boston and Philadelphia, and are now in use. The Government already had one at New York. Charleston, S. C., the nearest natural deep-water port to the straits of Florida, windward passage and Mona passage—the channels that lead into the gulf and Caribbean Sea, was one of the four places named for one of the new docks, and the appropriation was made by Congress. The pending bill is to repeal this appropriation, and if it passes, there will be no place of repair for a battleship along the more than 2000 miles of coast of the South Atlantic and gulf.

The sectional unfairness of this step and its great disadvantage to the navy is clear. The disabled battleship in these vast Southern waters will have no place of refuge, but must pass the turbulent, always rough seas around Cape Hatteras, the graveyard of the ocean, and seek help in the extreme northeast part of the country. It is a poor way to safeguard the Panama Canal. The gulf and South Atlantic ports made a strong fight for battleship drydocks and partly won out, but may yet be doomed to bitter disappointment and the whole show confined to the Atlantic Northeast.

The gulf and South Atlantic ports are the great fuel oil depots of the country and also ship coal, iron and timber products.

I am a Republican from Iowa, but now make my home in Texas, and sincerely trust that the delegation in Congress from my old State will see the situation in the proper light and give the Southern ports a square deal. We want the battleship drydock at Charleston and must also continue the effort for one on the gulf.

Profiteering Somewhere.

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch.

Mr. James H. Bowden says I am wrong when I speak of the produce men as profiteers. He may be right—I do not claim to be infallible. My opinions for what they are worth are based upon experience, observation and what I believe to be reliable information.

Not very long ago I had occasion to do some traveling through Southwest Missouri, Kansas, Oklahoma and Arkansas. I had the pleasure of conversing with many farmers, poultry raisers and fruit growers. In every locality their story was the same. If the produce men as a class are the honest and well meaning individuals that you say they are, the men that I met and talked to either did not know their friends when they met them, or they have been doing business with the wrong class of produce men. St. Louis is surrounded by a farming community sufficient in scope and rich enough in production to supply her people with an abundance of fruit and other products at prices within reach of the poorest if there was not some agency standing between the produce and the consumer.

I don't wish to convey the impression that all the farm stuff is bought by the produce man and left to rot where it grows, but I do say that too much of it is. During the past summer and fall, farmers on several occasions have refused to sell me fruit and vegetables—they have been sold to the produce men in St. Louis, so the farmer said. Be that as it may, whether the foodstuff after it reaches the market is dumped into the river or left to decay in the fields is one and the same thing to the consumer.

No one is making a fight on any business large or small so long as it remains fair and recognizes the square deal; it is the abuse of power that hurts. Cold storage properly handled, would be one of our greatest blessings; but when manipulated to the exclusive interest of the packer and middlemen, and to the disadvantage of everybody else, it is taking liberties that should and will be curbed.

The public needs the help of the commission or middle man. It is willing that he be paid well for time consumed and the use of money invested, and if he is ever subjected to Federal or State control, or eliminated entirely, it will be because he has abused his power as a distributor and not because he fought and toiled 12 to 16 hours a day only to die poor but honest in the service of the [illegible] but ungrateful people.

PROGRESS TOWARDS COMPROMISE.

News that an agreement had been reached by Lloyd George and Clemenceau at the London conference to accept reasonable reservations to the peace treaty, on the part of the United States, gives fresh impetus to the movement by men of all parties for a compromise which will assure the ratification of the treaty in a form acceptable to the other Powers.

It is understood that the allies will notify our Government of their willingness to accept reservations in order to facilitate action which will bring America into participation with them in carrying out the treaty.

It is as much to the interest of the American people that our Government participate in future conferences and co-operate in the work of carrying out the provisions of the peace treaty as it is to the interest of Europe. Our benefits from participation will be very great. Since the defeat of ratification in the Senate there has come to a majority of Americans of all parties a clear realization of these benefits and an acute sense of the menace to mankind and the loss to America should we finally fail to join with other nations in the effort to work out the plan to assure permanent peace on a basis of justice and liberty. We believe that the American people, in view of the existing chaos, realize as never before the necessity of establishing the League of Nations on a working basis and the necessity of America's participation in order to assure this end.

The compromise movement is further strengthened by the first definite offer of concession to the reservation sentiment by the administration. In his speech to the Southern Society of New York Senator Hitchcock, the administration's Senate leader, said that "the friends of the treaty in the Senate are willing to subscribe to reasonable reservations." The acceptable reservations he outlined were the following:

That the domestic affairs of the United States are never to be taken under jurisdiction of the League.

That the Monroe Doctrine is to be unaffected by the provisions of the League.

That if the United States is engaged in a dispute with any nation having self-governing colonies, dominions or parts, each with a vote, all of those votes are to be disqualified just as the vote of the United States is to be disqualified.

That the powers of Congress to declare war remain unimpaired.

That the League has no control over the American army and navy.

That the United States, if it should desire to withdraw from the League, is to be the sole judge of whether it has performed its obligations so as to give it the right to withdraw.

These embrace practically all the points that are urged as necessary to the so-called Americanization of the treaty. They reserve the constitutional limitations on war, the equality of voting power in the League and the freedom of American action on purely American questions and on the right of withdrawal. They offer a sound basis of compromise for those on both sides of the Senate who want the treaty ratified in some form. Their votes are sufficient to ratify it.

The Lodge program of destruction is a failure. It is without a majority in the Senate. The treaty, to be saved, should work on the lines of construction. The success of constructive work of this kind is clearly indicated in this country and in Europe.

The mass meeting of St. Louisans, irrespective of party affiliations, called for next Thursday night, will be a timely initiation of the popular movement for compromise. It should be attended by friends of the peace treaty of all shades of opinion. Its resolutions will commit those who indorse them only to a demand that the treaty be ratified in a form which will assure acquiescence on the part of other signatory Powers. This demand, voiced by citizens throughout the country, would be the decisive factor in the establishing of peace, with its unmeasured benefits.

"Let us have peace."

A HERO IN THE COTTON FIELDS.

They have a champion cotton picker down in Oklahoma, who, if he chose, could wear a Croix de Guerre and a Distinguished Service Medal on his hickory shirt. A year ago today Sergt. Kenton was breaking up machine-gun nests and marching in German prisoners in droves. Now he is picking cotton and he is putting all his energy and skill into his job in Oklahoma, just as he put all his energy and skill into his job in the Argonne.

In many respects, it may be admitted, the two jobs are not comparable, but is not the spirit in both instances pretty much the same? A year ago the supreme need of the day was the breaking up of German machine-gun nests. The supreme need of today is cotton picking. There may be nothing heroic about the prosaic work of the cotton fields, but Sergt. Kenton is doing that work just as admirably as he did his work in the cruel circumstances of war. The champion soldier is a champion civilian.

That is what the world wants now—champion workers. And it may be safely ventured that the vast majority of the American youths who, a year ago, were doing their best in France, are now doing their best here. They are picking cotton. They can't all be champions, just as they could not all win the Distinguished Service Medal over there, ~~but~~ in the full measure of their capacity and opportunity, they are making good now as they made good then.

MILITARISM AND MILITARY TRAINING.

In a speech to the Committee of 48 opposing universal military training, Capt. George H. Mallon of Indianapolis made no distinction between military training and militarism. He apparently regards the two as identical. Truly enough, he condemns militarism as responsible for the world war, but he overlooks the fact that in Europe, where compulsory military service was required in practically all the nations, the guilty responsibility for the war has been justly fixed on Germany. We do not imagine that Capt. Mallon himself thinks that France or Belgium or Italy or Russia wanted war in 1914, although militarism, according to Capt. Mallon's definition, prevailed in those nations. Indeed, Austria, for all that she spoke the first word, is pretty generally acquitted of wanting war.

Manifestly, then, there are different kinds of militarism, to retain Capt. Mallon's term. And the war-mad militarism of Germany was something more than an elaborate system of military training. There are numerous reasons why Germany was bent on war in 1914, but they can be fairly well summed up in the statement that Germany was not living in the twentieth century. The philosophy of the Imperial German Government, as everyone knows now, was the philosophy of feudal times, even as its pomp and ceremony, its ridiculous princelings, its stilted and bizarre obeisances were of a vanished age. And back of it all was its blood-and-iron creed, solemnly preached and profoundly believed, that war was a noble enterprise and a national get-rich-quick project befitting the dignity of divine-right rulers.

Now, the danger which Capt. Mallon forecasts in a great available military force, such as would result from universal military training in the United States, and the disposition of our junker element to try out such a force by provoking a war, is not to be dismissed as wholly imaginary. We have a junker element, but it is improbable that it could manufacture a war. The genius of our institutions is so antagonistic to war, the purpose of the American people so wholly for peace, that the risk of being misled into ruthless conquest by our junkers is slight. But there is nothing speculative about the vital costs of a policy of nontraining. We have tried it. We know there was a dreadful loss of life on Europe's battlefields because of that policy. We know, too, there was a large loss of life at home among the untrained young men suddenly taken from civilian life to the rigors of camp life. What billions of money our policy of nontraining cost us we do not know.

Which shall we choose—to train all our young men and thereby run the risk of a junker element decoying us into a betrayal of our traditions; or to forget the lessons of war, resume our former folly, let our young men come up into life without training or instruction and die in unnecessary thousands as they have just died?

It is not an alternative. Fairness to our young men and to their parents argues unanswerably for a rational plan of compulsory universal military training. If we are to have an army it is better to have a citizens' army ready for call in case of war than a regular army.

ALASKA'S WOOD PULP WEALTH.

The Post-Dispatch has called attention to the importance of making available the wood pulp resources of Alaska. According to Supervisor Flory of the Alaskan Forest Service, there is enough pulp timber in the Territory to furnish half the news print paper used in the United States for an indefinite period, and, with scientific reforestation, this source of pulp can be made everlasting.

The latest report of the Secretary of the Interior shows that the two great national forests in Alaska comprise a total of 20,867,569 acres. Possession and control of this source of wood pulp means control of the basic material that newspapers must have if they are to exist. For this reason it is manifest that this national wealth should not fall into the hands of private individuals or corporations who might control the product in their own interest. The power to discriminate between newspapers in the supply of news print paper is the power to control their policies. A newspaper that hoped to survive or prosper would be compelled to govern itself so as not to fall under the displeasure of a news print monopoly.

For these reasons it is imperative that the Government should retain the control of this extremely valuable source of news print paper and make such regulations, in the public interest, that profiteering or monopoly should be impossible.

In order to assure this result, the users of wood pulp will have to make their influence felt. The Governor of Alaska "does not believe in national forests" and the pulp manufacturers are already bringing pressure to bear to make it possible for them to control these forests in their own interest. With this final source of wood pulp monopolized, buyers of pulp will be at the mercy of the owners and manufacturers. No time must be lost in taking whatever steps may be necessary to prevent this, if the press is to survive as a branch of public service.

MILLENNIAL DAWN.

COME, let us meet the heavenly hosts descending!
From where, afar, the Golden City gleams!
An era closes, ancient errors ending,
And Justice near the goal of all her dreams.

They, leaning earthward, poised, with joy are singing—
Martyrs and heroes, saints and souls of worth—
A song of triumph for the new day winging
Its way to bless the suffering sons of earth.

And here, Oh here, on every side awaking,
With hands uplifted, and with hearts aflame,
We, from the dead past freed, new vows are making,
With them a glad new earth and heaven to frame.

With them to sing, to watch, to work that never Shall error's chains again the world enthrall,
But that mankind shall forward march forever,
As brothers, all for one, and one for all.

FLATTERY IN PORTRAITS.

I am for a little Flattery in Portraits: that is, so far as, I think, the Painter or Sculptor should try at something more agreeable than anything he sees sitting to him: when People look either bored, or smirking: he should give the best possible Aspect which the Features before him might wear, even if the Artist had not seen that Aspect. Especially when he works for Friends or Kinsfolk: for even the plainest face has looked handsome to them at some happy moment, and just such we like to have perpetuated. —Edward FitzGerald (to W. H. ### THE MAGIC TRUMPET.

Maynard, who won the air race across the continent, delivered a sermon on styles in a New York church a few days ago. Maynard is a brave man, and he does things in the air that no other man can do, but the styles of the New York women are beyond him. He was raised in the peace, security and modesty of the country, and he didn't like to talk to women "whose dresses were cut so low in the back that one could count every vertebrae from the waist up."

The remarks of the aviator are interesting, but not particularly original. They would be important if he relieved man's curiosity as to how the New York women keep their dresses up without shoulder straps. And they would have no significance at all if they did not come from a man who has flown across America. But because he won that race, we listen to him in San Francisco when he talks in New York.

We have always been like that. Publicity of any sort puts a magnifying glass on a man's opinions. When Madame Curie isolated radium the world listened to her views on divorce. Though Dr. Cook failed to reach the North Pole, we read his opinions on every subject from Swedish art to the silkworm's life of sacrifice. And today, if Bill Carlisle, bandit, would issue a statement condemning the shimmy, we would pay more attention to him than we do to something really important. Sensational publicity is a magic trumpet that cures all deafness.—San Francisco Call.

POSTPONING WAR-DEBT INTERES

From the Houston Post.

THE scheme that is being developed in Eu to postpone for three years the payment of terest on advances made to allied governm is one to be carefully scrutinized by Amer for it affects them vitally and directly.

About $10,000,000,000, or almost half the debt of the United States, was loaned to Eu Americans have been consoling themselves the knowledge that this money would event be repaid, and that the interest on these would constitute a greatly needed source of come to our Government.

But if this scheme to postpone interest ments is put into effect it will create a very ferent situation. It will mean that the Ame people will have to carry all their own war for three years, and $10,000,000,000 of that allied nations in addition.

In other words, our Government's financial sponsibility for the next three years will be about double what we had expected.

With Secretary Glass predicting a huge in the American treasury, this is not an all prospect. It would mean that no hope of ta ductions is in sight and that the high cost of ing, in so far as it is affected by taxes, must tinue. Every man, woman and child in Ame would thus have to help carry Europe's war for three years longer, if the plan be put effect.

It is not surprising that European state should suggest such a scheme, as all along has been a disposition abroad to throw as of the financial burden of the war as po upon America. In France there is no little ment favoring a pro rating of the war's exp while fears have been expressed here and that the indebtedness to America might be pudiated, especially by those countries in Socialism and Bolshevism are strong.

All things considered, since it is still nece to help Europe re-establish her economic ture, it would be the part of prudence and business for our Government to insist up prompt payment of interest. This would dealing with Europe as a solvent entity inste as a bankrupt one. Deferred or defaulted in would complicate at the outset all our effor expand and stabilize European credit. And European Governments should be so notified out delay.

FOUR years ago today Henry Ford sailed from Hoboken on his "peace ship," shoutin slogan "Get the boys out of the trenches Christmas." On the anniversary of that ill expedition the New York Sun today opens a paign for "Peace Before Christmas."

The Sun's program is as "simple, direct and of comprehension as anything in the New En primer." The Sun says so itself. It talks no the way Henry Ford talked in 1915. Let Co pass a resolution declaring peace with Ge and the Central Powers and put it up to the Pr dent immediately. If the President should and should Congress be unable to pass it ov objection, then the responsibility would be "for keeping the country out of peace more twelve-month after the end of hostilities."

Will Congress respond to the appeal? would, surely, and some of his followers. now the Massachusetts Senator is posing pacifist as radical as was the Detroit motor facturer in the second year of the war. wanted peace without the attainment of the jects for which the great conflict was foug the allies. Lodge would desert the allies at time when the objects sought by them and America as well are unattained. He would claim a peace when there is no permanent probable or even possible under the terms of program—a program that is more pro-German essence than it is American.

College Set Will Begin to Arrive for Holidays This Week—Oriental Affair at St. Louis Club Thursday Night—Invitations Out for Imperial Ball Jan. 7.

AN advance guard of students from the boarding schools and military academies will begin to arrive this week for the holidays. As glad as they will be to get home, society will be equally happy to welcome them, as their presence invariably seems to brighten up and add to the merriment of things generally.

The first of the many affairs that have been planned for them will be the three tea dances which Mrs. Herbert Parker, Mrs. Claude Kennerly and Mrs. James Bloodworth will give next Saturday afternoon. Mrs. Parker's tea dance will be in honor of her daughter, Miss Elizabeth Parker, and her roommate at Dobbs Ferry, Miss Isabel Scott, who will spend the holidays with her, Mrs. Kennerly's for her niece, Miss Frances Collins, and Mrs. Bloodworth's for her daughter, Miss Annie Laurie Bloodworth.

The college set doubtless will participate in the debutante affairs scheduled for the week. These will begin tomorrow with Mrs. Elliot K. Ludington's reception for her debutante daughter, Miss Lucy Ludington. Tuesday Mrs. J. Sidney Walker will give a dinner party at the Country Club for her two nieces, Misses Nancy and Dorothy Walker, and Wednesday evening is Mrs. Walter [illegible] Battle's ball at the St. Louis Club to present her daughter, Miss Helen Battle, to society. Mrs. N. A. McMillan has promised some novel entertainment and surprises at the dance which she will give at the St. Louis Club Thursday night. It will be preceded by dinner, which will be called the Feast of the Nile. All the decorations are to indicate the Orient, and some of the debutantes and society matrons are to wear Oriental costumes. Miss Ruth Lionberger and Miss Anne Block are to be honor guests.

It was a foregone conclusion that the "Imperial" would give a ball this year, so society was not surprised when the invitations for this exclusive affair were received last week. The ball will be given at the St. Louis Club Jan. 7 and will be preceded by a dinner. On account of the unusual number of large affairs that are to be given this season the "Imperial" will have only one function, instead of two, as has been the custom. Among the debutantes to whom have been accorded the honors of invitations this year are Miss Evelyn Guy, daughter of William Evans Guy; Misses Nancy and Dorothy Walker, daughters of Mr. and Mrs. Herbert G. Walker; Misses Elizabeth and Isabel Mauran, daughters of Mr. and Mrs. J. Lawrence Mauran; Miss Ruth Lionberger, daughter of Isaac Lionberger; Miss Irwin Hayward, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Louis P. Hayward, and Miss Elizabeth Benoist, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Howard Benoist.

At the meeting of the Cornell Club at the University Club Thursday night the drawing was made for the box holders for the Cornell Glee Club Concert, which will be given at the Odeon Dec. 30. This concert is always one of the most popular and fashionable events of the holidays and the boxes are very much in demand. Out of the 45 applicants the following 30 drew the lucky numbers: Harry L. Block, William R. Bright, H. I. Finch, Alvin Griesedieck, W. P. Gruner, George K. Hoblitzelle, William B. Ittner, Paul Jones Jr., Henry Luednighaus Jr., W. A. McCandless, George R. Merrell, Fred Niedringhaus, Frank E. Nulsen, Frank Olin, August Reller, Louis Stockstrom, Henry Summa, George J. Tansey, Perry P. Taylor, Albert T. Terry, E. R. Thompson, Robert P. Turner, Audenried Whittemore, J. M. Wulfing, Clinton Brown, Walter Kobusch, H. H. Nugent and John Nulsen.

A wedding which took place in Columbia, Mo., last Wednesday afternoon which is of interest here, was that of Miss Margaret Rollins to Lieutenant-Colonel John Dilworth von Holtzendorff, Twelfth Field Artillery, United States Army. The ceremony was performed at 5 o'clock at the Calvary Episcopal Church, the Rev. M. George and Bishop Tuttle officiating. Officers of the bridegroom's regiment who had intended to take part in the wedding were unable to do so because of railroad restrictions, and the officers of the cadet corps at Columbia University held the sabres to form the arch for the bridal party to pass through. Miss Rollins was attended by Mrs. Clarkson Rollins as matron of honor, and Miss Annable Dilworth of San Antonio, Tex. Miss Ruth Rollins and Miss Juliette Bowling of Grand Haven, Mich., were bridesmaids. Capt. Hugh Hester served as best man, and the groomsmen were Curtis V. Rollins Jr., John Lehman of St. Louis and Sidney Rollins. A reception was held after the ceremony at the "Grasslands," the home of the bride's brother, and a dance for the wedding guests and some of the young people was given at the Boone Tavern after the reception. The couple will pass their honeymoon in Chicago, and will be at home after Jan. 15 at the Argyle, San Antonio, Tex.

Miss Rollins is the daughter of the late Mr. and Mrs. George Bingham Rollins, and is related to many of the old families of St. Louis, including the Scotts, Lionbergers and Clarksons.

Mrs. John A. Day of the Buckingham Hotel is expecting her daughter, Miss Alice M. Day, to arrive from Wisconsin University Dec. 18.

Miss Ruth Burlingame, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. I. L. Burlingame, 5655 Bartmer avenue, is telling her friends of her engagement to Clel[illegible] Antrim, son of Mr. and Mrs. C. A. Antrim, 25 Kingsbury place. Miss Burlingame was graduated from Mary Institute in the class of 1915 and has been maid of honor at the Veiled Prophet's ball. The wedding will take place in the early spring. Mr. Antrim received his education at Lawrenceville.

Announcement was made last week of the engagement of Miss Dorothy Gibson Pank, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. C. Waller Pank of Evanston, Ill., formerly of St. Louis, to Miles Wright of Evanston. Miss Pank has spent a good deal of her time in St. Louis as the guest of her sister, Mrs. Harold H. Day, of 700 Limit avenue, and Miss Irene Smith, of 55 Kingsbury place. She received her education at Mary Institute and at Dana Hall, Wellesley, Mass. Mr. Wright is a graduate of Cornell University, class of 1918. No date for the wedding has been set.

The wedding of Mrs. Winifred Talcott Cabanne, formerly of St. Louis, and Frank R. Tate, was celebrated Friday in Erie, Pa., at the home of the bride's aunt, Mrs. Davenport Galbraith. Mrs. Cabanne's two daughters, Mrs. Sevier Raines Tupper of Washington, D. C., and Miss Dorys Cabanne, were present at the ceremony. The couple will make their home in St. Louis.

Three hundred invitations have been issued for the luncheon to be given at the Hotel Statler Tuesday in the interest of the Letmar Club Association's campaign to raise funds to buy a hotel for working girls of the city. More than $12,000 has been donated, and it is hoped to complete the necessary sum, which is about $40,000, before Christmas, in order that the long waiting list of girls may be assured of a comfortable, homelike place in which to begin the new year. Miss Jessie Veeder will come from Chicago to speak at the luncheon, and will tell of the wonderful success of the Eleanor Club there which has a chain of six hotels, all of which are business successes. J. Lionberger Davis will preside at the luncheon, and the following will be hostesses: Mrs. Marion C. Blossom, Miss Letitia Parker, Miss Mary Semple Scott, Mrs. James A. Seddon, Miss Sarah Tower, Mrs. Louis Brooks, Mrs. Champe C. Conner Jr., Mrs. Hermann von Schrenk, Mrs. Thomas L. Anderson, Mrs. John P. Boogher Jr., Mrs. J. Arthur Corbitt, Mrs. E. G. Lyre-ola

Beautiful in Tone and Appearance

EACH model of "The Lyre-ola" is a true representative of the handiwork of the master craftsmen of former centuries, and the beauty and style of these Period Cabinets will give to your home an indefinable touch of distinction and comfortableness.

"The Lyre-ola" is musically beautiful as well. Its rich, mellow, sweet tone will delight the most critical. It is truly an artistic phonograph. It plays all records with unvarying accuracy.

The model illustrated above is the "Adam" period; width 52 inches, height 37 inches, depth 24 inches. The exclusive "Lyre-ola" sectional top permits vases of flowers, statuary, and other ornaments to remain undisturbed while the instrument is being used.

MISSOURI GUARD ONLY 29 PER CENT FILLED

State Had Enlisted 1288 of Authorized Strength of 4429 Up to Dec. 9.

Missouri is far below its quota of men in the National Guard, a statement compiled by the General Staff of the War Department, Dec. 6 shows. The authorized strength is 4429 men, and the number enlisted up to Dec. 9 was given as 1288, or 29 per cent of the authorized number.

This is in strong contrast to some other States, particularly Minnesota and Texas, where permission has been asked and granted to extend the number beyond the authorized strength. Thus, Minnesota, whose authorized strength was 3688 men, actually has 4079, or 111 per cent, and Texas, with an authorized strength of 11,427, has 12,005, or 105 per cent.

The total authorized strength for the nation was increased from 126,109 to 153,285 during November. There was an actual falling off of 212 men in the total number enlisted during November. Many States have no organization at all.

In addition to Missouri, Texas and Minnesota, the standing of the States is as follows:

MILK DEALER SAVES $93 THROUGH RETRIAL

Harry Herklotz Relieved to That Extent by Judge Mathews Because of "Good Record."

A charge of having placed formaldehyde in milk, under which Harry Herklotz, 4600 North Vandeventer avenue, a milk producer, was fined $25 and costs by Judge Mix in Police Court on Nov. 25, was dismissed at a retrial yesterday before Provisional Judge Mathews.

Judge Mix also had fined Herklotz $25 and costs on a charge of having had milk in his possession which contained less than the required amount of butter fat. This is presumed to indicate skimming. Judge Mathews reduced the fine to $10 and costs and stayed it on payment of costs.

Judge Mix further had fined Herklotz $25 and costs on a charge of having had milk low in butter fat in his possession on another occasion. Judge Mathews reduced the fine to $10 and costs and stayed it also on payment of costs.

Judge Mix further had fined Herklotz $25 and costs on a charge of having had milk in his possession which contained less than the required percentage of non-fatty solids. Judge Mix reduced this fine to $10 and costs but required payment.

The sum of Judge Mix's fines and costs was $112. The sum of Judge Mathews' fines and costs was $19.

The milk in which the Health Department found formaldehyde was taken from Herklotz's wagon as it was standing in front of the place of business of Arnold Steinlage, 4624 West Florisant avenue, a retail dealer in milk. The defense of Herklotz to the charge was that he delivered milk in cans which Steinlage presumably had washed before return to him.

City Chemist Buckland testified that Steinlage had been convicted of having had milk containing formaldehyde in his possession. The record shows that Steinlage was fined $25 and costs on Nov. 21 on a charge of having milk in his possession which contained formaldehyde.

Judge Mathews said that "in view of Herklotz's previous good record during this year and Steinlage's bad record," he would dismiss the charges against Herklotz.

COMMITTEE OF 48 TO MAINTAIN OFFICE HERE

Will Be Center of Activities to Be Conducted in Three or More States.

The Committee of Forty-eight will establish permanent district headquarters in St. Louis, with Flint Garrison as executive chairman and R. A. Shannon as secretary. It is planned to direct the work of the Committee of 48 in three or more states from these headquarters. A meeting of the Missouri State Committee, of which Garrison is the head, will be held tomorrow, when it is expected definite plans for the maintenance of the headquarters here will be announced.

At present the offices of the committee will be maintained on the tenth floor of Hotel Statler, but it is planned to obtain permanent rooms in a downtown office building within a week.

J. A. H. Hopkins, national chairman of the Committee of 48, will remain in St. Louis until Tuesday. He will aid the local committee and members in making arrangements for permanent headquarters, and is sending out reports of the four-day conference, which closed Friday night, to members in various parts of the United States.

Another issue of "Facts," the daily newspaper published by the committee during the conference, will be published tomorrow. This will contain a complete resume of the work accomplished at the conference sessions here and also will outline the plans for future organization work and propaganda contemplated by the members of the Executive Committee of the national organization.

Allen McCurdy, who was temporary chairman of the conference; M. I. Thompson, Minnesota organizer for the National People's League, and Miss Melinda Alexander of Montana, are also to remain in the city over tomorrow and will assist Chairman Hopkins in the work preliminary to the permanent organization here.

Although New York will at present be regarded as the national headquarters of the Committee of Forty-Eight, according to Chairman Hopkins there is every likelihood that St. Louis will eventually be selected for this. The fact that St. Louis is centrally located and that publications can be sent from here to all parts of the country with less difficulty caused by postal zone restrictions, have operated to make the Executive Committee regard St. Louis favorably for national headquarters.

Chairman Hopkins will issue his call for a meeting of the Executive Committee soon after his return to New York and at that meeting the city in which the 1920 convention will be held will be selected. It is probable, stated Hopkins, that the convention will be held directly following the Republican and Democratic national conventions. The Executive Committee, in this connection, will consider carefully whether it would be better to await the action of these political parties or to formulate a program in advance of their meeting.

The National Peoples' League also has its headquarters still open in room 308 at the Hotel Statler, in charge of M. I. Thompson. The present plan is to merge this organization with the Committee of Forty-Eight and to combine the headquarters of the two organizations.

YOUTH, IN HIDING, ARRESTED

Taken on Girls' Charge When He Goes Home for Funeral.

Michael F. Gleason, 21 years old, of 6737 Raymond avenue, Wellston, who has been wanted since July 19 in connection with an alleged attack upon Barbara Wood, 14 years old, daughter of Henry Wood, 6536 Watson avenue, Wellston, was pulled from underneath a washtub covered over with carpets and soiled linen, by officers Friday at his home, where he had returned to attend the funeral of his father.

"AMERICAN ARMY WON THE WAR," SAYS PERSHING

accomplished fact, and the enemy had felt is power. No form of propaganda could overcome the depressing effect on the morale of the enemy of this demonstration of our ability to organize a large American force and drive it successfully through his defenses. It gave our troops implicit confidence in their superiority and raised their morale to the highest pitch. For the first time wire entanglements ceased to be regarded as impassable barriers and open warfare training, which had been so urgently insisted upon, proved to be the correct doctrine. Our divisions concluded the attack with such small losses and in such high spirits that without the usual rest they were immediately available for employment in heavy fighting in a new theater of operations. The strength of the First Army in this battle totaled approximately 500,000 men, of whom about 70,000 were French."

Without pausing to recuperate the new veteran divisions, Pershing swung them to the east and prepared for the Meuse-Argonne drive, the strategic importance of which he believed to be "second to none on the western front," for "should this system (of supply through Sedan-Mezieres) be cut before the enemy could withdraw his forces through the narrow neck between Mezieres and the Dutch frontier, the ruin of his armies in France and Belgium would be complete."

The entire frontal zone was 'elaborately fortified," consisting of practically a continuous series of positions 20 kilometers or more in depth and strengthened, moreover, by the natural features of the terrain. The story of the hand-to-hand struggle which ensued is told dispassionately by the report, which says "continuous fighting was maintained along the entire battle front," with "the enemy contesting every foot of our front," but by the end of October "the enemy's elaborately prepared positions, including the Hindenburg line, in our front had been broken; the almost impassable Argonne Forest was in our hands; an advance of 21 kilometers had been effected; 18,600 prisoners, 370 cannon, 1000 machine guns and a mass of material captured; and the great railway artery through Carignan to Sedan was now seriously threatened."

With the enemy gradually breaking before him, Pershing found that his own reserves were beginning to show the effects of the terrific attrition. After a careful review of the situation, the report recites that the decision to "continue the attack" was reached on the theory that the enemy divisions were suffering even more.

"Once a German division was engaged in the fight it was practically impossible to effect its relief," the General says.

From Nov. 1 to 6 three American army corps battered their way to Sedan and, to quote the official record:

Foch Calls on All Commanders To Press Retreating Enemy.

"By Sept. 7 the right of the Third Corps had exploited its river crossing to a distance of 10 kilometers east of the Meuse, completely ejecting the enemy from the wooded heights and driving him out into the swampy plain of the Woevre; the Fifth and First Corps had reached the line of the Meuse River along their respective fronts and the left of the latter corps held the heights dominating Sedan, the stragetical goal of the Meuse-Argonne operation, 41 kilometers from our point of departure on Nov. 1. We had cut the enemy's main line of communications. Recognizing that nothing but a cessation of hostilities could save his armies from complete disaster, he appealed for an immediate armistice on Nov. 6.

"Meanwhile general plans had been prepared for the further employment of American forces in an advance between the Meuse and the Moselle, to be directed toward Longwy by the First Army, while the Second Army was to assume the offensive toward the Briey Iron Basin. Orders directing the preparatory local operations involved in this enterprise were issued on Nov. 5.

"Between Nov. 7 and Nov. 10 the Third Corps continued its advance eastward to Remoiville, while the Seventeenth French Corps, on its right, with the Seventy-ninth, Twenty-sixth and Eighty-first American divisions, and two French divisions, drove the enemy from his final foothold on the heights east of the Meuse. At 9 p. m. on Nov. 9 appropriate orders were sent to the First and Second armies in accordance with the following telegram from Marshal Foch to the commander of each of the allied armies:

"'The enemy, disorganized by our repeated attacks, retreats along the entire front. It is important to coordinate and expedite our movements.

"'I appeal to the energy and the initiative of the Commanders in Chief and of their armies to make decisive the results obtained.'

"In consequence of the foregoing instructions, our Second Army pressed the enemy along its entire front. On the night of the 10-11th and the morning of the 11th the Fifth Corps, in the First Army, forced a crossing of the Meuse east of Beaumont and gained the commanding heights within the reentrant of the river, thus completing our control of the Meuse River line. At 6 a. m. on the 11th notification was received from Marshal Foch's headquarters that the armistice had been signed and that hostilities would cease at 11 a. m. Preparatory measures had already been taken to insure the prompt transmission to the troops of the announcement of an armistice."

"AMERICAN ARMY WON THE WAR," SAYS PERSHING

the actual equipment of the army with those much discussed implements and shows the extent to which America was compelled to rely on the allies. He says:

"Our entry into the war found us with few of the auxiliaries necessary for its conduct in the modern sense. The task of the Ordnance Department in supplying artillery was especially difficult. In order to meet our requirements as rapidly as possible, we accepted the offer of the French Government to supply us with the artillery equipment of 75s, 155mm. howitzers and 155 G. P. F. guns from their own factories for 30 divisions. The wisdom of this course was fully demonstrated by the fact that, although we soon began the manufacture of these classes of guns at home, there were no guns of American manufacture of the calibers mentioned on our front at the date of the armistice. The only guns of these types produced at home which reached France before the cessation of hostilities were 109 75mm. guns. In addition, 24 8-inch howitzers from the United States reached our front and were in use when the armistice was signed. Eight 14-inch naval guns of American manufacture were set up on railroad mounts, and most of these were successfully employed on the Meuse-Argonne front under the efficient direction of Admiral Plunkett of the navy.

"In aviation we were entirely dependent upon our allies, and here again the French Government came to our aid until our own program could be set under way. From time to time we obtained from the French such planes for training personnel as they could provide. Without going into a complete discussion of aviation material, it will be sufficient to state that it was with great difficulty that we obtained equipment even for training. As for up-to-date combat planes, the development at home was slow, and we had to rely upon the French, who provided us with a total of 2676 pursuit, observation, and bombing machines. The first airplanes arrived from home in May and altogether we received 1379 planes of the De Haviland type. The first American squadron completely equipped by American production, including aeroplanes, crossed the German lines on Aug. 7, 1918. As to our aviators, many of whom trained with our allies, it can be said that they had no superiors in daring and in fighting ability. During the battles of St. Mihiel and Meuse-Argonne our aviators excelled all others. They have left a record of courageous deeds that will ever remain a brilliant page in the annals of our army.

"In the matter of tanks, we were compelled to rely upon both the French and the English. Here, however, we were less fortunate for the reason that our allies barely had sufficient tanks to meet their own requirements. While our tank corps had limited opportunity, its fine personnel responded gallantly on every possible occasion and showed courage of the highest order. We had one battalion of heavy tanks engaged on the English front. On our own front we had only the light tanks, and the number available to participate in the last great assault of Nov. 1 was reduced to 16 as a result of the previous hard fighting in the Meuse-Argonne.

Generous Praise for the Entire A. E. Force.

Gen. Pershing closes his report with the following "Appreciation:"

"In this brief summary of the achievements of the American Expeditionary Forces it would be impossible to cite in detail the splendid ability, loyalty and efficiency that characterized the service of both combatant and non-combatant individuals and organizations. The most striking quality of both officers and men was the resourceful energy and common sense employed, under all circumstances, in handling their problems.

"The highest praise is due the commanders of armies, corps and divisions, and their subordinate leaders, who labored loyally and ably toward the accomplishment of our task, suppressing personal opinions and ambitions in the pursuit of the common aim; and to their staffs, who developed, with battle experience, into splendid teams without superiors in any army.

"To my Chiefs of Staff, Major-General James C. Harbord, who was later placed in command of the Service of Supply, and Major-General James W. McAndrew, I am deeply indebted for highly efficient service in a post of great responsibility.

"The important work of the staff at General Headquarters in organization and administration was characterized by exceptional ability and a fine spirit of co-operation. No chief ever had a more loyal and efficient body of assistants.

"The officers and men of the Services of Supply fully realized the importance of their duties, and the operations of that vast business system were conducted in a manner which won for them the praise of all. They deserve their full share in the victory.

"The American civilians in Europe, both in official and private life, were decidedly patriotic and loyal, and invariably lent encouragement and helpfulness to the armies abroad.

"The various societies, especially their women, including those of the theatrical profession, and our army nurses, played a most important part in brightening the lives of our troops and in giving aid and comfort to our sick and wounded.

Acknowledges Full Co-operation of the Navy Under Sims.

"The navy in European waters, under Admiral Sims, at all times cordially aided the army. To our sister service we owe the safe arrival of our armies and their supplies. It is most gratifying to record that there has never been such perfect understanding between these two branches of the service.

"Our armies were conscious of the support and co-operation of all branches of the Government. Behind them stood the entire American people, whose ardent patriotism and sympathey inspired our troops with a deep sense of obligation, of loyalty, and of devotion to the country's cause never equaled in our history.

"Finally, the memory of the unflinching fortitude and heroism of the soldiers of the line fills me with greatest admiration. To them I again pay the supreme tribute. Their devotion, their valor and their sacrifices will live forever in the hearts of their grateful countrymen.

"In closing this report, Mr. Secretary, I desire to record my deep appreciation of the unqualified support accorded me throughout the war by the President and yourself. My task was simplified by your confidence and wise counsel."

H. J. Reineke, dealer in automobile accessories at 4251 Natural Bridge avenue, and Thomas Lockett, 24 years old, who formerly worked as a yardman in the North St. Louis Terminal yards, were sentenced by Judge Faris in the United States District Court yesterday, following their conviction by a jury, of plundering freight cars and disposing of the stolen property.

Reineke, who was found guilty of having received a lot of tires of considerable value stolen by Lockett and others, was sentenced to three years in the Federal penitentiary at Leavenworth and Lockett was sentenced to six months in jail at St. Charles. ## EAT LESS MEAT IF KIDNEYS HURT OR YOU ARE BACKACHY AND RHEUMATIC Meat forms uric acid which clogs Kidneys; causes Rheumatism and irritates Bladder.

If you must have your meat every day, eat it, but flush your kidneys with salts occasionally, says a noted authority who tells us that meat forms uric acid which almost paralyzes the kidneys in their efforts to expel it from the blood. They become sluggish and weaken, then you suffer with a dull misery in the kidney region, sharp pains in the back or sick headache, dizziness, your stomach sours, tongue is coated and when the weather is bad you have rheumatic twinges. The urine gets cloudy, full of sediment, the channels often get sore and irritated, obliging you to seek relief two or three times during the night.

To neutralize these irritating acids, to cleanse the kidneys and flush off the body's urinous waste get four ounces of Jad Salts from any pharmacy here; take a tablespoonful in a glass of water before breakfast for a few days and your kidneys will then act fine. This famous salts is made from the acid of grapes and lemon juice, combined with lithia, and has been used for generations to flush and stimulate sluggish kidneys, also to neutralize the acids in urine, so it no longer irritates, thus ending bladder weakness.

Jad Salts is inexpensive; cannot injure, and makes a delightful effervescent lithia-water drink.

Doctor Tells How to Strengthen Eyesight 50 per cent in One Week's Time in Many Instances

A Free Prescription You Can Have Filled and Use at Home

Philadelphia, Pa. Do you wear glasses? Are you a victim of eye strain or other eye weaknesses? If so, you will be glad to know that according to Dr. Lewis there is a real hope for you. Many whose eyes were failing say they have had their eyes restored through the principle of this wonderful free prescription. One man says, after trying it: "I was almost blind; could not see to read at all. Now I can read everything without any glasses and my eyes do not water any more. At night they would pain dreadfully; now they feel fine all the time. It was like a miracle to me." A lady who used it says: "The atmosphere seemed hazy with or without glasses, but after using this prescription for fifteen days everything seems clear. I can even read fine print without glasses." It is believed that thousands who wear glasses can now discard them in a reasonable time and multitudes more will be able to strengthen their eyes so as to be spared the trouble and expense of ever getting glasses. Eye troubles of many descriptions may be wonderfully benefited by following the simple rules. Here is the prescription: Go to any active drug store and get a bottle of Bon-Opto tablets. Drop one Bon-Opto tablet in a fourth of a glass of water and allow to dissolve. With this liquid bathe the eye two or four times daily. You should notice your eyes clear up perceptibly right from the start and inflammation will quickly disappear. If your eyes are bothering you, even a little, take steps to save them now before it is too late. Many hopelessly blind might have been saved if they had cared for their eyes in time.

Note: Another prominent Physician to whom the above article was submitted, said: "Bon-Opto is a very remarkable remedy. Its constituent ingredients are well known to eminent eye specialists and widely prescribed by them. The manufacturers guarantee it to strengthen eyesight 50 per cent in one week's time in many instances or refund the money. It can be obtained from any good druggist and is one of the very few preparations I feel should be kept on hand for regular use in almost every family." It is sold in this city by the Enderle, Johnson Bros., Pauley, Judge & Dolph and Wolff-Wilson stores, and other druggists.

A Simple Way to Reduce Wrinkles

Remember that wrinkles and bagginess of cheek or chin are due to the muscular tissue losing its strength and shrinking. The skin is then too large in area to fit such tissue smoothly. It wrinkles or sags.

To remedy this condition, there's nothing so effective, so quick acting, as a simple wash lotion easily made at home. Just get an ounce of pure powdered saxolite from your druggist and a half pint of witch hazel; mix the two and bathe your face in the liquid. This at once tightens the skin and solidifies the underlying tissue — which, of course, smooths out the lines and draws in the sagging skin. It also stimulates capillary circulation, bringing natural color to faded cheeks.

FORMER 138TH COMMANDER COLONEL IN RESERVE CORPS

Receives Highest Rank Possible, and Two Grades Above Any Other St. Louisan.

Col. Edmund J. McMahon, former commander of the 138th (St. Louis) Infantry, has been commissioned a Colonel in the Officers' Reserve Corps, thereby receiving the highest rank possible in the Reserve Corps, and the highest by two grades of any other St. Louisan who has received a Reserve Corps commission.

Papers accompanying the commission, which was received Friday by Col. McMahon at his home at 4461 Farlin avenue, state that the same rank he held during the war is given him in the Reserve Corps because his service in France has demonstrated his fitness for that rank.

"JULIUS CAESAR" IN MANTELL REPERTORY

Tragedian Comes to American Tomorrow; "Cappy Ricks" at Shubert-Jefferson.

Robert Bruce Mantell, tragedian, returns this week for his third successive season in St. Louis, but will appear at the American Theater instead of the Shubert-Jefferson, and will alter his familiar repertory somewhat by substituting "Julius Caesar" for "Louis XI."

His schedule of classic dramas is as follows: Monday night, "King Lear;" Tuesday night, "Hamlet;" Wednesday matinee, "The Merchant of Venice;" Wednesday night, Bulwer Lytton's "Richelieu;" Thursday night, "Julius Caesar;" Friday night, "Macbeth;" Saturday matinee, "Julius Caesar," and Saturday night, "Richard III."

It is announced that the production of "Julius Caesar" will be the feature of the week, many of the scenes being modeled directly upon the staging of the play a few years ago at the Theater Antoine, Paris, but with the incorporation of some original ideas of Mantell's and of his leading man, Fritz Leiber. Mantell will take the part of Brutus and Leiber that of Antony. Guy Lindsley will be the Caesar, and the Cassius will be a newcomer in the company, Henry Buckler. Miss Genevieve Hamper, who is Mrs. Mantell, will appear as Portia, wife of Brutus, and will have, as before, the leading feminine roles in the other plays.

"Cappy Ricks," a dramatization of Peter B. Kyne's stories of sailor men along the Pacific Coast, opens the week at the Shubert-Jefferson Theater tonight, with the veteran Thomas A. Wise, formerly of "The Gentleman From Mississippi," in the title part. This one character, that of the domineering but kindly and gentle old shipowner, Alden P. Ricks, is said to carry the chief burden of the show. Then there are the familiar and likable characters recognizable to all readers of popular fiction—Matt Peasley, Skinner, Mike Murphy and, last but not least, Florence Ricks.

Fred Stone, Next Week.

Fred Stone, in the musical extravaganza, "Jack o' Lantern," will present the Christmas week offering at the American, and Marie Dressler, in a revival of "Tillie's Nightmare," will have a similar place at the Shubert-Jefferson.

"Putting It Over," a musical revue, in which even the "chorus girls" are soldiers boys, will be the headliner at the Orpheum this week. The piece itself, however, is said to have not a single military touch. T. Roy Burns and Bessie Crawford are scheduled to hand out "A Package of Smiles;" Homer B. Mason and Marguerite Keeler will present a one-act play, "Married;" Harry Jolson, brother of Al, is to give a blackface turn, and besides there will be "Tip," considered the most cultured of dogs. The Standard offers "The Razzle Dazzle of 1919," with Ethel de Veaux, and the Gayety's announcement is "The Sightseers."

ARGENTINA REPORTED REFUSING TO RECEIVE POLISH MINISTER

Count Orlowsky's Wife an Argentinian and He Owns Large Amount of Land in Country.

By the Associated Press.

BUENOS AIRES, Dec. 13.—The Argentine Government is reported to have informed Poland that Count Xavier Orlowsky, who was appoined Polish Minister to Argentina, is persona non grata because his wife is an Argentinian and the Count owns a large amount of land in this country.

Newspapers here protest against this reported action of the Government, La Razon saying: "Refusal to receive such a personality as Count Orlowsky because of these reasons is a stupid pretext. The Warsaw Government will now send us a vice consul."

"That Orlowsky is a landed proprietor here and his wife is an Argentianian should have been good reasons for strengthening the happy relations between the two countries," remarks El Diario.

The Brunswick
ALL PHONOGRAPHS IN ONE

For the Real Xmas Spirit

These days, holiday joys are not confined to candles, wreaths, bells, or even trees. The celebration that is without music lacks real Christmas spirit. On The Brunswick music is reproduced in tones that are exquisite. Music that thrills the very soul.

And why is Brunswick music different? Because it has a distinctly exclusive Method of Reproduction, due to two exclusive patented features.

The Method of Reproduction

The new Brunswick Method of Reproduction is the most advanced and finest yet devised. In perfecting it all old standards were discarded. Heretofore the instrument you bought determined your range of choice of records. The Brunswick has lifted the ban on the selections of other makers. With it you play all records of whatever make. Moreover, it plays all records at their best. And all this by means of the Ultona and the Tone Amplifier.

The Ultona

The Ultona—a scientific creation—is an all-in-one reproducer. It supplies, at a turn of the hand, the right needle, diaphragm and weight for playing any make record.

The Tone Amplifier

The Tone Amplifier is the all-wood, vibrant throat of The Brunswick. It is oval shaped—moulded to meet musical and acoustical laws. Truer, richer, sweeter tones—those that were hitherto lost in phonographic reproduction—are restored by this great invention.

ENTIRE "FIRST TIME" ORCHESTRAL PROGRAM

Nothing but New Works at Symphony Concerts Next Friday and Saturday.

For the first time in its history, so far as records at hand reveal, the Symphony Orchestra, at its Friday and Saturday concerts this week, will offer an entire program of works which it has never before played. They are Alfven's Third Symphony, Victor Herbert's second concerto for the violoncello, which will be played by H. Max Steindel, and Lalo's orchestral suite, "Namouna."

This extraordinary concurrence of "first time" numbers is due to the illness of Sergei Rachmaninoff, which prevented his keeping his engagement as soloist at the final pair of concerts in November. The management's anxiety to present the eminent Russian composer-pianist during the season led to a rearrangement of the engagements of other soloists, so that Rachmaninoff may appear at the concerts of Feb. 13 and 14. Steindel, therefore, will play this week, and Mabel Garrison will be the soloist on March 12 and 13.

Hugo Alfven, who was born at Stockholm in 1872, is considered the leading composer of his country and has sometimes been called "the Swedish Brahms." His third symphony was composed during 1905 in Italy, and contrasts the composer's joy in the sunshine and love of living characteristic of the Mediterranean with his homesick longing for his own land of arctic snows. Its first performance in this country was at the hands of the Minneapolis Symphony Orchestra on Nov. 6, 1914. The complete program is as follows:

Symphony No. 3, in E Major..Alfven
  (a) Allegro con brio.
  (b) Andante.
  (c) Presto.
  (d) Allegro con brio.
Concerto for Violoncello, No. 2, Op. 30 ................Herbert
  (a) Allegro impetuoso; Lento; Allegro.
  (b) Andante tranquillo.
  (c) Allegro (primo tempo).
Orchestral Suite, Namouna, No. 1......................Lalo
  (a) Prelude.
  (b) Serenade.
  (c) Theme varie.
  (4) 1. Parade de Foire.
    2. Fete Foraine.

Recital by Emma Roberts.

Alice Widney Conant, soprano, will be the soloist at this afternoon's popular concert at the Odeon, singing the aria, "Il est doux, il est bon," from Massenet's "Herodiade," and a group of songs in English. They are: "The Open Road," Gertrude Ross; "When I Go Alone," Buzzi-Peccia; "Cradle Song," Fritz Kreisler, and "There Sits a Bird," Arthur Foote. The orchestra is to play German's "Coronation March," Delibes' overture to "Le Roi l'a Dit," Rubinstein's "Kammenoi-Ostrow," Saint-Saens' Suite, "Algerienne," and Tschaikowsky's "Marche Slave."

What should prove one of the outstanding events of the season is the recital to be given at Hotel Statler tomorrow at 3 p. m. by Miss Emma Roberts, contralto, who in the last three years has won a foremost place among American concert singers. "She knows how to sing artistically," wrote James Gibbons Huneker; and W. J. Henderson remarked upon her full-throated and luscious voice, its variety of color, her dramatic temperament and infectious humor.

Her first group will consist of folk songs—"Come, My Dearest," Serbian; "Buckwheat Cakes," Russian; "Marianne," French; "The Bells," Belgian; "Barbara Allen," English, and "The Maid of Scilla," Italian. Next she will give Aubert's "Chanson Espagnole," Poldowski's "Colombine," Rachmaninoff's "The Soldier's Bride," Sachnovski's "The Clock," and Balakireff's "I Loved Him So." Finally there will be a group of songs mostly by Americans—Kramer's "The Last Hour," Burleigh's "Hard Trails;" the negro spiritual, "I Stood on de Ribber ob Jordan;" an original Cree melody, "The Chattering Squaw," arranged by Loomis; MacFayden's "Inter Nos," and Ferrari's "Youth." The singer will be assisted by Lois Rogers, 17-year-old pianist, who will play several solo selections.

Chaminade Club Concert.

The Chaminade Club, directed by Leo C. Miller, will open its season with a concert at the Webster Groves Armory, Tuesday night, at which Jules Falk, violinist, will be the soloist. # The Doctor's Advice

by Dr. Lewis Baker

The questions answered below are general in character; the symptoms or diseases are given and the answers should apply to any case of similar nature.

Those wishing further advice, free, may address Dr. Lewis Baker, College Building, College-Ellwood streets, Dayton, O., enclosing self-addressed, stamped envelope for reply. Full name and address must be given, but only initials or fictitious name will be used in my answers. The remedies can be obtained at any well-stocked drug store. Any druggist can order of wholesaler.

"Morris" asks: "I have suffered with a chronic cough for almost a year, and catch a fresh cold every few weeks. Nothing the doctor gives me helps, so I write to you."

Answer: You need a thorough laxative cough syrup, one that not only relieves but surely drives it from the system. The following regularly used will oust any curable cough or cold promptly: Obtain a 2½-oz. bottle of essence Mentho-Laxene, mix it with a homemade sugar syrup or honey as per directions on bottle.

J. W. W. asks: "Can you prescribe a reliable treatment to get rid of dandruff, itching and feverish scalp?"

Answer: I know you can get instant relief and permanent results by using plain yellow Minyol as per directions which accompany each 4-oz. jar.

John C. L. writes: "I find my natural strength and nervous system failing me. I do not recuperate as of yore. My food and rest seem not to benefit as they should. Am weak, despondent and unable to perform the duties which were assumed earlier in life, while my ambition for work and pleasure is slowly going."

Answer: I think a powerful, harmless tonic and nerve medicine will rejuvenate and restore the functions of digestion, assimilation and elimination by invigorating the nervous system. Obtain three-grain Cadomene Tablets, packed in sealed tubes, and take as per directions accompanying.

"Tom" writes: "I have very poor health on account of long-standing constipation. I take medicine all the time, but would like to get something that would cure me."

Answer: More illness is caused by constipation than by any other ailment. You can get plenty of medicines that will relieve, but if you want something that will more than help you I would advise the use of three-grain Sulpherb Tablets (not sulphur tablets).

Henry J. C. writes: "Something seems to be wrong with my system and I don't know what it is. I have huge puffs under my eyes, my eyes are bloodshot in morning and my feet and ankles are swollen. Sometimes I have chills and feel weak and tired most of the time."

Answer: Your eliminating organs, such as liver and kidneys, are in need of treatment. Begin taking Balmwort Tablets at once. Get them in sealed tubes with full directions of any well-stocked druggist.

"Jane" writes: "My nerves are in a dreadful condition, my appetite is very poor and I am extremely thin. My face is so thin that it makes me very unhappy. I should like you to tell me a true remedy."

Answer: If you wish to become stouter, improve your appetite and your nervous system, I heartily recommend the use of three-grain Hypo-Nuclane Tablets, which you will find in any well-stocked drug store in sealed cartons with full directions for taking. Hypo-Nuclane Tablets improve the nutrition, add red corpuscles to the blood, strengthen the nervous system and improve the general health.

"Harry" writes: "Both my wife and myself suffer with rheumatism. We would appreciate a reply telling us what to take."

Answer: Mix the following at home or have the druggist mix for you: 1 drams of iodide of potassium; sodium salicylate, 4 drams; wine of colchicum, one-half oz.; comp. essence cariol, 1 oz.; comp. fluid balmwort, 1 oz.; and syrup of sarsaparilla comp., 5 ozs. Take a teaspoonful at meal time and bed time. Always shake well before using.—ADVERTISEMENT.

ST. LOUIS ORCHESTRA DELIGHTS KREISLER

Says It Has Poise and Mastership With a Tone Far Stronger and Richer.

Fritz Kreisler, who, owing to a late train, arrived at the Odeon Friday afternoon a few minutes before the beginning of the concert at which he was to be soloist, was astonished and delighted to the point of forgetting his own nervousness, he says, when he heard Director Zach's enlarged and remodeled orchestra swing into the first mighty symphony in B-flat major.

"Magnificent!" exclaimed the violinist, who has played with every symphony orchestra of note in the world, and afterwards he elaborated to a Post-Dispatch reporter his impressions of the 1919-20 orchestra of St. Louis.

Has Note of Maturity.

"It is noticeably bigger and finer," he said, "and it now has a distinct note of maturity, poise and mastership. The tone is far stronger and richer. It is, of course, under the leadership of Mr. Zach, who is a fine musician, honest and straightforward in his ideas, and deeply desirous of enlarging the scope of the service intrusted to him.

"Small things in the accompaniment played for my concerto (the Beethoven in D major) went a long way to reveal to me the new refinement to which the orchestra has attained. There was an instinct, to give an example, for phrasing which was correct in nearly every case, and which is the best proof of training. This excellence of minute details shows how well St. Louis' orchestra is equipped. All in all, it was a great pleasure I had yesterday.

"I liked it especially, that due to the skill of the orchestra I was able to play without rehearsal. This is much better—if you can have sufficient trust in the leader and his orchestra. There is a pleasant anxiety which gives a note of great charm; the bloom is not rubbed off the music. The orchestra was all alert, with keen ears, whereas thorough rehearsing gives a security which often leads to carelessness. Of course, the experiment would be dangerous if the orchestra were not expert."

Orchestra Precious to City.

The eminent violinist proceeded with the declaration that a great orchestra is as precious to a city as is a cathedral or a museum of fine arts.

"Its concerts," he said, "afford a central place where all may gather, shake off their sorrows and unite in one hope and joy. All the controversies, the unrest and bitterness of life steal away into the distance. The gathering is joined in worship of a lofty idea, for where can you find a nobler principle than that of pure music? It soars as high above the things of the earth as do religion, philosophy and pure mathematics. Music doesn't want to argue, to tear you away from your convictions, to exert propaganda. It is the most disinterested thing in the world. The more people there are who can understand masterpieces like that of Chausson, the better people you will have in St. Louis.

"The constitution of a fine orchestra is one of the most important developments of civic life. The leaders today do not understand as well as did those of the middle ages the immense moral and idealistic force of art. Music, in this day of political and commercial unrest, is one of the few remaining forces of stability. In the Renaissance the ruler thoroughly understood the value of art as a moral lever; see what encouragement was given to the great painters, architects and composers.

Music Democratic Art.

"Besides, music is thoroughly in the trend of the age in being the most democratic of all arts. You need not know how to read and write in order to enjoy it. Even the lowest savage is touched by the rhythmic and emotional appeal of the crudest music."

Regarding the Chausson Symphony, Kreisler made the point that it is not only modern but clear. The unintelligibility of much modern music, he said, is for the purpose simply of escaping criticism, with the pharase "You don't understand me."

"We are the gospel," he quoted some of the present-day nihilists in music, "and if you don't like us you are a fool." Kreisler then bore his own testimony.

"I am an humble admirer of the best modern music, but the only claim some of it has is noise and the upsetting of all rules. Either I'm no musician or that is not music. Chausson was one of the fine minds which did not lost contact with the best of the old. To be great and clear at the same time—that is the ideal."

LIEUTENANT AND SERGEANT TO FACE BRUTALITY CHARGES

At Least Two More Courtmartials Growing Similar to Capt. Detzer's Will Be Held.

By the Associated Press.

NEW YORK, Dec. 13.—At least two other courtmartials will follow that of Capt. Karl W. Detzer, former Commander of the 308th Military Police, who is being tried at Governor's Island on charges of brutality to prisoners in Le Mans.

Maj. William F. Kelly, Judge Advocate, who previously had announced that Sergt. U. S. Madden of Pittsburg would be brought to trial, today stated that Lieut. Letnard D. Mahan, a former Washington policeman and organizer of the 308th, would be tried on charges similar to those against Detzer. Mahan now is under arrest at the Island.

The first week of Detzer's trial ended yesterday when court adjourned until Monday.

Municipal Vesper Concerts Resumed.

Arthur Lieber, organist, and P. C. Anton, violoncellist, will resume their musical vesper concerts with a service at 4:30 o'clock this afternoon at the Second Baptist Church, King's highway and Washington boulevard. There will be a 40 minutes' program, with a nonsectarian talk by Dr. W. C. Bitting. As in former years, there will be no admission fee or collection. The musical vespers will be held hereafter on the third Sunday afternoon of each month.

The Knife and Fork Brigade

Dyspeptic Soup Eaters Can Change Their Spoon for a Knife and Fork and With Stuart's Dyspepsia Tablets the World Smiles Again.

Ask a former dyspeptic who tried the Stuart's Dyspepsia Tablets plan what wonderful relief they afford. Instead of the grouchy bowl of soup at home and the abject terror at the sight of good things to eat at a party supper, the soup spoon has been replaced by the knife and fork. This comes from giving the digestive processes required assistance. These tablets digest food. They stimulate natural digestive secretions. Thus the food keeps on digesting, doesn't lie in the stomach to sour and create all sorts of distresses. And they act as soon as they enter the stomach, hence relief even in dyspepsia may be looked for almost at once.

If you have been troubled with gassiness, sour stomach, water brash, heaviness after eating and such troubles, try these tablets. You will find Stuart's Dyspepsia Tablets on sale in any drug store in the United States and Canada.

ROBBED TEACHERS, USED MONEY TO BUY TREE FOR HER BABY

Mrs. Lillian Messmer, 18 years old, of 3022 New Ashland place, wife of Matthew Messmer, a car builder, who was arrested Friday, confessed that she had gone to four public schools as a visitor, and while there had stolen a vanity case, two pairs of gloves, a beaded purse and about $50 from the desks of teachers. She said she had used the money to buy groceries, but her husband told the police that she had used it to buy and decorate a Christmas tree.

Messmer said he had lost only two weeks' work in the three years that they have been married, but that he had been unable to supply funds for a Christmas tree, which his wife wanted for the entertainment of their 4-year-old son. Detectives found the Christmas tree in the home.

Last Tuesday, after articles and money had disappeared from the O'Fallon, Bryan Hill and Cupples schools, a woman visitor was seen to leave the Ashland School with a girl pupil. Next day the teacher inquired of the girl if the visitor was her mother, and learned that it was Mrs. Messmer, who formerly was a neighbor of the girl's parents. Messmer wants to repay those whose property was taken. His wife was released on bond after she and her baby were taken to police headquarters.

NO MOVE MADE TO GET DEMOCRATIC MEETING

C. of C. Directors Postpone Consideration of Bid for National Convention.

The Board of Directors of the Chamber of Commerce, it was announced yesterday, has postponed action on a proposal that it seek to obtain the Democratic National Convention in 1920 for St. Louis. The directors at their meeting Friday did not consider the convention, merely deciding to delay consideration of it. They do not meet again until next Friday.

The experience of the committee which went to Washington a week ago in an effort to get the Republican National Convention was that the lateness of the start of the St. Louis convention campaign had barred St. Louis, Chicago having more than a majority of the members of the committee pledged.

While it is known that the Democratic National Committee really prefers to have the convention in St. Louis, it is thought there is little probability that it will send it here unless a delegation attends the committee meeting in Washington Jan. 10 and guarantees at least that the convention expenses, approximately $40,000, will be paid by business interests of the city.

San Francisco has been conducting an active canvass of the committee for more than a month, seeking pledges of members to vote to have the convention there. Because of the great distance of San Francisco from the more populous parts of the country it is not considered probable that that city will be chosen. Detroit and Cleveland are seeking it, however, and unless there is prompt action from St. Louis, either might be decided upon.

Paul V. Bunn, secretary of the Chamber of Commerce, said yesterday that the Chamber had not been solicited by any Democrats to begin a convention campaign, and that the directors had merely postponed action, no decision being reached either for or against seeking the convention.

ST. LOUIS APPROACHES NORMAL FUEL STATUS

Passenger Trains Will Return to Their Usual Schedules Tomorrow Morning.

With the restoration of normal passenger train service tomorrow morning, St. Louis will approach a normal status of fuel. Industries which shut down or curtailed operations for lack of coal will be provided as rapidly as dealers can handle their orders. The skip-stop system is still in use on the United Railways lines, and Chairman Greenlaw of the Regional Coal Committee said yesterday that he had no announcement to make as to a change. The street car company favors the continuance of this system, but the public has shown opposition to it, in spite of the fact that it saves times for the majority of passengers. It was authorized in this case strictly as a coal-saving measure.

The restoration of full train service in the southwestern transportation districts will become effective at 12:01 a. m. tomorrow, according to announcement of Regional Director Bush. Train service east and north of St. Louis will also be restored within the next few days, the Illinois Central having announced that it will return to its former schedules tomorrow.

The cut in train service, which was supposed to be one-third, eliminated some of the fastest trains, and the result has been manifest the past week in overcrowded trains and demoralized schedules.

Householders are still asked to limit the heating of homes to a temperature of 68 degrees, and limitations will still be applied to the use of heat and light in large buildings, and to illuminated signs and billboards. Those restrictions will probably remain until the incoming supply of coal becomes normal in quantity.

Texas Suffrage Law Upheld.

AUSTIN, Tex., Dec. 13.—The constitutionality of the Texas woman primary suffrage act was upheld today by the third court of civil appeals in affirming a decision of a lower court.

SAYS HE DOESN'T LIKE WORK

In defense against his wife's charges that he did not support her, Angelo Rubano, 5118 Whitlow street, a barber, told Police Judge Ittner yesterday that he did not like to work.

"It is too monotonous," he said.

"I'll send you to a place you may have to work," the Judge said, as he fined him $100.

$9000 NEEDED FOR POST-DISPATCH FESTIVAL FUND

Only Ten Days Remain for Raising of Money Necessary to Take Santa Claus to Needy Homes.

QUARTERS, DIMES AND NICKELS WELCOME

Tiny Tims Again Will Be Cared For — Tickets for Coliseum to Be Issued at Four Points.

The Tiny Tims of St. Louis are to have a part in the Post-Dispatch Christmas Festival as usual. The little shut-ins who rarely get to go anywhere are especially invited to the big Christmas entertainment at the Coliseum in the forenoon of Dec. 25.

For nearly nine years Miss Sara Elizabeth Edwards has devoted her time at the Christmas season to bringing happiness to the homes of the Tiny Tims of the city. Scores of letters are received from these little friends and all letters are personally answered by Miss Edwards. The children have grown to feel that the spirit expressed by the Post-Dispatch Festival on Christmas day is the brightest spot in their year's experience.

Special seats are always arranged for lame children and a special committee assists each child to enjoy the Festival to the fullest. Every lame child in the city is invited to write to Miss Edwards, care of the Post-Dispatch, at once, giving address very plainly. Any person knowing of a lame child is invited to notify Miss Edwards so arrangements may be made to give that child his share of the Christmas happiness.

$9000 Must Be Raised.

It is the desire of the Post-Dispatch Christmas Festival Association to take Santa Claus to all the poor children of the city on Christmas day and to attain this the young women workers who are distributing the subscription lists are lending their every effort. Only 10 days remain until Christmas and during that time at least $9000 must be raised by the committee, so rapid work and unusual effort will be necessary.

The members of the Festival Committee feel sure that if all persons who willingly would give a quarter, a dime or a nickel to send Santa Claus to the poor children this year, understood that such offerings were not too small, but on the contrary, were especially wanted, if more cannot be afforded, the Festival Fund could be made up easily.

No money will be asked for or accepted by the young women workers. If lists, and the contributions made through them cannot be conveniently sent to the Post-Dispatch, a telephone request will bring a representative authorized to receive and receipt for the lists and the money.

Contributions other than through these lists may be made by direct remittance to the Post-Dispatch, or may be taken to the cashier's window in the business office of the Post-Dispatch, or to Festival headquarters at 1101-03 Olive street. In the window at headquarters is a display of the gifts which will go to the poor children at the Coliseum Christmas day, and of which 40,000 have been arranged for.

At the meeting of the Executive Committee last Tuesday it was decided that all dinners in baskets for poor families would be delivered this year. Baskets will be supplied to certain organizations which wish to make the deliveries to the families in which they are interested, and the Festival Association will engage trucks and send workers to deliver all others. It is the plan of the committee to distribute nearly 1200 baskets this season.

Packing of the baskets will begin the Monday before Christmas in the building at the northwest corner of Eleventh and Olive streets, under the direction of Mrs. A. H. Sippy, airman of the Basket Packing ommittee. Baskets this year will ntain virtually the same articles in former years, including a peck potatoes, onions, apples, candy, chicken, bread, soup, tomatoes, beans, peaches, sugar, rice and coffee. Each basket will be made up according to the number in the family for which it is intended, and will contain enough provisions for a bountiful Christmas dinner.

Santa Claus will be at the Coliseum on Christmas morning with all his coworkers, and has promised that no child in St. Louis shall be disappointed in the big Coliseum festival, and the gifts which will be distributed to each child as he enters the building. The Coliseum tickets will be distributed from several places simultaneously this year instead of from one central point, as in former years. This will do away with the customary "crush" that takes place when the tickets are given out at one place, and will save children time and carfare in calling for the tickets. R. H. Abeken, chairman of the Ticket Distribution Committee, announces that the hour for distribution will be 2 o'clock on Wednesday afternoon, Dec. 24. Four depots will be arranged for—one at Garrison and Lucas, Public Bath, No. 4, for the colored children, and the other three for white children at Twenty-third and O'Fallon, Seventh and Soulard and Tenth and Carr.

As in former years, transportation to and from the Coliseum will be furnished free to the guests of the festival by the United Railways Co., and the usual fare slips will be attached to the festival tickets.

Nelson Cunliff, who has charge of the Coliseum entertainment, states that a larger pageant than has ever before been presented will be given, portraying characters from Mother Goose rhymes. Children from the different playgrounds of the city will enact the parts. Mere sightseers will be excluded to make room for all the children.

Coliseum Doors Open at 9.

The Coliseum doors will be opened promptly at 9 o'clock and closed at 10:20 sharp. The entertainment will begin at 10:30 and will be finished in time for the little guests to reach their homes to eat their Christmas dinners.

As stated in Friday's Post-Dispatch, the Festival Association will not be able as in previous years to print the names of every individual contributor to the fund, but will make acknowledgement of the gross amount contributed by the employes of firms and business establishments under one heading. A special copy will be made of each list which contains more than five or six contributors, and this copy will be mailed to the donors with the personal thanks of the Festival Committee and may be posted on the bulletin boards of the establishment for reference. Places which subscribed "100 per cent" lists are requested to make mention of that fact when sending in the money.

Tickets for Christmas Entertainment to Be Issued at Four Points

WEDNESDAY afternoon, Dec. 24, at 2 o'clock, the tickets will be distributed for the poor children of the city by the Post-Dispatch Christmas Festival Association. This year, instead of having one central distributing station, the following various locations will be utilized, and each child who desires to obtain a ticket is instructed to to call at the place nearest his or her home. The distribution points will be at:

Garrison and Lucas—Public Bath No. 4 (colored).

Twenty-third and O'Fallon—Public Bath No. 3 (white).

Seventh and Soulard—Public Bath No. 2 (white).

Tenth and Carr—Public Bath No. 1 (white).

Carondelet Association Nominations.

The Carondelet Improvement Association will have its annual election of officers Jan. 13. The candidates nominated are: President, Oliver T. Remmers; first vice president, M. E. Gardner and C. R. Watkins; second vice president, John Ellmers; secretary, C. W. Rippstein and H. L. Schall; treasurer, Joseph Metzler and Al Michel; directors, six to be elected, Jonas Bloch, H. A. Chapin, C. E. Goltermann, James Hardie, F. W. Hoertel, E. W. McBratney, Herman Paule, Taylor Stith, John H. Uthoff and H. G. Van Aller.

Drummers to Give Dance Dec. 27.

The Southeast Missouri Drummers Association will give its annual midwinter dinner dance at the Riverview Club Saturday evening, Dec. 27, following its business meeting at the Marquette Hotel in the afternoon. Arnold Waechtler, cellist, Ruth Schmidt, toe dancer, and Mildred Leach, comic reader, have been engaged for the occasion. Automobiles and busses will carry those who are not provided with machines from the hotel to the club.

Is Acid-Stomach Sapping Your Strength?

Have you any idea of the great number of ailments that are directly traceable to Acid-Stomach? Few people have. When they are bilious, have severe headache, or an attack of indigestion, rheumatism, lumbago or sciatica; or when they begin to feel run down and are nervous and mentally depressed; or have dizzy spells, vertigo and pains around the heart—little do they think it may have its origin in an Acid-Stomach.

You know how it is with acid-mouth—how the acid which is created as a result of fermentation of particles of food lodged around the gums, literally eats through the enamel of the teeth and causes them to decay.

How, then, can anyone expect to "feel right" when Acid-Stomach is making digestion more and more difficult, causing food to sour and ferment in the intestinal tract, filling the system with poisons?

And then there are thousands—yes, millions—of people who, without having any well defined ailment, are always complaining. They can't say exactly what is the matter with them. All they can tell you is that they "don't feel right," are "all in, tired, sickly."

Is it any wonder that there are so many people who, while not downright sick, show plainly in face, figure and action that they are anything but well? They are despondent, weak, listless, unfit. Aches and pains in practically every part of the body. Lacking in physical strength and mental vigor. Little or no inclination to be up and doing. Just dragging out a weary existence.

A wonderful remedy now makes it possible to get rid of Acid-Stomach without the slightest discomfort. It is called EATONIC—a compound in tablet form—good to eat—like candy. EATONIC brings amazingly quick relief from bloat, heartburn, belching, food-repeating, sour, gassy stomach and the pains of indigestion. It makes the stomach cool and comfortable—keeps it sweet and strong. You can eat what you like and digest your food in comfort without fear of distressing after effects. It puts you on the road to bounding, vigorous, vibrant health.

Thousands upon thousands of people who have used it are enthusiastic in its praise. They say they never dreamed that anything could bring them such quick relief.

Every druggist is authorized to guarantee that if EATONIC fails in any way he will refund your money.

REPUBLICANS WOULD CHANGE WARD LINES

Would Cut Up Downtown Divisions and Create New Ones Farther Out.

The Republican City Committee has prepared for introduction in the Board of Aldermen a bill changing the ward boundary lines of several wards to make more nearly equal the number of voters in each ward. The changes proposed would do away with the Fourth and Ninth Wards, as they now are, and would create new wards of those numbers in outlying districts.

As a reason for the changes, members of the committee say that shifting population which has caused downtown wards, formerly containing many voters, to have a very small vote, while outlying wards, formerly sparsely settled, have been built up. It is impossible because of the large populations in some wards for the committeemen to look after the party interests properly, they say.

It is proposed to divide the Fourth Ward, which runs from the river to Twenty-second street and from Carr street to Tyler street, between the Third, Fifth and Eighteenth Wards, which adjoin it. The Ninth, extending from the river to Dolman street and from Arsenal street to Trudeau street, is to be divided between the Eighth, Tenth and Fourteenth Wards.

A new Fourth Ward is to be created from parts of the First, Twensixth and Twenty-seventh Wards in the northwestern part of the city, and a new Ninth Ward from parts of the Twelfth and Twenty-fourth Wards in the southwestern part of the city.

Committeemen said yesterday that the changes had no political significance, and that the boundaries of the congressional, legislative, judicial and justice of the peace districts would not be altered. Several committeemen will be deprived of membership on the committee, however, as the wards they represent will be changed to become parts of wards represented by other committeemen. Among them will be Nicholas A. Polito, Republican, and James P. Miles, Democrat, in the Fourth, and William Troll, Republican, and William Kaiser, Democrat, in the Ninth. However, Troll is not now a resident of the Ninth Ward, although a committeeman.

JESS WILLARD ARRAIGNED ON WOOD PROFITEERING CHARGE

Former Heavyweight Champion Is Released by Federal Commissioner on $500 Bond.

By the Associated Press.

KANSAS CITY, Mo., Dec. 13.—Jess Willard, former heavyweight pugilistic champion, was ararigned before O. Q. Claflin Jr., United States Commissioner for Kansas, in the Federal Building in Kansas City, Kan., today on a charge of profiteering in the sale of cordwood from his farm near Lawrence, Kan. His preliminary hearing was set for Jan. 3, 1920, and he was released on $500 bond.

Willard surrendered voluntarily today to O. T. Wood, United States Marshal for Kansas. He brought with him two attorneys, Edward T. Riling, of Lawrence, and Albert O. Justice, of Osage City, Kan. His attorneys entered no plea, merely asking that a date for his preliminary hearing be set.

A Federal warrant for Willard, charging violation of the Lever act, was issued late yesterday by Fred Robertson, United States District Attorney for Kansas.

Record-Giving

IT is an easy matter for those who use a Victrola Record Gift Certificate, as shown in the illustration.

So many people are not sure as to what Records to choose for gifts. One may make a mistake and present numbers already in the home. The sensible solution, then, is to give one of these certificates, filled out to the amount desired, and redeemable at any time after Christmas.

Music Salon—Sixth Floor

Every pianist covets the wonderful tone and easy playing action of the Grand Piano.

The Grands illustrated stand at the top among pianos of high character. There are no better instruments made than the Sohmer, Kurtzmann, and Acoustigrand.

These wonderful instruments have attained their present standing through their own merits. One of them, chosen for Christmas delivery would, no doubt, make the entire family happy.

We urge you to make your selection immediately, because of the unusual shortage of fine instruments at this time throughout the country.

CORONER'S JURY HOLDS DOCTOR IN DEATH OF WOMAN

A Coroner's jury yesterday held Dr. Thomas J. Kemp of 1225 North Grand avenue, in connection with the death of Mrs. Margaret F. Hardy, 28 years old, 5308 Wells avenue, who died Dec. 10 as the result of an operation. The jury's verdict was homicide.

Dr. Kemp was held by a Coroner's jury Dec. 3 as an accessory in connection with the death of Mrs. Mary Wiedmann of 3418 Semple avenue, at which time Mrs. Mary Merrifield, 6200 Ellen avenue, a midwife, was held as principal, in a similar case.

The chief witness at the inquest yesterday was a negro maid who was employed at the Hardy home before Mrs. Hardy's death. The Hardys had two children, 5 and 2 years, and the maid testified that Mrs. Hardy said they could not afford a larger family. She told of seeing Dr. Kemp there, and of taking money to him.

Program, Expected to Include One or More Nationally Prominent Speakers, Will Be Completed Tomorrow.

The program for the nonpartisan mass meeting to be held in the Odeon Thursday evening to adopt resolutions urging the speedy ratification of the peace treaty, including the league of nations covenant, either with or without reservations, will be completed tomorrow afternoon at a joint meeting at the Noonday Club of the committees which have been making the arrangements.

It is expected that addresses by one or more speakers of national prominence will be arranged. There will be short addresses by several St. Louis speakers and a patriotic musical program.

Announcements of the meeting will be made in churches today, and lodges, clubs and civic and labor organizations which meet before Thursday will be asked to announce it.

The evening of the meeting bombs will be fired near the Odeon to call attention to the gathering. Two thousand small flags have been provided for distribution to the audience. The boxes have been reserved for women and their escorts, but will be occupied by the first arrivals, none having been reserved for specific persons.

Among the 300 vice presidents appointed for the mass meeting, who have been asked to wear badges designating their positions are:

It Was

For eighteen months published by the Army in France as "the official Newspaper of the American Expeditionary Forces."

It Is

Now published every week in Washington, D. C. by many of the men who published it in France. Thirty of them are now engaged in the work of editing, writing, collecting news, drawing cartoons, publishing and distributing the famous newspaper. It is no longer "official" in any sense of the word, is not under Army control, but is strictly INDEPENDENT of everybody except its readers.

These readers include thousands of men who served in France, other thousands who wore the O. D. in America, and a rapidly growing list of whole hearted American citizens, friends and relatives of the men who served, business men, professional men, employers and employees, men and women in the public service and in every walk of life.

It Will Be

A Great Independent National Newspaper for all Americans. The enthusiasm with which it is being received since it moved from Paris to Washington assures it an enormous national circulation. At the present rate of growth, it will soon be beyond the expectations of the men who made it in France and handled its circulation of 520,000 copies weekly.

It requires no introduction. It is 100% American. Everybody wanted it during the war. Everybody wants it now, after they find it is being published over here. All the family read it, and they all feel just like you do about it.

Grandmother Washes the BlueBird Way

Grandmother Boylan has a large family and a large weekly wash. Eight people live in the house on North Twentieth Street: Grandmother, Grandfather, one daughter, four sons, and a little granddaughter.

The weekly wash is particularly large because one son works in the shipyards, the little girl likes to make mudpies, and each one of the eight wants plenty of clean clothes and linen.

Grandfather helps on washdays. In two hours he, Grandmother and BlueBird do the washing and the wringing. When it is finished neither he nor she is tired, and Grandmother says that the clothes are cleaner and whiter than they were when she washed them by hand on a rub-board.

She and Grandfather are so enthusiastic about BlueBird that several of their neighbors have bought it on their recommendation.

BlueBird is at work daily at the BlueBird Home — 303 North Seventh Street. You can see it there, or in your own home doing your own washing, if you prefer. All demonstrations are free.

You can put BlueBird into your home for a few dollars, and complete the payment in convenient monthly sums.

GERALDINE FARRAR
in "FLAME OF THE DESERT"

by Charles Logue
with Lou Tellegen
A Reginald Barker Production

She dared not tell him that she loved him—He dared not tell her that she might!

An Englishwoman in love with an Egyptian—a Christian in the arms of Mohamet!—the age-old barriers of race and religion forgotten for one fleeting moment in the eternity of a fierce and forbidden embrace—and then, midnight and revolution against England under the shadow of the Pyramids.

If ever there was a great photoplay adapted to the temperament and talent of the fabulous Geraldine Farrar, it is "The Flame of the Desert," her latest, greatest Goldwyn triumph. With Lou Tellegen for an Anthony she blends into the inscrutable mystery of Egypt like another Cleopatra. And yet—well, what should a daughter of the English nobility do in the circumstances? What did she do? Either way you guess, you're wrong!

Did You Ever See Such Photography?

Goldwyn photography is so crystal-clear that you probably would not notice it if we did not call it to you attention!

Poor photography is noticed because it intrudes on the picture—Goldwyn photography isn't because it doesn't!

That is just another tremendous Goldwyn distinction, that the photography must be so perfect that the camera is forgotten!

The Best Amusement Organization Ever on Tour Coming to the Shubert-Jefferson St. Louis Week of December 28

IN ANNOUNCING GUY BATES POST as the best amusement attraction ever placed on tour, I am only voicing the opinion of the critics of New York, Chicago, San Francisco and every other city in which this well-known star has presented "THE MASQUERADER", not in past seasons, BUT RIGHT NOW.

THE SAME EXCELLENT COMPANY—THE ONE THAT HAS PRESENTED THIS ATTRACTION SINCE IT BEGAN—the same wonderful scenic equipment—with its massive, double revolving stages—its three mechanical crews—its triple electric equipment and inimitable resources that requires three mammoth cars to transport, will be presented at the Shubert-Jefferson the week of Dec. 28th.

WHEN NEGOTIATIONS BEGAN to bring this organization to ST. LOUIS, Mr. Peter McCourt, manager of the Broadway, Denver, was appointed by The Middle and Far West Theaters' Committee to visit Chicago, where MR. POST was then playing, and see what arrangements could be made to have MR. POST make a Transcontinental tour—RETAINING HIS ORIGINAL CAST AND COMPLETE PRODUCTION. Commenting on the performance, Mr. McCourt reported as follows:

"I AM MORE THAN REPAID FOR VISITING CHICAGO TO SEE MR. POST'S WONDERFUL PERFORMANCE—I HONESTLY BELIEVE IT TO BE THE MOST FINISHED AND IMPRESSIVE THEATRICAL ENTERTAINMENT, AS WELL AS THE MOST COMPLETE I HAVE EVER SEEN, OR THAT HAS EVER MADE A TRANSCONTINENTAL TOUR."

MAIL ORDERS WILL BE FILLED NOW, when accompanied by check or Postoffice Money Order, together with self-addressed, stamped envelope (to avoid error) in order received—add 10% war tax and the BOX OFFICE WILL BE OPEN FOR SALE OF SEATS THURSDAY, DECEMBER 25.

PRICES WILL RANGE FROM $2.50 on the first floor to $1.00 in the gallery, for the night and New Year's and Saturday matinee performances—THE POPULAR WEDNESDAY MATINEE prices will range from $2.00 on the first floor to 50c in the gallery—NEW YEAR'S EVE prices will range from $3.50 on the first floor to $1.00 in the gallery.

TELEPHONE ORDERS AND SEAT RESERVATIONS WILL BE ENTIRELY SUSPENDED DURING MR. POST'S ENGAGEMENT. THE FIRST MAIL ORDERS AND FIRST AT THE BOX OFFICE WILL HAVE FIRST CHOICE OF SEATS, and we earnestly suggest early application.

Respectfully,
GEORGE H. LIGHTON,
Manager the Shubert-Jefferson Theater.

M. A. A. WILL ABOLISH LOCKER SYSTEM JAN. 15

Liquor Can Be Stored by Members Only in Their Rooms, When Prohibition Comes.

The Missouri Athletic Association yesterday sent a letter to its members notifying them that the maintenance of storage and service lockers for intoxicants owned by members would be discontinued Jan. 15 next, the day before national prohibition will become effective. The notification said this action was taken because of a ruling of the Department of Justice that under national prohibition the locker system would be illegal.

At the association office it was said that 421 of the 3000 members have liquor stored in lockers and that the amount stored there is about 1000 cases. An officer of the club said it would be assumed that members living at the club and having rooms there would be permitted to keep intoxicants in their rooms, but could not have it served to them elsewhere in the club.

District Attorney Hensley said he had made no official ruling on any phase of the Volstead enforcement act as applied to national prohibition, but had told a club member the law probably would be construed to forbid continuance of the locker system.

Assistant District Attorney Whit was asked by the Post-Dispatch if, under the prohibition law, a resident club member could keep intoxicants in his room. He replied that the Volstead law, which will enforce national prohibition, had not yet been construed and he would not express any opinion on this point.

Inquiry at other clubs showed that no notices of locker discontinuance have been sent out.

The locker storage system was started last May, and the demand for space was so great that in June the M. A. A. leased the basements of two adjoining buildings for locker space. Each member was limited to 10 cases. In addition to the large storage lockers each member availing himself of the service had a smaller locker in the grill room. There was a fee of $10 a year for the large lockers and $1 a year for the small ones. Before wartime prohibition became effective the club sold its own stock of whisky to members at $36 a case. It now offers to pack whisky which members will remove from lockers for a fee of $1 a case.

SHIFTING RATES OF EXCHANGE CAUSING CONCERN IN EUROPE

French and Italians Accuse Britain of Deliberate Financial Manipulations to Squeeze Them.

U. S. ALSO SHARES IN ILL-FEELING

But Nations Believe America Alone Can Bring Relief—Riot of Extravagance Continues in England.

By JAMES M. TUOHY,
London Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch.

LONDON, Dec. 13.—Although the question of international exchange contains within itself the germs of serious international trouble, financial circles here complain that Governments are showing no adequate sense of its urgency and gravity.

The fluctuations of continental exchanges within the last week have been of the wildest description. Yesterday the franc exchange here fluctuated 3 points, from 42 to 45, to the pound sterling. The Belgian franc was better at from 40 to 41 because of the rumored loan of £50,000,000, arranged by private financiers here in consideration of certain important concessions.

The Italian lire ranged from 50 to 51, while the mark touched 198. On the other hand as against the dollar the pound fell to 3.78⅞, its lowest record. This condition of things is rousing strong anti-British feeling in France and Italy, England being roundly charged with deliberately squeezing these countries dry, now that she has got what she wanted out of the war. Needless to say, America does not escape ill-feeling either, but in her case it is modified by the belief that she is the only country from which measures of relief can be expected.

Wave of Extravagance.

Lord Swaything, head of the house of Samuel Montague & Co., just returned from America, tells the Daily Mail the deadlock can be removed only by international agreement on the part of the Governments concerned. It had been said to him in New York:

"Look at the fall in sterling exchange. What does your Government propose to do?"

To which he had replied:

"Look at the rise in dollar exchange. What does your Government propose?"

In the meantime, despite ministerial appeals being made to the public for economy, England is indulging in the wildest riot of extravagance. Newspapers are publishing daily stories of the purchases of luxury articles at enormous sums for Christmas gifts. Business being done in the West End of London makes even shopkeepers gasp with amazement at the lavishness with which the shoppers hand over money for jewels and clothes at the present unprecedented prices.

Never has there been such a block of expensive automobiles in London streets or on English roads. Cars not only sell for anything from 50 to 100 per cent more than in pre-war days, but gas costs more than 72 cents a gallon.

Race tracks have never been so numerously patronized or betting on such high scale recorded, not only by regular followers of the races, but by the stay-at-home public who never see horse races, actuated merely by the growth of the gambling spirit. Every form of luxury enjoyment is cultivated, apparently regardless of cost.

Then, just as the working classes were settling down to work after their orgy of strikes, and when manufactures for export are the very life blood of the nation, the Government decrees four days' holiday at Christmas, during which all work and business of every description will be suspended throughout the land.

Experience shows in effect that these four days will be expanded into a full week before anything approaching normal working activities will be resumed. This suspension, moreover, was arranged with the full knowledge that the miners are threatening a general strike for February, a strike possibly involving the other two members of the three big unions—the railways and transport workers.

Lord Rothermere has been publishing a series of articles, reinforced by examples and statistics, pointing out the inevitable ruin to which Governmental and private waste is rushing the country, but his voice is like one crying in the wilderness.

Paper Currency Inflated.

Nothing is being done in the direction of thrift, paper currency being inflated at will, and the war loans being kept up to the stipulated figure by means of borrowed money.

Lord Rothermere says American business men are already realizing the adverse effect on their export trade of the high price of the dollar. He does not admit that sterling has fallen, as in most countries its value has risen, but "meantime the dollar has risen to a temporary giddy height."

At present, he adds, "American politicians scracely grasp anything outside their own country. They do not take a sufficiently world-wide view politically or commercially worthy of their great country or its traditions."

Rothermere's remedy is: "Suspension of international payments among the allies and those neutrals who can and wish to be included for three years for reproductive imports, such as machinery and raw materials, this suspension to be under Government guarantees. The Governments of the exporting countries would guarantee their exporters against loss in the agreement with the governments of importing countries, who would guarantee that an arrangement be made at the proper time by their importers."

15,258 TRAFFIC MOTOR TRUCKS SOLD

Contracts Placed at Convention Following Speech—Deal Involves $21,284,910.

Orders were placed for 15,258 Traffic trucks in 22 minutes by 460 motor truck distributers and dealers from throughout the United States and Canada who met in St. Louis last week in the annual convention of the Traffic Motor Truck Corporation.

As the price of the Traffic truck, f. o. b. factory at St. Louis, is $1395, the contracts that were made for the 1920 output of that company during the convention represent an investment of $21,284,910.

The convention lasted for two days, Thursday and Friday.

Unique Sales Plan.

The sale of the 1920 production of trucks was conducted by T. C. Brandle, vice president of the Traffic Truck Corporation, by a unique plan. At the close of the business session held in the main dining room of Hotel Jefferson Thursday night, a large blackboard was placed on a stage which was so arranged that the names of dealers, their place of residence and the number of trucks they wanted to order could be written in with chalk. Brandle was the last of a list of speakers, including City Counselor Charles H. Daues.

Others were Guy Wilson, president of the Traffic Truck Corporation; W. C. D'Arcy, president of the D'Arcy Advertising Co.; Hugh H. C. Weed, vice president of the Carter Carburetor Co. of St. Louis; A. N. Stanley, manager of the St. Louis branch of the Fisk Rubber Co.; Albert Gloetzner, president of the Covert Gear Co. of Detroit; A. C. Chambers, sales manager of the Russell Motor Axle Co. and Harry H. Hawke, general sales manager of the Traffic Truck Corporation.

Rush for Orders.

Brandle after a short address in which he told of tests the Traffic truck had been put through during the past year and the need of truck dealers devoting their efforts toward the betterment of roads called for dealers' orders. There was a rush for the blackboard, many of the dealers voicing their requests, ranging in lots from 10 to 1000, from more advantageous positions such as the tops of tables and backs of chairs.

Frank McDonald, a dealer from Chattanooga, Tenn., told the convention of his success in operating itinerant grocery stores in the suburbs of that city on Traffic trucks. Within a year's time he said his business has grown to such an extent that it keeps four trucks busy. The bodies of the trucks are equipped with shelves and carry $500 worth of groceries each, making trips daily.

The convention closed with a banquet and frolic in the main dining room of the Hotel Jefferson Friday night.

Of the $21,284,910 worth of trucks contracted for, Roy A. Hillstrom, city salesmanager, said nine St. Louis dealers had contracted for $1,500,000 worth of the total.

Rupture Kills 7,000 Annually

Seven thousand persons each year are laid away—the burial certificate being marked "Rupture." Why. Because the unfortunate ones had neglected themselves or had been merely taking care of the sign (swelling) of the affliction and paying no attention to the cause. What are you doing? Are you neglecting yourself by wearing a truss, appliance, or whatever name you choose to call it? At best, the truss is only a makeshift—a false prop against a collapsing wall—and cannot be expected to act as more than a mere mechanical support. The binding pressure retards blood circulation, thus robbing the weakened muscles of that which they need most—nourishment.

But science has found a way, and every truss sufferer in the land is invited to make a FREE test right in the privacy of their own home. The PLAPAO method is unquestionably the most scientific, logical and successful self-treatment for rupture the world has ever known.

The PLAPAO PAD when adhering closely to the body cannot possibly slip or shift out of place; therefore cannot chafe or pinch. Soft as velvet—easy to apply—inexpensive. To be used whilst you work and whilst you sleep. No straps, buckles or springs attached.

Learn how to close the hernial opening as nature intended so the rupture CAN'T come down. Send your name today to PLAPAO CO., Block 557, St. Louis, Mo., for FREE trial Plapao and the information necessary.

HYDE MEN OPPOSE COLE CONVENTION PLAN

Objects to Proposal to Have Meeting Eliminate All but One Candidate.

By a Staff Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch.

KANSAS CITY, Mo., Dec. 13.—Supporters of Arthur M. Hyde of Trenton, candidate for the Republican nomination for Governor, in preliminary arrangements for the organization of a Hyde club in Kansas City next week, are preparing to oppose vigorously the proposal of Chairman W. L. Cole of the State Committee and other organization Republicans to turn the Republican State Convention for the selection of delegates at large to the national convention into a candidates' preferential convention in the interest of E. E. E. McJimsey of Springfield, Hyde's opponent.

The Hyde supporters also have declared they will oppose holding the convention in Springfield. It is understood the Hyde men will have no objection to Joplin as the convention city, but they do not want it in Springfield or St. Louis, in which the party organization is considered strong for McJimsey.

Cole within a few days will issue a call for a meeting of the State committee, which will call district conventions for the selection of delegates to the national convention, and for delegates to the State convention which will choose the four delegates at large to the national convention and elect a national committeeman.

The Republican organization proposes to try at the State convention to get around the State primary law, which requires that all candidates for State office be chosen at primaries.

The primary means a costly contest for candidates, and the organization is proposing that all candidates agree to place their names before the State convention. The one who receives the indorsement of the convention is to file for the primary, and the others are to withdraw, permitting the favored candidate to have the nomination without opposition. It is the intention to have the district conventions instruct the delegates to the State convention either for or against the candidates' preferential plan, and if a majority favor it the convention will become a candidates' convention.

While Hyde has made no statement for publication on the subject, his friends here are saying that he will refuse to agree to abide by convention action, and that he will insist that the party has no right to seek to get around the law by choosing a favorite candidate and attempting to throw the party organization support to him.

There are indications that the contest will become spirited, and that the scheme of the Republican organization may result in an insurgent movement in State politics which will seriously endanger the organization's control.

McJimsey's campaign is in such condition that he could well afford to go before a convention. He has the organization, or most of it with him, and in St. Louis he has been indorsed by the Republican City Committee, which will control the election of delegates to the State convention. He was first in the race and has been lining up county politicians all over the State.

Hyde appears as a candidate looking to the votes of the more progressive Republicans who are not identified with the party organization.

Strong Hyde clubs have been organized in Mercer and Grundy counties and the preparations for the Kansas City organization are extensive. In Kansas City McJimsey has the support of Thomas R. Marks, known as the Republican boss of Jackson county. There is considerable doubt, however, that Marks can control a majority of Kansas City, where the progressive vote was very large. The Kansas City Star is supporting Hyde.

ONE YEAR ago we foresaw a Fifty Per Cent Increase in the cost of Pianos, and to provide against it purchased the materials for thousands of the finest instruments that ever came under the hand of an artist—right now we have the largest retail stock of Pianos in the world, we are sure.

Today, while dealers must charge this additional Fifty Per Cent, we are saving you this amount and selling at the easiest terms in St. Louis—and accepting Liberty Bonds in part or full payment.

You can come a hundred miles, pay all your expenses, ship your Piano home—and still save $100 to $150 on the price you would pay your local dealer. This is happening every day!

But be warned! Many of the original 500 lot have been sold. Many thousand dollars' worth are going every day. Room after room is crammed with instruments that are sold and waiting delivery. You should not delay any longer. Store open evenings until Christmas.

RED CROSS HISTORY GIVES CHAPTER TO FRENCH CHILDREN

Their Bondage in Germany Described by Henry P. Davison in Official War Narrative of Society.

ACTIVITIES AT HOME AND ABROAD PICTURED

Women Found Time to Devote 2,000,000 Hours in 18 Months to Bandage Manufacture, He Says.

The official war history of the American Red Cross has been written by Henry P. Davison, chairman of the War Council, under the title of "The American Red Cross in the Great War." The McMillan Co. is publisher and the royalties go to the Red Cross.

There are chapters and paragraphs in this book which should be read to William Hohenzollern, as he rests from his wood-chopping in Holland. They would make him thankful that he was not responsible for the war—that, as he has often called upon his Gott to witness, it was forced upon him by his jealous enemies.

Such a chapter is the one on "The Children of France," the broken little creatures who passed from bondage in Germany back into la patrie, through the gateway of Evain les Bains.

Many Were Dying.

"By far the greater part were under 12 years of age. A great number were dying from tuberculosis, many far advanced. All were unutterably dirty, half-clad, worn to emaciation with sorrow and hunger and slavery. They were moribund. Germany could wring no more unpaid labor from them.

"One wisp of a girl, just turned 14, bore in her arms a year-old Boche baby. Another, only a little older, and marked with tuberculosis, had for three years worked 12 hours a day in a German coal mine. The files of Evain contain thousands of records, against the day when the world may know the depth of German iniquity.

"There was a band playing the Marseillaise, and the French and Belgian flags were waving. There was the Mayor and half the town crying welcome to them—welcome back to France—and still they did not smile."

There are chapters on Belgium, Italy, Rumania and Serbia and on the Tragedy of the East, with an outline of the relief work which the Red Cross, in each instance, was able to do.

Problems He Discussed.

The first half of the book tells of the problems of organization, finance, transportation and supplies, and of the division of the work between the soldier at the front and the soldier's family at home.

"I have been told," Davison writes, "that there were practically only two kinds of desertion from the American army: Men who deserted in France from their regiments at the rear in order to join regiments at the front, and men who deserted because of unhappy letters from home.

"The easiest way to keep the service man from being worried by unhappy letters was to make the letters happy. If home service in Italy was reflected in the victory on the Piave, home service in America gave an account of itself at Chateau Thierry and along the Meuse."

Of women's work of bandage manufacture, the writer says it has been estimated that 2,000,000 hours, or 230 years of labor, were given to this work in 18 months. "They stood for condensed housekeeping, foresworn frivolities, shortened lunch hours, night work volunteered by factory girls. Miles of material passed under their busy hands. Every month they put a 5¾-inch girdle of gauze around the world; they used 2,500,000 pounds of wool. Here was the most marvelous factory the world has ever known; it kept no hours and knew no payroll. The limit of its production was never reached."

Mayor Gave Men Whisky.

In the early days of the war, it is related, "the Mayor of a Western town presented each man of the town's draft quota with a bottle of whisky. The next station was a canteen town, where Red Cross women waited to welcome the troop train. When the Red Cross report of that visitation reached the War Department, the instant reaction was the brassard on the sleeve of every drafted man, and thenceforth it was a penitentiary offense to give or sell him intoxicants."

An incident of the sanitary branch of the service is the case of an army camp, which had a swamp beside it—"a swamp where the highly armored mosquito made merry, delivering malaria." To the army staff it was plain enough that the swamp spelled trouble in capital letters, unless it were promptly drained. Yet in the statutes there was a stubborn little law which forbade the improvement of private property at public expense. But there was no law to keep the Red Cross from doing the job, which it did at a cost of $7000.

RED CROSS HISTORY GIVES CHAPTER TO FRENCH CHILDREN

"The public health authorities and the Red Cross Bureau of Sanitation, recognizing in what we term 'social disease' a peril greater than tuberculosis, laid hold on it barehanded. There are 37 states that have made these ailments reportable, whereas at the beginning of the war there were but five. The program was to stamp this thing out at its source. The arm of military law is long. It reached into far villages that sent soldiers to the army, and the army lever to pry the truth from men is strong. The day is here when the distributors of sex poison, professional or otherwise, will be put where they can no longer foul the nation's life.

"The draft brought to light more bigamy than the law could ever punish. It brought one soldier face to face, in many a camp, with two wives and often with more. There were reunions in Red Cross camp headquarters of several families with only one head. It would take Solomon and Haroun-al-Raschid rolled into one to adjust, in these cases, the questions of insurance and allotment. The Red Cross director was not a Judge, but he was asked more than once to sentence a foolish soldier to matrimony.

Gaps Were Filled.

"In camp service it did not require searching to find the gaps. Other people found them; the Red Cross mission was to fill them. To get soap, brooms, medicine glasses and hot-water bottles for a hospital whose supplies were held up on a railroad siding; to provide a heater for heating liquids; to get screens for the ward patients; to rig up a building where junior officers could study nights; to provide entertainment for a delegation of Civil War veterans; to get a car for the Division Surgeon to go his rounds in when an epidemic was overhanging the camp; to hurry in a consignment of horse medicine out of the blue sky, in time to save the whole herd of sick and dying remounts from being sent to the horse cemetery; to find laundry tubs on 24 hours' notice for a quarantined regiment; to skirmish up quarters for a staff of nurses; and finally to get a flag to put on the coffin of a dead soldier on his last journey home, represent a few of the requirements, and not even a decimal part of the work accomplished."

Of the work done for the soldiers of allied nations, that described in the chapter on Belgium is an instance.

"It was a needy army, that Belgian army which helped the English to hold the Channel front, and it lived the life of a hunted animal. There were the abris and dugouts in the first line, wet and overcrowded; on the second line, about seven or eight miles back, some shelters and ruined buildings; and in the rear some new brick barracks where at intervals Belgian soldiers went when they did not die. 'It is not the bombs we are afraid of,' said a Belgian soldier, 'or even the shells when they have the location of our quarters; it is the bitter cold and the wet feet, and no place to go.' Many a hero took his day off, sleeping in a pigsty; and where there was a stove, the men were brought in to get warm beside it in detachments.

"A million francs was appropriated by the Red Cross; and together with the Belgian Minister of War and other representatives, a project was set on foot for eating huts and double tents, baths, moving pictures and reading rooms. The men themselves undertook to manufacture the furniture. In addition, the Red Cross gave a library fund, to furnish books for soldiers who had left engineering and law offices and technical schools, and who did not wish to die intellectually. It helped in the expansion of the canteen system, and it gave liberally to the Foyer du Soldat Belge—and if there ever was a soldat who was entitled to a foyer it surely was the soldat Belge."

Children's work, the navy, nursing, and disabled soldiers are in the record of achievement in the United States. The book contains 40 illustrations, the frontispiece being an etching by Joseph Pennell of the National Red Cross headquarters in Washington. One of the photographs shows a Red Cross rally in the Coliseum ruins in Rome, on the first anniversary of America's entrance into the war.

Higbee Postmaster Decorated by Government Had Been Called "Miss."

A statement in last Sunday's edition of the Post-Dispatch was that "Miss May W. Spurling, postmaster at Higbee, Mo.," had been awarded the distinguished service pin for selling between Nov. 3 and Dec. 6 that office's allotment of Treasury savings certificates, has brought a communication of which the following is a part:

"If you could see my three big Democratic sons and my 250 pounds you might change your mind about my being a 'Miss.'

"(Mr.) MAY W. SPURLING, P. M."

Spurling's sales of securities in the period were $7000. Higbee has about 1200 population.

CHILD LABOR INCREASES

Willful Violation of Law and Laxity of Courts Given as Reason.

SYRACUSE.—Child labor employment appears to be increasing rather than decreasing, State Factory Inspector J. F. Tewey told nearly 1000 delegates to the State Industrial Congress here. The increase, according to Mr. Tewey, exists because child labor is cheap and permits unscrupulous employers to make a better profit. Contributing factors are: laxity of courts in suspending sentence on men prosecuted for violations of the Child Labor Law, and lack of jurisdiction outside city limits by inspectors.

ONLY 1.8 PER CENT OF GASSED SOLDIERS DIED

Director of Chemical Warfare Service Tells Why Few Such Casualties Became Fatalities.

A recitation and elucidation of his statements that gas warfare is more humane than the warfare of rifles and grenades and big guns, and a prediction that in any future war gas will be an important factor has been sent to the Post-Dispatch by Lieutenant-Colonel Amos A. Fries, Acting Director of the Chemical Warfare Service, U. S. A., who was in charge of a recent demonstration of gas warfare in Forest Park. A part of his letter is here quoted:

"It is well for the American people to realize right now that gas warfare is not the horrible thing that it was branded for several years in the newspapers. The American will naturally and properly say why, then, were so many stories of the horrible nature of gas warfare published during the war.

"There were three great reasons for those stories. In the first place the original gas used at Ypres in 1915 was chlorine, and chlorine is one of a group of gases known as suffocants—gases that cause death generally by suffocating the patient through spasms of the epiglottis and throat. That is the most agonizing effect produced by any gas.

Were Not Prepared.

"The second reason was unpreparedness. The English had no masks, no gas-proof dugouts nor any of the other paraphernalia that was later employed to protect against poisonous gas. Consequently, the death rate in the first gas attack at Ypres was very high, probably 35 per cent. As a matter of fact, every man who was close to the front line got a fatal dose and died. The only ones who escaped were those on the edges of the cloud of gas or so far to the rear that the concentration had become decreased below the deadly point.

"The third great reason was simply propaganda. It was good war propaganda to impress upon everybody the fact that the German was capable of using any means that he could develop in order to win a victory. He had no respect for previous agreements or ideas concerning warfare. This propaganda kept up the morale and fighting spirit of the allies and was thoroughly justifiable upon that score even when it led to wild exaggeration.

"But these reasons for calling gas warfare horrible have now all passed away, and the time is at hand when we must seek out the truth no matter where the search may lead us.

Phosgene Gas Is Deadly.

"Chlorine, which proved terribly deadly in the first attack, is actually one of the least poisonous of war gases and the easiest to guard against where there is any means of protection, while phosgene, whose use was begun several months later than chlorine, is five times as deadly as chlorine.

"Mustard gas, the king of present-day gases, is even more deadly than phosgene, and yet, in spite of these facts, the death rate fell from an estimated 35 per cent of those affected in that first attack at Ypres, to 2½ per cent during the last year of war. However, while the death rate fell, the number of gas casualties (those badly enough gassed to require medical treatment) increased tremendously. For instance, during the 12 months preceding the first use of mustard gas by the Germans on the night of July 12, 1917, the English had suffered severely from gas attacks. Their losses were large enough to make protection against gas an exceedingly important matter, and yet for the last 16 months of war when mustard gas was used the number of British casualties increased to nearly 14 times as many per month as they had been during the previous year.

Protective Methods Developed.

"Thus, while the gases themselves increased in deadliness and the total number of gas casualties increased tremendously, the death rate fell amazingly, due to the development of masks and other means of protection.

"The measure of humanity for any form of warfare is the percentage of deaths to the total number injured by the particular method of warfare under consideration.

"The official list of casualties in battle is compiled by the Surgeon-General's office, covering all cases reported up to Sept. 1, 1919, is 274,217. Of these 74,779, or 27 per cent, were gas casualties. Also of the above casualties 48,059 resulted in death, of which 1400 only were due to gas. From these figures it is readily deduced that while 23 per cent of all casualties from bullets and high explosives resulted in death, only 1.87 per cent of those wounded by gas resulted in death. That is, a man wounded on the battlefield with gas had 12 times as many chances of recovery as the man who was wounded with bullets and high explosives and yet many people continue to believe gas warfare inhuman."

HEATING ENGINEERS ELECTED

The December meeting of the St. Louis Chapter of the American Society of Heating and Ventilating Engineers was held Thursday night at the City Club. E. S. Hallett, chief engineer of the Board of Education, was re-elected as president; E. P. Bradley and L. Walter Moon were elected vice presidents; H. C. Tabler, treasurer, and Walter Klein, secretary.

Bradley, formerly a captain in the Construction Division of the United States Army, gave a talk on the work of that division, describing the large heating and ventilating plants, power plants and delousing plants which were designed under his supervision.

CITIZENSHIP IS TAUGHT TO ILLITERATE ALIENS

Italians, Syrians, Poles, Croatians, Serbians and Russians Enrolled in Classes.

Mrs. Frank de Garmo, 6186 Washington boulevard, a member of the Women's Chamber of Commerce, assisted by an organization of volunteer teachers and the Police Department, has undertaken to Americanize the foreign-born illiterates of St. Louis. Already she has classes in several wards and expects within a short time to have 25,000 pupils enrolled.

Her plan is to establish free schools in homes and industries so that the education of Uncle Sam's adopted nephews and nieces may be given to them without interfering with their home work or their labors in factories and other industrial plants.

There is no religion or politics in the plan. The pupils are taught primer civics and history and how to converse about their every-day affairs in English. The result will be good citizenship, Mrs. de Garmo believes. When the graduates are examined as to their qualification for naturalization they will not say that George Washington discovered America and that Christopher Columbus was the Mayor of Columbus, O. Mrs. de Garmo believes they will score 100 per cent in their answers.

Wards to Work Separately.

Her plan is to have each ward in the city take care of its own illiterates. Her first school was started a week ago at Westgate and Enright avenues, in the Twenty-eighth Ward, where she resides. The volunteer teachers there are Fred A. Southwick, 5800 Enright avenue; Robert Ryan, 5700 Clemens avenue, and Charles Nicholls, 5638 Kingsbury boulevard. The pupils are Italian shoemakers.

In gathering teachers Mrs. de Garmo has impressed upon them the fact that they owe it to their country to devote an hour each week to the work of fitting immigrants for citizenship. She has available a staff of several hundred college men and women who have signified their willingness to act as teachers.

Police Department Aids.

By making Chief O'Brien and Inspector Walsh active collaborators of the Americanization Department of the Women's Chamber of Commerce, Mrs. de Garmo has succeeded in enlisting the services of the police department. Questionnaires prepared by her have been placed in the hands of policemen for distribution, and they are canvassing their beats in search of residents who would benefit by the schooling.

Mrs. de Garmo seeks to make the education compulsory to a certain extent. She has obtained assurances from the Naturalization Examiner and the Immigration Inspector that foreigners who neglect to avail themselves of the opportunity to learn to speak English will find themselves undesirable applicants for citizenship.

There are several hundred pupils now being taught in various parts of the city. They are Italians, Syrians, Poles, Croatians, Serbians and Russians.

STORY OF SUPPOSED MURDER HERE STIRS MISSOURI TOWN

Visitor Returns Home With Story Founded on Alleged Effort to Awaken Sleeper.

The town of Adelia, Stoddard County, Mo., is stirred by a thrilling account of a supposed murder in St. Louis related by John Anderson Harper of that place, who said that he and his mother, Mrs. Louise Corvin, witnessed the affair.

According to Harper, he and his mother occupied rooms at the Empress Hotel, 3534 Olive street, the night of Oct. 23, and were awakened at 2:30 a. m. by the cries of a man in an adjoining room who was pleading with someone to quit beating him.

Peering through a keyhole, Harper said, he and his mother saw a young man struggling with three women and they were under the impression that a murder was being committed. Harper notified the police and detectives were sent to the house to investigate.

The detectives were informed by Mrs. Belle Jageman, keeper of the rooming house, that she had rented rooms to two men and two women and that the noise heard by Harper and his mother was made by the two women and one of the men trying to awaken the second man. She said there had been no fight, but that the sleeper expressed anger when the others insisted on getting him up. The couples had left together, she said. The detectives made no further investigation.

CHEER CLUB TO GIVE CHRISTMAS PROGRAM AT KOCH HOSPITAL

Gifts Will Be Distributed to Patients at Entertainment Dec. 22.

Patients in Koch Hospital, grown-ups, children and the two lepers, a white man and a Chinese, are to have a Christmas festival through the good offices of the Cheer Club, a war-time organization of Catholic women and girls that has taken up peace-time activities, including potential support of the Guardian Angels' Settlement, at 1029 Marion street.

Each of the lepers is to receive a special box, and a gift worth while is to be given every patient in the institution, Sunday afternoon, Dec. 22. Presentation of the songs and recitations will be given by members of the Cheer Club choir, of which Miss Adeline Weisert is soprano. Miss Catherine Ruoff is chairman of the committee having the affair in charge.

A similar affair for Mount St. Rose Hospital is to be given by the club Saturday, Jan. 3, the committee in charge being directed by Miss Zenobia Long as chairman. The club's Christmas contribution to the Guardian Angels' Settlement was in cash, with which the sisters in charge will buy and distribute baskets of foodstuffs and other necessaries among the poor in that district. Mrs. A. A. Cervantes is chairman of the Cheer Club and Miss Gertrude Moyle secretary.

MOVE TO KEEP DOWN EXPENSE OF SEAL SALE

Public Asked to Make Returns on Mailed Seals to Save Cost of "Following Up."

The St. Louis Tuberculosis Society is making an appeal to the public, through the newspapers, to assist in saving expense in connection with the sale of Red Cross Christmas seals now in progress by not making it necessary to send out follow-up letters on the "mail order" sale of the seals.

In the "mail order" sale 200 seals were sent by mail on approval to all persons on the regular mailing list of the society, with a stamped addressed envelope for the return of the money [illegible]ue of the seals or the seals the[illegible]ves, if the recipient cannot help [illegible] fight against tuberculosis here [illegible] buying the little stickers. Returns from this campaign have been fairly good, but a comparatively small percentage of those receiving the seals have made response as yet.

Officers Accountable.

Officers of the Tuberculosis Society say that the society is accountable for every seal sent out, as each represents 1 cent in actual money, and therefore it must locate the delinquent stickers if they are not sent back voluntarily by the persons receiving them. This will necessitate a follow-up letter, with additional cost of issuing such a letter, and will take just that much in actual cash away from the proceeds of the 1919 seal sale, all of which is to be used in conducting the fight against tuberculosis in St. Louis in 1920. The seal sale will close Dec. 24, and the follow-up letters will be sent out immediately thereafter, it is stated.

"If the recipients of the little seals will avail themselves of the stamped envelopes we have inclosed in each lot of seals and give us their response at once, the society will be saved a considerable sum of money," said Dr. John W. Day, president of the society.

Special Sale Tuesday.

Sales at Union Station, in the postoffices of the city and county and at drug and cigar stores will continue this week. There will be special sales in the office buildings Tuesday and at the Missouri Athletic Association on Thursday.

Mrs. Joseph Burgess, who has been in charge of sales at Union Station, has established a record for sales for any charity benefit at that place, having had her committee on hand regularly from 9 a. m. to 10 p. m. every day, including Sundays, since the campaign opened, and having collected the largest average amount per day. On the two blizzard days her receipts total $500.

Mrs. Crawford Duncan will be in charge of the seal and button sales in office buildings Tuesday, with a group of matrons and girls stationed in each of the building lobbies. At the Missouri Athletic Association Mrs. Philip A. Becker and a group of debutantes will sell the little stickers and Santa Claus buttons on Tuesday and Thursday evening.

JAPANESE ACTOR PLAYS ROLE OF U. S. DIPLOMAT

Performance Is Based on History of First American Relations With Islanders.

Correspondence of the Associated Press.

TOKIO, Nov. 19.—A famous Japanese actor, Koshiro, played the role of Townsend Harris, the first American Minister to Japan, in a play presented in the Japanese language in the Imperial Japanese Theater recently. Koshiro gave a faithful portrayal of America's first diplomat to Japan, having borrowed a portrait of Harris from the American Embassy.

The play was called "America-notsukai," or "The American Messenger," and was written by Okamuto Kido. The gate in the Azabu temple in Tokio, which housed the first diplomatic mission from the United States, was the background for the first scene of the play. Two Samurai, father and son, are on guard to protect Harris from attack. Suspicious characters lurk around, ready at the first opportunity to assassinate the stranger from overseas. One of them is caught by the Samurai and bound, but at Harris' request is set free. Koshiro's entrance by the temple gate, carrying the Stars and Stripes over his arm, was impressive.

The great topic of the day was whether Japan would open a port to foreign trade, and conservatives clashed with progressives on this point. This was shown in a scene in a teahouse in which a serving maid overhears a plot of two ruffians who are to lay in wait for the Minister on a nearby hill and kill him.

One scene is the approach to the bridge near the great temple of Sozoji, where the Minister was attended by an escort of Samurai. Just as they reach the place of ambush the teahouse maid rushes to the rescue, stops the retinue and delivers information about the plot. The two parties are engaged in a hand-to-hand fight. Townsend Harris, in his white dust coat, emerges from his palanquin pistol in hand. But his escort ends the fray before he is obliged to use his pistol. One of the protecting Samurai who is the lover of the teahouse maid is slain. In the final scene Harris is shown placing a bouquet of white lilies on the coffin of the slain young Samurai.

ILLINOIS WOMAN SEEKS SON

Youth of 16 Missing From His Home Since Oct. 10.

Mrs. Ida C. de Mond, 2022 Morgan avenue, Washington Park, Ill., has asked the Post-Dispatch to help her find her son, Elmer Eldridge Sims, who disappeared from his home Oct. 10 last.

The boy is 16 years old, 5 feet 7 inches, and weighed 135 pounds. His complexion is dark, and there is a mole on his right cheek. He has brown hair. When he disappeared he wore a dark green suit. He had a signet ring bearing the initial A. A reward has been offered by Mrs. de Mond for information concerning the whereabouts of the boy.

EVERYONE SHOULD DRINK HOT WATER IN THE MORNING

Wash away all stomach, liver, and bowel poisons before breakfast.

To feel your best day in and day out, to feel clean inside; no bile to coat your tongue and sicken your breath or dull your head; no constipation, bilious attacks, sick headache, colds, rheumatism or gassy, acid stomach, you must bathe on the inside like you bathe outside. This is vastly more important, because the skin pores do not absorb impurities into the blood, while the bowel pores do.

To keep these poisons and toxins well flushed from the stomach, liver, kidneys and bowels, drink before breakfast each day, a glass of hot water with a teaspoonful of limestone phosphate in it. This will cleanse, purify, and freshen the entire alimentary tract before eating more food.

Get a quarter pound of limestone phosphate from your pharmacist. It is inexpensive and almost tasteless. Drink phosphated hot water every morning to rid your system of these vile poisons and toxins; also to prevent their formation.

FIGHT ON TUBERCULOSIS TAKEN UP IN SCHOOLS

Plan Is to Establish Competition Between Pupils in Carrying Out Health Rules.

Believing the prevalence of underdeveloped and physically defective children is the weakest spot in the defense against tuberculosis, the Missouri Tuberculosis Association intends during 1920 to establish groups of crusaders in as many of the rural schools as possible. Red Cross Christmas seals, being sold all through December, will help to finance the work.

Competition enters into the success of the crusade.

Each child in a school becomes a contestant for the honor of knighthood. Badges are given with the different grades, and the beginner is provided with a chore-card, which contains the five health rules and the 11 chores which constitute the basis of the health-building game. In addition to marking his standing on his own record at home, the pupil is recorded prominently as to his standing on the various chores on a big record at the school.

Pages, Squires and Knights.

This modern health crusade has taken the common, homely facts of everyday health building, and woven them into a set of rules, designated as "chores," the faithful performance of which will make first a page, then a squire and then a knight of the child who undertakes them.

Here are the health rules:

1. Keep windows open or stay outdoors when you sleep, work, play or study. Breathe fresh air always, and through your nose. Take 10 deep breaths a day.

2. Eat wholesome food, including fruit, coarse breads, cereals and vegetables, besides potatoes, rice or beans. Chew thoroughly. Have three meals a day. Avoid fried food, soggy breads, pickles, spices, much meat, pie crust, cake, sweets, and all impure candy. Drink plenty of pure water and milk, and use your own cup. Drink no tea, coffee, alcoholic drinks, nor soft drinks containing injurious drugs. Do not smoke nor use tobacco in any form.

3. Make sure that everything you put into your mouth is clean. Wash your hands always before eating or handling foods. Wash your ears and neck, as well as your face, and clean your fingernails every day. Bathe your whole body twice a week at least, and shampoo frequently. Brush your teeth and rinse your mouth thoroughly every day, after breakfast and supper. Use dental floss. Have all cavities in your teeth filled. Consult a dentist twice a year.

4. Play and exercise every day in the open air. Sit and stand up straight. Have a regular time for attending to toilet and each need of your body. Whenever you cough or sneeze, turn your head aside and cover your mouth with your handkerchief. If you must spit, spit only where it will be removed before person or fly could touch it. Have a complete medical examination each year.

5. Get a long night's sleep. Get up smiling. Keep your clothes neat. Have a clean handkerchief. Brush your shoes before going to school. Keep your mind clean and cheerful. Be helpful to others.

Organization Nation-Wide.

The organization is nation-wide, and is being introduced by state organizations everywhere. One of the first pledges exacted of a crusader is that he or she will do nothing that may hurt the health of any other person; another promises to keep home or town clean.

The Health Crusade was adopted by many schools in Missouri last year, and will be carried further this year. It was presented to county school superintendents at the County Teachers' Institute and at the State teachers' meeting, and was indorsed.

There were more than 151,000 crusaders in Missouri schools last year, 50,000 of whom won the Knight Pennant Banneret from the national organization. Several schools entered the national torunament, and five won banners.

Value of Hot Lunches.

In Missouri, the Tuberculosis Association co-operates with the Home Demonstration Agent and with the boys' and girls' clubs of the Missouri College of Agriculture, in inducing the children to realize the value of hot lunches. In communities where there is a Home Demonstration agent talks are made in the schools, encouraging children to get together and cook some simple hot dish during the noon recess; where there is no agent, the clubs carry on this plan.

Children who are enrolled in the health crusade become crusaders in the line of civic service by selling Red Cross Christmas seals. Advancement is given in this branch, as in the other; and one who has sold 500 seals, or their equivalent in health bonds, will be awarded the Knight Banneret pin, a gold-plated badge, shield-shaped, with the double-barred cross embossed on its surface in red.

WOMEN TOLD ST. LOUIS LEADS IN ART IN BEAUTIFUL HOMES

Address on Subject Made at Meeting of Eighth District of Federation of Women's Clubs.

The Art Committee of the Eighth District, Missouri Federation of Women's Clubs, met Thursday at the Hotel Stater, with a large attendance.

A foreword was given by Mrs. Cyrus E. Perkins, art chairman of the General Federation of Women's Clubs.

Tom Barnett encouraged the committee by saying that St. Louis is on the art map. He said that St. Louis leads in her art of public school buildings and her art in beautiful residences. He called attention to the lack of St. Louisans in their art gardens surrounding their palatial homes, and said that public development is art interest.

Blair Ridington, president of the Society for the Promotion of Arts, Crafts and Design for St. Louis, explained that the object of the society is to aid the student and worker in the applied arts to a better training in and for industrial art work by co-operating with art institutions in St. Louis and vicinity. Ridington stated that the scarcity in supplying the demand for china was due to the lack of designers. His hope is to make St. Louis the center for art designing, and to induce the business men of St. Louis to provide a place for artists. He said that our Museum of Fine Arts ranked one of the three best in the world.

Curl Hair This Way
and Keep It Healthy
It has been found that the occasional use of a harmless and inexpensive fluid which druggists know as "silmerine" will keep the straightest hair in curl perpetually, giving the apearance of true naturalness, besides keeping the hair softer and glossier than possible with the heated iron. The liquid may be applied with a clean toothbrush, this being drawn through the hair from crown to tip and allowed to dry over night.
In the morning the hair will be beautifully wavy and curling, and will lie easily and loosely on the head, as it should, considering its welfare from a hygienic standpoint. A few ounces of liquid silmerine will last for months, and as it is really beneficial to the hair, which cannot be said of the heated iron, it should be generally adopted by the fair sex. It will not spot or discolor scalp or hair, nor leave any sediment, grease or stickiness.

Many Glee Clubs and Choirs Volunteer to Give Programs in Hotels and Stores.

Christmas carol singers will sing at noon Dec. 24 in many of the principal hotels and restaurants of the city, as well as in the streets at night. Many glee clubs, church choirs and quartets have volunteered for the noonday sings. At the Stix, Baer & Fuller store a platform will be erected for the singers and fancy costumes provided for the children who accompany the chorus. Girls of the Community Service, in co-operation with men of the Junior Chamber of Commerce will sing in many neighborhoods in which the Community Service has clubs. The Provident Association will have a group led by Miss Mary Pulliam, the Navy Scouts will be led by A. M. Langenbach, and the Children of America Loyalty League by Mrs. Graham Sears. The nurses of Barnes Hospital will also have a group.

Many public schools have organized groups, the largest numbers being in the Froebel and Harrison schools. Churches are co-operating, Christ Church Cathedral having three groups which last year led the city in the amount of collections. The Bethlehem Congregational Church carol singers, led by Miss Florence Wirtel, will open the Christmas eve festival by singing in front of Mayor Kiel's home.

More Groups Wanted.

Other groups are wanted, especially in the north and south ends of the city, and Miss Alice Pettingill, chairman of the Christmas Carol Committee for the Children's Aid Society, appeals for volunteers. Both children and grown-ups are wanted, and all willing to help are asked to call at the society headquarters in the Board of Education Building or phone Olive 1087. The singers usually start at 7 p. m. and sing for two hours, stopping in front of every house which shows a candle in the window. As far as possible it is desired to have the groups costumed, patterns for old English capes being shown at the headquarters. Each group carries a picturesque lantern, and the donation box is always born by a little boy in costume.

All carol singers are invited to the community sing and rehearsal tomorrow night at the Community Service center, 1400 South Grand avenue, when Harry Murrison, leader of soldiers' training camps, will conduct a carol rehearsal which will be followed by a dance. Max Zach, director of the St. Louis Symphony Orchestra; Frederick Fischer, director of the Pageant Choral Society, and Richard Spamer will give brief addresses at the community meeting, and Mayor Kiel and members of the Board of Aldermen and city officials will be the guests of honor.

This Great Book in Such Compact Form Is Simply Superb!

India Paper Makes the New

so light in weight that you can easily lift it and move it about—and yet there are 44,000,000 words, 30,000 pages, 15,000 illustrations and maps in it.

We have obtained all the remaining sets printed on the famous India paper—that marvelous thin and tough paper—and offer them while they last at a bargain price.

ANYTHING that we might say as to the advantages of the Britannica printed on India paper could not be put stronger and more convincingly than in this statement by a big city merchant:

What a Big City Merchant Says About Britannica Printed on India Paper

"I bought the Britannica to use. I expect to get out of it in dollars many times more than I paid for it. I know what a wonderful book it is for anyone who uses it. India paper makes it so light, so convenient, so inviting, that one can't fail to read it frequently. You say the Britannica printed on India paper is 'five times more valuable' than an ordinary book paper. I should say 'a hundred times more valuable.' This is based on my own experience.

"I owned a set of the old Britannica on heavy paper, but I didn't read in it four times a year. It was too heavy; I never had much inclination to look up anything in those big, bulky books.

"I've had the new Britannica, printed on the delightful India paper, less than six months. I use it CONSTANTLY, looking up whatever I want to know, sometimes reading as many as four and five articles a night."

This experience is repeated over and over in the case of owners of the new Britannica, for of the 200,000 sets already sold, more than 160,000 were India paper sets. The use of this wonderful linen-like paper for printing the world's most interesting and most comprehensive book of knowledge was inspired by the thought that it would increase the handiness of the Britannica—hence, increase its real value to those who possess it.

You, no doubt, know what a remarkable work the Britannica is—an inexhaustible fund of facts and information. Its highest practical value to you or anyone else depends, of course, upon its actual, frequent use.

All you desire to know, from the making of bricks to the building of empires, from the life of the bee to the biography of great men, is in the Britannica. But you must read it to acquire this information. And India paper encourages reading.

AN INDIA PAPER SET IS A STANDING INVITATION TO READ. Each volume is so light in weight, so easy to handle, so delightful to hold, that you naturally turn to the Britannica for the answers to questions or when seeking facts common and uncommon.

YOU WANT THIS MARVELOUS WORK—the most complete and authoritative that ever came from the printing press, and you ought to have it on genuine India paper. While they last, the sets of the popular "Handy Volume" issue of the Britannica in stock are offered at the present bargain prices, on the same convenient terms. Your set will be shipped to you immediately on receipt of your order and a first payment of only $1.00.

Can you afford to let this chance go by? Don't delay—send the coupon at once. This will bring you our beautifully illustrated 136-page booklet, which gives you evidence of the everyday practical value of the Britannica. Cut out coupon, sign it and mail NOW.

What the Britannica Will Do for You

Think of the Britannica as an investment, and consider whether you know any other way of investing the same amount of money, or ten times the amount, that will yield such large returns in profit and pleasure.

The Britannica will stimulate you to improve your education, whether or not you've had a college education. It will furnish you with a teacher of any subject you wish to study—a teacher who is a master of his subject and who is always at your command.

It will give you the answer to the thousand and three questions prompted by the morning paper, lectures, sermons and books. It will make everything you see, read and hear more interesting.

It will enable you to lay out a plan of education for your children and keep abreast with their studies.

PROGRESS REPORTED IN W. U. SALARY ENDOWMENT DRIVE

Committees Organized Here and Alumni in New York Are Brought Together.

Cheering progress in the salary endowment campaign for $2,000,000 by Washington University has been reported by both the general and the alumni committees. With the latter working bodies it was mainly an organization period, but so intensively was this carried forward that substantial advance in actual campaigning for subscriptions was reported, with reassuring results.

H. J. Steinbreder, vice-chairman of the Arts and Sciences Alumni Committee, was in New York throughout the week, bringing the alumni body of that city into close interest in the campaign.

Intimate co-operation between the University Corporation and the alumni in the conduct of the expanding institution is being planned, with indication that a system for its operation will shortly be perfected. The initiative in this was taken by the directors of the corporation, in a resolution that served to bring it directly to the attention of the alumni.

Benjamin Gratz, Jackson Johnson and W. A. Layman were named as the board's committee, the alumni bodies being represented by their respective presidents, as follows: Arts and Sciences, Thomas H. Cobbs; School of Medicine, Dr. F. O. Schwartz; School of Law, Virgil Rule; School of Dentistry, Dr. B. W. Sollenius.

Dr. Burris Jenkins to Lecture.

A lecture on "The New Era" will be delivered by Dr. Burris Jenkins at 8 o'clock Tuesday evening in the auditorium of the Washington University School of Medicine, Euclid and Scott avenues, under auspices of the Washington University Association. Dr. Jenkins, who is a Kansas City pastor and editor, is also a former university president, and in 1917 was a war correspondent in France.

Red Cross Plans Holiday Entertainment for Jefferson Barracks and Two Hospitals.

Christmas entertainment programs for the nurses and the sick and wounded soldiers at Jefferson Barracks and the Marine and Public Health Hospitals in St. Louis, are being arranged by the Red Cross.

Christmas day there will be a turkey dinner and dance at Red Cross' headquarters at Jefferson Barracks. A party of girls, chaperoned by Miss Sarah Tower, Mrs. S. Fuqua and Miss Nell Willis will attend and a special "jazz" orchestra has been obtained for the occasion.

The dinner menu includes roast turkey with chestnut dressing, cranberry sauce, turkey croquettes for facial patients who must have soft food, celery, olives, stuffed egg salad, fruits, nuts and ice cream, coffee and grape juice.

Five Trees to Be Placed.

Five Christmas trees will be placed in the hospital wards and on Christmas morning each patient will receive from the Red Cross a gift stocking containing a silver pencil, a deck of playing cards, candy, cigarettes and fruit cake. The nurses also will receive gift parcels. The services of 100 carol singers of various St. Louis churches have been pledged and during the forenoon groups will pass through the wards caroling good cheer.

To the nearest relative of every man in the hospital the Red Cross will send a "Christmas letter" containing accurate first-hand information about the condition and surroundings of the man in the hospital and assuring parents of the efforts of the Red Cross to do all in its power to provide an enjoyable holiday season for the men.

"What to buy her for Christmas," is no problem at Jefferson Barracks. The Red Cross occupational therapy workshop there is a busy center these days and the chains of beads, watch fobs, belts, reed lamps and various kinds of baskets and toys now being made by the patients will make very attractive presents.

Dances Are Planned.

Dances and parties being arranged for Christmas week, include a dance to be given to the soldiers by the girls of the Community Service organization, Dec. 22; a Christmas Eve dance at which girls from the St. Charles Chapter of the Red Cross will be hostesses, and a party and reception, Dec. 27, given by the Relatives' Auxiliary of the 138th Infantry.

Red Cross headquarters at the barracks will hold open house all week, and on New Year's Eve a watch party will be given at which officers and men will be guests. At present there are about 250 wounded soldiers at the post in addition to 33 nurses and about 2600 men, including recruits.

The St. Louis Chapter of the Red Cross is arranging programs for the Marine Hospital, 3640 Marine avenue, and for the U. S. Public Health Service Hospital, 5800 Arsenal street. At both places many of the patients are former soldiers. More than 24 Christmas trees are being decorated. All day entertainments will be held at both hospitals and gift stockings will be distributed.

MUSIC CLUBS TO MEET AT SEDALIA TOMORROW

Varied Program Has Been Arranged for Annual Convention of State Federation.

The annual convention of the Missouri Federation of Music Clubs opens in Sedalia tomorrow. Mrs. Joseph H. Rodes of Webster Groves, president of the federation, will reply to the addresses of welcome. The afternoon session will include, besides reports from club presidents, officers and chairmen of committees, two speakers, Mrs. Orra Lightner Frost of Tulsa, Ok, district president of the National Federation of Music Clubs, and Miss Alice Pettingill of St. Louis, corresponding secretary of the State organization. The meeting will close with an afternoon tea given by the Sorosis Women's Literary Club of Sedalia. In the evening Harold Hewey, pianist, will give a recital.

Tuesday morning will be occupied with reports of committees and delegates, and the general discussion of Junior Clubs, the organization of which, under the direction of Mrs. Anna Hamilton of Auxvasse, is the main work of the federation this year. Two round table talks have been arranged, one for club presidents, by Mrs. Cora Lyman of Kansas City, first vice president, the other for delegates, led by Mrs. W. A Dallmeyer of Jefferson City.

Arthur Gaines, manager of the St. Louis Symphony Orchestra, will speak on symphony orchestras, the St. Louis organization in particular.

Mrs. Joseph W. Folk, president of the Morning Choral Club of St. Louis and third vice president of the federation, will tell of soldiers' clubs which the national federation plans to establish.

A concert will be given by the Ladies' Musical Club of Sedalia, with Miss Pero, as guest artist, assisting. Tuesday evening the principal musical event of the convention will be held, a concert by representatives from federated music clubs. Several St. Louis musicians appear on the program, among whom are Mrs. Lilian Kauffman and Mrs. F. C. Papendick of the Ladies' Friday Musical; Miss Vera Schlueter, University Musical Research Club, and Mrs. Caroll Smith of the Morning Choral Club.

Wednesday will be Federation day. Mrs. William D. Steele of Sedalia, chairman of the philanthropic department of the federation, will speak on "General Federation." Mrs. Cora Lyman will tell of the plan of the national federation for club extension. "The Value of Creative Work in Music Education" will be the subject of a talk by Mrs. Jessie L. Gaynor of Webster Groves, composer of child songs and second vice president of the State federation.

About 200 delegates are expected to attend. Among those going from St. Louis are Mmes. J. H. Rodes, William McCandless, J. W. Folk, Caroll Smith, Elizabeth Drey, Jessie L. Gaynor, F. C. Papendick, Lilian Kaufman, Miss Alice Pettingill and Miss Vera Schlueter.

Hotel Terry will be convention headquarters, and meetings will be held in the First Christian Church.

PARIS POLICE CHARACTER GETS 5000 VOTES FOR DEPUTY

Wit Makes Him Popular Although He Is Accused of Causing Disappearance of 13 Women.

By the Associated Press.

PARIS, Dec. 13.—Nearly 5000 voters in and near Paris cast their ballots in the recent election for Henri Landru for member of the Chamber of Deputies. Landru has long been held by the police and accused of being responsible for the disappearance of 13 women to whom he is alleged to have promised marriage.

His witticisms have made him very popular with the Parisian public and this accounts for the fact that 5000 persons erased the names of candidates registered at the Ministry of the Interior and wrote Landru's name on the ballot.

Landru was called before Judge Bonin on election day for examination as to the whereabouts of the Widow Collomb, who was registered on the ballot list as his fiancee number 7.

Landru paid little attention to the Judge's questions, glancing pensively out of the window at the heavy snowfall. When the Judge remonstrated with him he said: "I am greatly concerned about the outcome of the elections. These proceedings here do not interest me, but I fear for the future of my country. What a calamity should Bolshevism rule in this land!"

UNUSUAL TRIBUTES PAID TO BUENOS AIRES NEWSPAPER

By the Associated Press.

BUENOS AIRES, Dec. 13.—The recent celebration by La Prensa, one of South America's best-known newspapers, of its fiftieth anniversary was marked by unusual tributes to its prestige.

Its 48-page anniversary edition contained congratulations from Presidents of seven countries, including President Wilson, statesmen, military leaders and journalists from all parts of the world.

The palatial Prensa building, with its assembly hall, banquet hall, library, school of music, medical clinic, law and other departments devoted to the use of its readers, was the scene of numerous functions for three days.

The employes of La Prensa, numbering 600, presented to Ezequiel P. Paz, the owner, a large gold plaque at a testimonial banquet. Paz in turn presented to each member of his staff a gold medal and gave a banquet in their honor.

The banquet to the staff was held in the "Gran Salon de Fiestas" in the Prensa building. The decorative scheme of this room is gold. The walls are covered with marvelous tapestries of pictorial design, the lofty ceiling is paneled with exquisite paintings, while life-sized bronze statues stand on either side of a throne-like dais, the whole giving the impression of a state banquet hall in some royal palace.

ITCH-ECZEMA FREE TRIA

(Also called Tetter, Salt Rheum, Pruritus, Milk-Crust, Weeping Skin, etc.)

ECZEMA CAN BE CURED TO STAY, and when I say cured, I mean just what I say—C-U-R-E-D, and not merely patched up for awhile, to return worse than before. Now, I do not care what all you have used, nor how many doctors have told you that you could not be cured—all I ask is just a chance to show you that I know what I am talking about. If you will write me TODAY, I will send you a FREE TRIAL of my mild, soothing, guaranteed cure that will convince you more in a day than I or anyone else could in a month's time. If you are disgusted and discouraged, I dare you to give me a chance to prove my claims. By writing me today you will enjoy more real comfort than you had ever thought this world holds for you. Just try it and you will see I am telling you the truth.

DANIELS OUTLINES PLANS FOR MARINES

Secretary Recommends Enlisted Strength of 27,467 and Naming of Officers From Ranks.

The Secretary of the Navy, in his annual report, part of which was made public last week, sets forth in interesting detail the achievements of the United States Marine Corps during the world war and the important position the Marine Corps occupies in the country's affairs.

The Secretary recommends that permanent authorized strength of the Marine Corps be 20 per cent of the present permanent authorized strength of the navy, plus the necessary allowance for aviation purposes. This would make a total enlisted strength of 27,467.

He also recommends special grades for enlisted men performing the duties of aviation mechanics in order that the same grades may be provided for the Marine Corps as are now in effect for the army and navy.

It is recommended that the term of enlistment in the Marine Corps be the same as that provided for the navy. By an executive order enlistments may now be made for two, three or four years, but the Secretary would have this provided for by legislation, so as to make enlistments for two, three or four years a permanent authorization.

100 Aviation Officers.

One hundred officers will be required to carry out the aviation program of the Marine Corps. Forty officers would be automatically obtained by an increase of 1000 men that the program provides for. The other 60 are specifically requested as additional aviation officers, as they cannot be taken from the regular authorized strength without loss of efficiency.

If the permanent enlisted strength of the Marine Corps is increased as recommended, all of the present temporary officers who are eligible for transfer to the permanent commissioned personnel should, it is stated, be given an opportunity to qualify for such transfer.

It is also recommended that 25 marine gunners and 25 additional quartermaster clerks be authorized, and that the grade of chief warrant officer be established, in order that warrant officers of the Marine Corps may be on a parity with officers of the same grade in the navy.

Wants Officers From Ranks.

The Secretary states that "the advisability of obtaining officers from the ranks was never better demonstrated than during the late war, and I believe that by making all appointments to fill vacancies in the future from the ranks, with the exception of such graduates of the Naval Academy as may be assigned to the Marine Corps, we will obtain the highest and most efficient class of officers."

Attention is called to the new records made in markmanship by the marines, there having been an extremely high number of qualifications in the grades of expert riflemen and sharpshooters. The Marine Corps Rifle Team squad was entered in national matches, the National Rifle Association matches and the Sea Girt tournament, and established a new record by winning 27 of the 24 matches in which they fired.

OUR WHISKY LIVENS SCOTS

LONDON.—A remarkable increase in drunkenness is reported from Glasgow, where the number of arrests has increased recently 400 per cent. The recent increased allowance of spirits, it is believed, has had less effect in bringing about this state of things than the importation of whisky manufactured in the United States and Canada.

This imported whisky is described as being worse than raw spirits. It is alleged that American rye whisky is sold as "imported" but is blended with a proportion of whisky distilled here.

EXPERT SAYS U. S. SHIPPING NEED NOT FEAR COMPETITION

Cost of Building American Ships Little Higher Than That of England, Who Wants to Buy, He Says.

U. S. TO HAVE 2250 AFLOAT BEFORE 1921

More Than 60,000 Men Are Now Employed in Maritime Activities of Nation, Declares F. E. Ferris.

By Leased Wire From the New York Bureau of the Post-Dispatch.

NEW YORK, Dec. 13.—"American ships, owned by American firms, under American classification, insured by American underwriters, commanded by American officers and manned by American sailors—that is what we are going to have, without any 'ifs.' Observe that I do not say we may, can, might or should have, but what we already have, in a measure, and what we are certainly going to have in great and increasing numbers before the country half realizes it."

Capt. Frank E. Ferris, who until Dec. 1 was the New York managing agent for the United States Shipping Board, was talking earnestly about the great national problem of America's future on the sea. Capt. Ferris knows the sea—he knows all the seas—he knows ships, he knows sailors, he knows all the complex details of the world's shipping; he holds a commission as commander in the United States Navy. And, best of all, he is one of those who during the war restored the American flag to the high seas and is enthusiastically determined to keep it flying over all them.

"How," he was asked, "are American built ships manned by American seamen to compete for the world's trade with Norwegian, British, Japanese and other ships, that we are told cost far less to build and much less to operate? Will not these be able to cut freight rates to a point that would be ruinous to our ship owners if they were to try to meet them?"

Changes Are Overlooked.

"People who talk so glibly about the higher cost of building and operating American ships," replied Capt. Ferris, "overlook the changes that have come with the war. What was true five years ago is not true now. It costs very little more to build a ship in an American yard today than it does to build it in a British or Norwegian. The best evidence of this is the current quotation; England is now asking £36 sterling a ton to build 10,000 ton steamers; the United States Shipping Board is asking from $160 to $170 a ton. At the present rate of exchange there is very little difference. England is in the market to buy ships; we are the only nation in the world that has ships for sale ready for delivery.

"The cost of operating American vessels is greater than that of European only because of the absurd laws that compel American ships to carry larger crews than are required on foreign ships, and larger than the exigencies of the service need. Mr. Furuseth, the Norwegian author of the La Follette law that compels American ships to carry 75 when only 50 are need, tells me that American sailors are the best in the world. I believe he is right in that, and, therefore, American sailors are worth higher wages than foreign sailors. But their higher capacity and intelligence is a strong argument against the necessity of putting 75 Americans to do the same work that 50 Norwegians or Britishers can do. It is all right to pay American sailors higher wages; no ship owner objects to that, for the slightly higher pay is fully compensated by the higher quality of the work; but it will be necessary to revise the provisions of the La Follette act in order to bring our crews down to the number reasonably needed to operate the ships."

"Dare Congress defy the labor men by any such step as that?" he was asked.

"Congress is in a very different mood now from what it was a few years ago when it passed that bill. A committee of the Shipping Board is now studying this very problem, and the board will make some recommendations to Congress that Congress cannot ignore."

"But are not European sailors paid much lower wages than American?"

"Not now. This labor movement has not been confined to the United States, as many people seem to imagine; it has been just as strong in Europe, and the difference in the wage scale between British and American ships is now very slight, and, as I have said, quite made up for by the higher efficiency of American seamen."

"Questioned as to how many American merchant ships there are now," he replied:

"Judge Payne, chairman of the Shipping Board, said a few days ago that 1300 Shipping Board ships are in commission, plying on 41 trade routes, and that by the end of 1920 there will be 2250 of them."

"Is there any difficulty in manning them?"

"Not now. And this is one of the great constructive works the Shipping Board has done and is now doing In its schools for seamen, for officers and engineers it is training youths from all over the country and turning out many thousands of sailors a year, who go to man our ships.

"It may astonish you to know that the Shipping Board is educating men and boys for every position in connection with shipping, not merely for jobs as able seamen, but for such positions as presidents and general managers of shipping companies, and captains and chief engineers of ships. It is the most wonderful training school in the world; how thoroughly competent are its graduates is best seen by the way shipping companies bid against each other for their services.

Majority Stay Afloat.

"Of course not all of those who go through the training school and ship on board American vessels remain permanently at sea, but there are so many splendid opportunities for a career in connection with shipping that the majority of them stay.

"Stories that one hears about wretched, dirty, cramped quarters for crews and ill-treatment of sailors, are all based upon conditions that exist no longer.

"On all the vessels built by the Shipping Board in the last year or two the quarters of the crew are every bit as good as are those on American war ships. They are clean, sanitary, well ventilated and spacious. The food supplied to the men is of the same quality as that supplied to the officers' mess. Talk

FEW FOLKS HAVE GRAY HAIR NOW

Druggist Says Ladies Are Using Recipe of Sage Tea and Sulphur.

Hair that loses its color and lustre, or when it fades, turns gray, dull and lifeless, is caused by a lack of sulphur in the hair. Our grandmother made up a mixture of Sage Tea and Sulphur to keep her locks dark and beautiful, and thousands of women and men who value that even color, that beautiful dark shade of hair which is so attractive, use only this old-time recipe.

Nowadays we get this famous mixture improved by the addition of other ingredients by asking at any drug store for a bottle of "Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur Compound," which darkens the hair so naturally, so evenly, that nobody can possibly tell it has been applied. You just dampen a sponge or soft brush with it and draw this through your hair, taking one small strand at a time. By morning the gray hair disappears; but what delights the ladies with Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur Compound is that, besides beautifully darkening the hair after a few applications, it also brings back the gloss and lustre and gives it an appearance of abundance.

For real effectiveness, this old home-made remedy has no equal. Easily and cheaply prepared.

You'll never know how quickly a bad cough can be conquered, until you try this famous old home-made remedy. Anyone who has coughed all day and all night, will say that the immediate relief given is almost like magic. It is very easily prepared, and really there is nothing better for coughs.

Into a pint bottle, put 2½ ounces of Pinex; then add plain granulated sugar syrup to make a full pint. Or you can use clarified molasses, honey, or corn syrup, instead of sugar syrup. Either way, the full pint saves about two-thirds of the money usually spent for cough preparations, and gives you a more positive, effective remedy. It keeps perfectly, and tastes pleasant—children like it.

You can feel this take hold instantly, soothing and healing the membranes in all the air passages. It promptly loosens a dry, tight cough, and soon you will notice the phlegm thin out and then disappear altogether. A day's use will usually break up an ordinary throat or chest cold, and it is also splendid for bronchitis, croup, hoarseness and bronchial asthma.

Pinex is a most valuable concentrated compound of genuine Norway pine extract, the most reliable remedy for throat and chest ailments.

To avoid disappointment, ask your druggist for "2½ ounces of Pinex" with directions and don't accept anything else. Guaranteed to give absolute satisfaction or money refunded. The Pinex Co., Ft. Wayne, Ind.

U. S. SHIPS COST LITTLE MORE THAN THOSE OF ENGLAND

about ill-treatment is in almost all cases untrue, though there are and always will be individual instances of unwarranted severity on the part of commanders. And you must recognize that strict discipline is more difficult to apply to Americans than to any others, because they are more independent and resent any measure that seems to them to trespass upon their personal liberties. Yet strict discipline is an absolute necessity on boardship."

As to the policy of the Shipping Board in selling its ships or retaining them as Government owned vessels, he said: "I have not the right to tell you what the policy of the Shipping Board is; but this I can tell you, it has a very definite policy, and this will become apparent soon; just now it would be unwise to disclose this policy, for it is not a question of private ownership or Government ownership, but of American ownership or foreign ownership. We are about to take part in the keenest competition for the trade of the world, a competition in which we shall have the other great maritime nations as our rivals. England, Norway and others would dearly love to know right now what the policy of the American Shipping Board is, so that they might take immediate steps to circumvent it. Therefore it is the part of wisdom to keep them guessing.

"What we are doing now is turn the Shipping Board's vessels over to bona fide, well organized American firms for operation on terms that give them opportunity for good profits and at the same time ask them to assume virtually no risks.

"There are men in shipping circles who cry out that the prices of our ships should be reduced so that they might buy them. Private firms would jump at such an opportunity, and it would doubtless be a fine thing for them. But let us see how it would work out. How many ships are they prepared to buy? Not more than about 300. They would like to take their pick of 300 of our best ships. That would leave us with about 1900 vessels, and these would be the less desirable of all. Then, the American Shipping Board, with its 1900 second rate ships, would have to enter into competition with American firms owning 300 hand-picked, finest ships. That would not be for the interests of America.

"The Shipping Board has ships for sale now at from $200 to $225 a ton, and it is not going to reduce the price for the benefit of private shipping companies. There is no indication that ships will soon be cheaper to build than they are now. In England the cost is going up, and England would like to buy."

"Can any American firm buy the Shipping Board's vessels or get them for operation?" was asked.

"Oh, no," replied Ferris. "The concern that wants a ship or ships must demonstrate its ability to manage them. It must not only show that it is financially responsible, but it must have experienced marine engineers, captains and capable traffice managers. Otherwise, it will get no ships. The Shipping Board has finished with letting irresponsible persons speculate with Government property."

Being Safe Instead of Sorry

You KNOW how much your money is going to earn, when you invest it in Union Electric 7 per cent preferred stock.

Yearly dividend earnings, under liberal management and State regulation, average FIVE TIMES the sum needed to pay 7 per cent dividends on $3,000,000 of this stock—$2,000,000 sold in 1917 and $1,000,000 now on sale.

That is your "safety margin." It makes Union Electric preferred "the safest 7 per cent dividend-payer in St. Louis."

Only Union Electric customers can buy it; it is a form of profit-sharing.

"TECH" STILL SEEKING FUND

Frick Bequest Does Not Affect Endowment Campaign.

The bequest of $5,000,000 left by Henry C. Frick to Massachusetts Institute of Technology, will in no way affect the campaign for an endowment fund for the school. The St. Louis committee for the campaign announces that Frick was not the mysterious "Mr. Smith," the "Daddy Long-Legs" of "Tech," who gave the fund of $4,000,000 on condition that the institute and alumni raise a like amount.

Industrial firms are being especially asked to give to the fund. A number of firms have done so.

Transport Sold to France.

WASHINGTON.—Sale of the army transport McClellan to the French Government for 2,025,000 francs was announced by the War Department. The McClellan, formerly the British steamship Port Victoria, has a gross tonnage of 3006 tons, and was built in 1885 at Newcastle, England. She was purchased by the Government for use as a transport during the Spanish-American War.

PRINCETON OPERA TO SHOW AT ODEON DEC. 24

Student From St. Louis Is Business Manager and Arranged Christmas Tour.

L. B. Stuart Jr., son of Mr. and Mrs. L. B. Stuart of 5714 Maple avenue, a senior at Princeton University, is business manager of the Princeton Triangle Club 1919 Christmas tour, and will bring the club here for one performance of "The Isle of Surprise" at the Odeon, Dec. 24. Arrangements are complete for the start of a 10-day tour through the East and Middle West.

Plans for the reception of the students and their play are being made. Members of the local committee are P. Taylor Bryan, F. Winston Johns and Samuel D. Conant.

Will Open in New York.

The Triangle Club expects to leave Princeton Thursday afternoon to give the premiere of the new opera in New York the same evening. From there the club will go to Syracuse, Buffalo, Columbus, Chicago, St. Louis, Cincinnati, Cleveland and Pittsburg, in the order named. A special train of six cars, including baggage cars for the scenery and "props," will carry the 75 actors and student orchestra.

Erdman Harris, a senior, is author of the book of the new opera, and E. H. Coffey, a junior, composed the music. Several of the members of the victorious football eleven are in the cast, notably Walter Folmer, the "vamp" of the cast, who divides honors with R. N. Lawrence in the principal feminine roles.

Five Feminine Parts.

There are five feminine parts, which will be taken by Folmer, Lawrence, J. F. Parker, B. S. Boteler and C. H. Scribner. J. R. Forgan of Chicago takes the leading masculine role, and R. T. Frick, son of the late Henry C. Frick of Pittsburg, has an important part. All have had experience in previous plays of the Triangle Club.

The Triangle Club will arrive here at noon on Dec. 24, and will be entertained continuously from then until the members depart at midnight. The largest affair will be a tea dance at the St. Louis Club at which Louis Werner of Westmoreland place and his son, Joseph Werner, Princeton '20, will be hosts. Demand for tickets for the performance at the Odeon has been large, members of the committee say, and a large number of orders for boxes and blocks of seats in the parquet already have been received. The general ticket sale will open Tuesday morning at the Kieselhorst ticket office.

MORE W. U. MUSICAL COMEDY

Musical comedy is to be produced again by students at Washington University, Chancellor Hall and the faculty committee having approved the proposal submitted by members of the student body to that effect. This is a revival of an activity that prevailed up to 1913.

The vehicle for the revival, which is tentatively scheduled for February, is being constructed by J. Walter Goldstein, editor of the Dirge, the latest student periodical, Jimmy Conzelman and Harry W. Roemer, the first named writing the book and the others the music. "Dreamy Land," a song written by Conzelman and Roemer, will be utilized.

OAK HILL PRESBYTERIAN BUILDING NEW CHURCH

The Oak Hill Presbyterian Church is erecting an English Gothic church edifice, on the northwest corner of Oak Hill avenue and Connecticut street.

The building will be of St. Louis limestone with Bedford Indiana stone trimmings. It will contain Sunday school rooms for the primary, intermediate and junior departments, a number of large and small class rooms, a separate chapel for prayer meetings, and small entertainments. The building will be finished in dark English oak, and will include a fine organ, oak pews, pulpit furniture, and be equipped with electric lights and steam heat.

GILBERT TOYS

"Toys that are genuine"

Help Your Boy Along

Give your boy the right kind of toys and you will give him a big start in life. Every real American boy likes to build things. He wants to do things the way he sees men doing them. That's the way he grows into useful manhood. He likes to make his own wagons, coasters, gliders and racers—build miniature bridges, skyscrapers, elevators—perform chemical and electrical experiments, or real feats of magic.

Real boys want real toys—not mere playthings—and Gilbert toys are "toys that are genuine." They add to the boy's knowledge. They develop his constructive nature. They educate him while he is having the best of fun. They are great boy helpers—boy teachers. It will pay you well to buy such toys for your boy.

Gilbert Engineering Institute for Boys

To foster the constructive and inventive spirit of boys, I organized the Gilbert Engineering Institute for Boys, which awards diplomas, degrees, gold lapel buttons and gold watches for the most original work with constructive and scientific toys. Its honors and awards are free and I'll be glad to send you details about the Institute.

I have recently started a big free toy building contest for boys and girls, with a real buckboard automobile or a Shetland pony as first prize and a hundred other fine prizes. Send the coupon in the lower right hand corner for full details, free copy of my boys' magazine and complete catalog of Gilbert Toys. You'll find these toys on sale at all good toy dealers.

A SIMPLE WAY TO REMOVE DANDRUFF

There is one sure way that has never failed to remove dandruff at once, and that is to dissolve it, then you destroy it entirely. To do this, just get, about four ounces of plain, common liquid arvon from any drug store (this is all you will need), apply it at night when retiring; use enough to moisten the scalp and rub it in gently with the finger tips.

By morning, most if not all, of your dandruff will be gone, and three or four more applications will completely dissolve and entirely destroy every single sign and trace of it, no matter how much dandruff you may have.

You will find all itching and digging of the scalp will stop instantly, and your hair will be fluffy, lustrous, glossy, silky and soft, and look and feel a hundred times better

AUXILIARY TO SOLICIT TUBERCULOSIS FUNDS

Jewish Organization Will Begin Campaign Tomorrow for Building in Colorado.

The St. Louis Ladies' Auxiliary of the Jewish Consumptives' Relief Society has opened headquarters in the office of Chairman Hyman Cohen, 1110 Boatmen's Bank, for the campaign which begins tomorrow for funds to complete a St. Louis building in the tubercular group at Denver, Colo.

Though this is a Jewish institution, the society receives and treats tubercular patients free of charge without regard to creed or nationality, and there are at present 150 patients on the waiting list, whose lives may be saved when facilities are provided for their care. Within the last 12 years 2018 cases have been treated and many cures effected at the society's hospital, in connection with which there is a farm of 61 acres, where the patients raise many things to eat, and now have a flock of 2000 chickens.

Chairman Cohen stated yesterday that while he expected the principal support to come from the Jewish people of St. Louis, he felt that there were many other friends of different faith who would respond to this call. The last annual convention of the society was held in St. Louis at Hotel Statler last summer, and more than 2000 delegates attended from different parts of the United States and Canada. At that time the St. Louis building fund was started, with subscriptions for $10,000 subscribed at a banquet. New York City has two buildings.

The St. Louis Ladies' Auxiliary was organized 12 years ago and has contributed more than $10,000 to the tubercular reclamation work, under the direction of Mrs. Morris Friedman of 4212 West Pine boulevard, president of the local chapter.

During the coming week, and ending Dec. 22, there will be more than a score of teams at work in various parts of the city, and they will make daily reports to the chairman. Team captains will bear credentials from Scott R. DeKins, secretary of the Charities Bureau of the Chamber of Commerce, who investigated the institution and pronounces it a worthy charity.

The officers and team captains are as follows: Chairman, Hyman Cohen; treasurer, Morris Weil; vice-chairmen, Mrs. Morris Friedman, Harry Siegfried, Mrs. Sam Friedman, Mrs. M. M. Cohen, Mrs. I. L. Goldberg, Samuel Russack, Bernard Greenfelder, Emil Mayer, Oscar Leonard, Ferdinand Bach, Mrs. Olaf Larsson, Mrs. Jacob Gross; team captains, Mrs. Hyman Cohen, Mrs. M. M. # MEXICAN MEETING TO BE TOPIC

The St. Louis group of the American Chamber of Commerce of Mexico will hold a meeting and luncheon at the American Hotel Annex Tuesday at 12:15 p. m. to consider organizing a delegation to attend the conference of exporters and importers, manufacturers, bankers and merchants that will be held in Mexico City, Feb. 11 to 13, 1920. Charles E. Sharp of St. Louis, who has recently returned from a trade tour of Mexico, will talk on business conditions of Mexico as he found them. F. P. de Hoyes, general agent of the National Railroal lines of Mexico, and C. I. Luque, commercial agent of the Mexican Government, located in St. Louis, will also speak.

CARE OF THE BATTERY DURING COLD WEATHER

Shorter Days Add to the Burden of Storage Battery—Hints on Its Proper Care.

With the coming of shorter days, which necessitate the burning of lights for a longer period when driving after sundown, there has been a noted increase in battery complaints from motorists. Added to the change in the season, motorists must take into account the daylight saving law. During the summer it was not necessary to have the lights illuminated, in July particularly, until about 9 p. m., while the law requires that lights be turned on during the coming week shortly after 5 p. m.

Because of the longer hours of driving after dark it is more difficult to keep a battery properly charged and the most frequent complaints enumerated come from a starved battery.

Frank Sasseville, manager of the Battery Service department of the Weber Implement and Auto Co., has compiled the following list of "Do's and Don'ts" on the care of a battery in winter weather that should be of interest to all car owners.

Care of the Battery.

1. Replenish the water in the battery every 10 days. Do this just before the start of a drive requiring the motor to run at least a half hour. If the car is parked during freezing weather immediately after water has been added the water still floating on top of the acid will freeze and damage the plates. At least half an hour's driving at moderate speed is necessary to properly mix the acid and water.

2. Don't put water that has been boiled in a metallic vessel into the battery as boiling water in a metallic container does not distill it. Only distilled water should be used in a storage battery.

3. Don't use the battery with an insufficient amount of water as running without the required amount of water will burn that portion of the plates left exposed and the battery will not be capable of delivering to its full capacity. When a plate is burned from overcharging due to lack of water it causes crumbling and deterioration.

4. Do not put too much water in your battery. The level at which the water should stand varies from a quarter to a half inch above the top of the plates in different makes. When too much water is put in and the generator starts charging the electrolite expands and is forced out the opening in the vent plug and runs over the top of the battery which causes short circuits and destroys the wood case in a very short time.

5. Do not add any acid to your battery regardless of what the specific gravity readings may be. The acid always remains in the battery unless it is spilled by overturning or putting in too much water. Adding acid to your battery will ruin it.

6. Don't allow your battery to stand in a discharged condition as a discharged battery will freeze at ordinary freezing temperature. A fully charged battery will not freeze in this climate less than 40 to 50 degrees below zero.

7. Do not overwork your battery in endeavoring to start your car in winter weather, when the motor is cold. If the battery is low and the motor exceedingly cold it is best to prime the engine and use the crank in starting, as the battery may become discharged by continuous efforts to start and then when started in such condition driving a few miles, as from the West End to the downtown district—in the case of the business man—is not sufficient to recharge it and the battery is liable to freeze if the car is parked soon afterward. A battery that has been frozen is generally ruined, but if taken to a service station immediately some material may be salvaged which will bring down the cost of repairs. As the longer the ice stays in the jars the more it expands and the more damage is done to the plates and jars. The full charged battery has a specific gravity of 1.300. The specific gravity of a discharged battery is 1.150 and under. A hydrometer should be used at least once in every 10 days and at any time between during cold weather when the battery is suspected of getting low.

The freezing points of electrolite of different specific gravities are as follows:

| Specific Gravity. | Degrees Fahrenheit. |
|---|---|
| 1.050 | 26 degrees above |
| 1.100 | 19 degrees above |
| 1.150 | 5 degrees above |
| 1.200 | 17 degrees below |
| 1.250 | 64 degrees below |
| 1.280 | 92 degrees below |

| Tuesday | 5:10 p. m. |

176 AUTOS IN ONE SHIPMENT ARRIVE

What is said to be the largest single shipment of automobiles to have ever been shipped to a St. Louis distributer arrived in the city last week.

It consisted of a solid trainload of 40 cars of Buick touring cars and roadsters. In another train that followed were four other cars, making a total of 44 carloads of automobiles, each loaded with four machines, making a total of 176 cars.

F. W. A. Vesper, president of the Vesper-Buick Automobile Co., to whom the cars were sent from Flint, Mich., said the average price of each car, including freight to St. Louis, was $1605. This represents a total investment of $292,116.

The automobiles were loaded in coal cars. It took four days to unload them. The cars will be driven from St. Louis by the dealers in the St. Louis territory.

Mr. Vesper said all of the cars in the shipment have been sold for some time. They are to be allotted to dealers proportionately. But few of the cars will be shipped from St. Louis to tho dealers, as most of the dealers have expressed a desire to drive overland to avoid delay. The longest driveaways will be to Springfield, Kirksville, Mo.; Quincy, Ill., and Paducah, Ky., Vesper said.

AUTO ACCESSORIES GROW IN FAVOR AS XMAS GIFTS FOR MEN

Electric Cigar Lighters, Fur-Lined Driving Gloves and Freeze Meters Are Favorites.

Automobile accessories are growing in favor more each year as Christmas gifts for men.

There are numerous accessories now upon the market which do not come as part of the regular equipment of many newly purchased automobiles, yet add materially to the comfort and economy of driving.

In past years it has been more or less a problem for the womenfolk particularly as to just what would be a most suitable gift for the man of the household, with the result that father more often than not received shirts, neckties, hose or slippers, to make certain that the gift would be a practical one.

With the number of men who do their own driving continually increasing the problem of selecting an appropriate and practical Christmas gift is made easier.

Accessory dealers of St. Louis report that they expect to sell more automobile accessories as Christmas gifts this season than ever before. During the last week there was a noted increase in this class of shopping and in most cases the buyers were women.

Among the favored accessories which are shown in the various St. Louis shops dealing in these goods are fur-lined driving gloves, electric cigar lighters, tonneau heaters, dash clocks, freeze-meters for testing the strength of the alcohol solution in the radiators, vacuum bottles, first-aid kits, fire extinguishers, motometers which indicate the water's heat in the radiator, jacks, wrenches, screwdrivers, tires, tubes, signaling devices, rear-view mirrors, vanity cases, spotlights, lap robes, goggles, towlines, windshield cleaners, anti-theft locking devices, books of instruction on automobiles, luncheon kits, spark plugs, carbon removing preparations, anti-freez solutions, chains, tire pumps, body polishes and batteries.

MORE ADVICE ON HOW TO PREVENT HARD STARTING

Gasoline Tanks Should Be Drained Regularly to Prevent Water Gathering and Freezing.

The inferior grades of fuel which are now being offered the motorist are to blame to a large degree for the difficulties experienced in starting when the motor is cold.

One need not be surprised if after having parked your car for several hours with the temperature in the twenties you should find yourself in the same predicament as a motorist was one day last week who had parked his car downtown while attending to some business. His car stood idle for about four hours.

When he attempted to start the motor he got a few explosions each time he applied the starter, but the motor wouldn't "pick up." He inspected his ignition system, and found it all right. His gasoline tank was full and his batteries had but recently been charged. He tried again with the same result that after a few irregular explosions the motor quit.

When the car was taken to a service station it was found that a cake of ice had formed in the bottom of the auxiliary gasoline tank where water contained in the gasoline had been gathered over a period of several weeks. The ice obstructed the flow of gasoline to the carburetor, so that the feed was not continuous.

After the car had stood in the garage for a time the ice melted and the water was drained through the pet cock.

The service manager of that garage is now advising all of his patrons to drain their gasoline tanks at regular intervals to prevent what water may be contained in the fuel from collecting and freezing.

FUEL AND THE FUTURE CAR

"One horse hitched to a delivery wagon seems to be able to pull that wagon and its load without much trouble," says H. A. Taratous, of the S. A. E. Double the size of the wagon and its load and you immediately see the need for hitching on another horse. As you increase the weight you increase the number of horses, because you know you need more power. Two horses mean more hay, more oats—in other words, more fuel.

"Exactly the same condition exists in the automobile field today, with the exception, however, that we needlessly accept the "two-horse" load which call for extra fuel. Briefly, our cars are too heavy. The future is going to see cars so much lighter in weight than present ones that the average fuel consumption will be at least 30 miles per gallon. In addition to fuel economy, the care of the future will give greater riding comfort, twice the tire mileage and half the repair expense."

NOVEL MOTOR GLOVES

Eelctrically Heated for Cold Weather Use—Feature of London Show.

Electrically heated gloves were one of the decided novelties exhibited at the recent London Olympia Automobile Show. They are designed, it is stated, for use in connection with dynamo lighting systems. A flexible cable, robust though light in weight, is attached to each glove, and may be connected up to the switchboard, junction box, or direct onto the battery terminals at whatever part of the lighting system it is most convenient to tap by means of a neat two-pin plug and socket. Each pair of gloves takes one ampere at 12 volts, and this enables several pairs to be used on the car at the same time without taxing too greatly the output of the battery; and the heating is so arranged as to give a gentle glow, and not a fierce heat. The gloves are lined with flexible heating elements made from a special alloy.

The gloves were especially recommended for doctors and others who are required to motor in all weather conditions, being thus enabled to drive in comfort on the coldest day, feeling the steering wheel and controls with that sensitive touch so essential to safe driving, and to get straight to work on alighting without wasting time warming the hands before the sense of touch has thoroughly returned.

THE FRANKLIN SEDAN

Considering its fitness to perform every enclosed car function and its disregard of climate, weather and roads, the Franklin Sedan stands today as the only all-purpose car built.

Light Weight and Flexible, it enables you to motor all day with ease over any road. Free from hammer and pound, jolt and jar, it does not fatigue rider or driver. It is easy to control and safe. It is cool and comfortable in summer, free from annoying toe-board heat, perfectly ventilated. It is warm in winter and gives instant protection whenever needed.

Direct Air Cooled, it causes no anxiety as to heat or cold. It carries no water to boil or freeze. Easy rolling, quickly responsive to the brake, yielding to the roads, it converts most power into miles, does not slide and slip and does not grind or hammer tires. The result is a nation-wide economy to owners of

20 miles to the gallon of gasoline
12,500 miles to the set of tires
50% slower yearly depreciation

And the Franklin Sedan leads in original sedan features. The Wide Observation Windows, the two Wide Doors which mean convenience and accessibility, and the V-shaped Slanting Windshield, secure an unequaled breadth of vision. Together with the sloping French-style Hood, they give outward distinction in addition to these obvious practical advantages.

Unless you are convinced that you have already obtained the utmost in motoring satisfaction, you will want a demonstration of this exceptional car. We will gladly show its performance over any road you say.

A Chalmers Starts and Runs as well in December as in June

SO many cars run well in June, and not in December. Most prefer the warm weather.

A Chalmers starts on a cold day almost instantly on account of its Hot Spot and Ram's-horn, and runs velvety "on all six," with no visible vibration.

Hot Spot vaporizes the raw gas "to a fine cloud," warms it up, and Ram's-horn dispatches it evenly, quickly, scientifically to all six cylinders.

They render a magnificent service in overcoming vibration, which is the origin of 90% of the troubles in a motor car.

That is why a Chalmers of today runs so many miles with such freedom from attention. Service Department records supply abundant proof that Chalmers is one of the few great cars of the world.

ENGLAND CREATES NEW TRANSPORTATION BODY

Sir Eric Geddes Made Head of Ministry of Transportation—To Develop Motor Transport.

In view of the widely increasing attention that motor transportation is receiving in this country it is interesting to note that a Ministry of Transportation has just been created in England, at the head of which is Sir Eric Geddes, who was the principal member of one of the British war commissions to this country. Sir Eric Geddes gave his first talk as Minister of Transport to the British motoring interests at the dinner of motor manufacturers during the Olympia Automobile Show in London last month. The objects of the ministry embody many of the ideas which are being urged in this country.

"We are arranging," said Sir Eric Geddes, "for the classification of the roads. We are going to get through roads laid down, and with such funds as we have at our disposal we are going to provide for the maintenance of the roads, up to the required standard. I think we have got to look at the taxation or a levy upon the users of the road in a way which will enable us to provide adequate and sufficient ways upon which the vehicles you provide will run."

Discussing the future of motor truck use, he predicted a great future for road transport, mainly operating within a 50-mile radius from the great towns. Such a development of road transport would be a benefit to the railways by relieving the systems of that traffic. He also advocated the principle that the users of the roads should pay for the improved roads, saying that it was impossible to get improved roads in the present financial condition of the country unless the users were prepared to pay for them. Those who destroyed the roads that the majority required to use must either adapt their system of traction or equipment so that they did not damage the roads or they must pay for the damage they did.

The Ministry of Transport Act provides for the creation of a Roads Committee to advise the Minister, and it is understood that the first work of the committee will be to review existing legislation in relation to the handicap it imposes on motor transport.

NEWELL TO HANDLE UTILITOR TRACTOR

James E. Newell, president of the Newell Motor Car Co., announced yesterday that his company had become the distributers in Eastern Missouri and Southern Illinois for the Midwest Utilitor, a combinaton tractor and stationary engine which, as a tractor, will plow, harrow or cultivate, and as a stationary engine will saw wood, pump water, grind feed, operate a grindstone, run a separator or churn. The operator follows behind the implement on foot, the handles of which resemble those of a plow.

It is said to be capable of doing the work of a four-horsepower stationary engine.

An elaborate display has been arranged by the company connected with overhead belts and pulleys, showing how it operates as a stationary engine. It is in the rear of the salesrooms, and is use for demonstration purposes. The Utilitor is hooked up to a circular saw, grindstone, meal grinder, churn, washing machine and separator, and operates them all at one time.

NEW NASH MANAGER OF RETAIL SALES

Wilkins Jones, who recently returned from service in the army as a Captain of Infantry, and had practiced law in St. Louis before the war, has been appointed manager of the Nash St. Louis Motor Co., 3205 Locust street, to handle the retail sales of Nash cars in the city and adjacent counties.

Jones took charge of his new work during the last week, it was announced by S. W. Ramsey, general manager of the Southwest Nash Motor Co.

FORD LAYING STRESS ON ONE-TON TRUCK

W. L. Johnson, president of the Johnson Auto Co., announced last week that for the first time since Ford one-ton trucks have been on the St. Louis market Ford dealers in St. Louis are now able to make prompt deliveries.

Johnson said this was due to difficulties being experienced in obtaining parts for the manufacture of passenger cars and that greater stress is now being put on the trucks which come equipped with both solid and pneumatic tires.

SKELTON AGENCY TO OPEN NEXT THURSDAY

The Meissner-Skelton Motor Car Co., 3150 Locust street, local distributors for the Skelton car, will hold their opening next Thursday, it was announced by John T. Rogers, general manager, yesterday.

The first of the Skelton cars to be produced in a five-passenger touring car model will be on display. The building, which is being remodeled and redecorated, will be ready for occupancy early this week.

$434,000,000 OF TRUCKS PRODUCED IN 1918

The Commercial Car Journal says truck production was abnormally forced upward during the war, due to overseas requirements. Business recovered wonderfully from the lull which immediately followed the armistice, then labor troubles began—but, in spite of these facts, business has been good and is growing better daily. The value of the trucks produced in 1917 was over $220,000,000. This value jumped to $434,000,000 in 1918. And, surprising as it may seem, although there are no war orders the value of the production for this year will doubtless exceed the figures of last year. There are now 238 companies engaged in the manufacture of trucks.

Don't Change Oils for Winter, Change for All Time

When you have changed to Streett's Ideal Motor Oil—of the consistency recommended for your engine—you need never change again, Winter or Summer!

Even the heaviest of Streett's Ideal Motor Oils will flow at the lowest temperature we have ever been able to produce.

Don't imagine that you need a lighter oil in Winter, believing that conditions inside your cylinders are different. They are not. Your cylinders get just as hot in Winter as in the warmest August day—often hotter—and the clearance between pistons and cylinder walls remains exactly the same. Therefore oil of the same consistency is required Winter and Summer to properly seal the space.

Streett's IDEAL MOTOR OIL

"Seals and Satisfies"

It proves its superiority at once by the smoother running of your motor, its greater power, the lower operating cost per mile, the freedom from carbon.

Change Now For All Time, To Streett's Ideal Motor Oil.

CHANDLER SIX

Greatest of All Sixes

Spring'll Be Here 'fore You Know It

DESPITE conditions which greatly held back the production of automobiles throughout the early months of this year, nearly twenty thousand discriminating motor car buyers have been made happy and contented by the possession of their new Chandler cars.

Nothing could more clearly show the regard in which America holds the Chandler Six than the patience with which thousands waited for weeks and months for their Chandlers. They waited because they knew what they were waiting for—because they know it is worth waiting for.

Some are still waiting, but their cars are coming. December production is taking care of many orders, and January will see the great Chandler plant on a production basis unprecedented in the medium priced fine car field.

Chandler dealers will, we hope, be able to fill their orders much more quickly next year than this, but when the first warm days of Spring come, and the country roads call, and everyone decides he wants his new car at once, there will be some waiting again.

If you want your new Chandler when you want it, place your order now. If you want to be sure of getting the car of your choice, the greatest of all Sixes beyond question, drop in and see your Chandler dealer now, regardless of what the weather may be. For "Spring'll be here 'fore you know it."

All Chandler bodies are mounted on the one standard Chandler chassis, which has made the name famous. Simple, sturdy and dependable throughout, its features embrace, as for years past, the really marvelous Chandler motor, solid cast aluminum motor base, annular ball bearings, silent chain drive for the auxiliary motor shafts, and Bosch magneto ignition.

A great many dealers in Eastern Missouri and Southern Illinois have asked in the past for the Federal Truck franchise in their territory. On account of the limited production we have not been able to do more than supply the St. Louis demand which to date has taken 627 Federal Trucks.

Recent increased production at the factory now permits us to assure deliveries to a limited number of high-class, progressive dealers.

FIRESTONE TO BUILD TIRE PLANT IN CANADA

Designed to meet the demand for automobile tires in Canada, the Firestone Tire and Rubber Co. has made public the formation of the Firestone Tire and Rubber Co. of Canada, Ltd., with a capitalization of $5,000,000. In accordance with the plans a factory is to be erected at Hamilton, Ont., which is expected to begin operations in five months with a daily capacity of 3500 tires of all types. It is estimated that this new enterprise will provide 2000 Canadians with employment.

In order to make this new plant as similar as possible to the parent plant 135 acres of ground have been purchased. Upon one half of the property will be constructed modern factory buildings with an initial floor space of 320,000 feet. Upon the other half the company will carry out a housing plan for employes similar to the model community which has been established in Firestone Park at Okron, O.

All buildings will be fireproof, of steel and concrete construction on the unit plan.

AUTO TRADE TO HAVE CHRISTMAS PARTY

A Christmas party which is to include the entire automobile trade in St. Louis is being arranged by a committee representing each of the five automobile trade associations. Ladies are to be invited. The party will be given at the Planters' Hotel, Monday night, Dec. 29. Promise is given of one of the most enjoyable evenings ever attempted in the St. Louis trade. The notice which has been prepared by the committee says in part: "The Automotive Industries Association, an organization which does not exist—yet, is going to have a big joint meeting and Christmas festival at the Planters' Hotel, Dec. 29."

The committee in charge of the meeting consists of P. H. Brockman, president of the St. Louis Automobile Manufacturers' & Dealers' Association; William L. Ferrier, president of the Motor Accessory Trade Association; L. H. Amrine, president of the truck dealers' organization; H. E. Spoeneman, president of the Storage Battery Dealers' Association; Joseph Roberts, president of the Tire Dealers' Association, and Robert E. Lee, who is the secretary of all of these bodies. It is planned by the committee that their wives and sweethearts will be given an opportunity to enjoy the same kind of live and pulsing entertainment that the men have been accustomed to—no better and no worse. Following the dinner at 7 p. m., there will be five one-minute addresses by the five presidents, then the entertainment, followed by dancing.

ABUSE OF BRAKES

Abuse of the brakes on an automobile is characterized by L. S. James, president of the James-Landwehr company, as the most careless habit of many motorists.

His suggestion is that the automobilist learn to use his engine as a brake. On ordinary grades this can be done by pushing the throttle to full closed position leaving the clutch engaged so that the car will drive the engine.

PUBLIC MAY SEE PERSHING IN AUTO PARADE DEC. 22

General Will Spend 13 Hours in St. Louis, Including Time for Inspection at Jefferson Barracks.

LUNCHEON TO BE GIVEN IN COLISEUM

Reservations of Tickets at $1 Each to Close Friday—Sergt. Ellis to Be Decorated in Evening.

The program for the celebration in St. Louis of the return of Gen. John Joseph Pershing to his native State on Monday, Dec. 22, has been completed. Gen. Pershing was born at Laclede, Mo., on Sept. 13, 1860, and will go there the day following his coming to St. Louis.

The chief opportunities of the program for the general public to see the General will be an automobile parade through the downtown section at noon, a Chamber of Commerce luncheon in the Coliseum at noon and a mass meeting in the Coliseum at night.

The General will spend 13 hours in St. Louis. He will arrive on a Chicago & Alton train from Chicago at 7:49 a. m. As he alights from the train, a 5-minute ceremony of welcome will take place, participated in by Gov. Gardner, Mayor Kiel and Edward Hidden, chairman of the Mayor's Official Welcoming Committee for Returning Soldiers, which has arranged the program. Color bearers carrying the flags of the United States, the State of Missouri and the City of St. Louis will dip their flags in salute.

To Go to Barracks.

The General will go immediately to a special train of a baggage car, diner and lounging car awaiting him on an adjoining track and will have breakfast with the Governor, the Mayor and Hidden as the train proceeds to Jefferson Barracks, a 40-minute run.

A review of the four companies of men at the Barracks will take place at 9 o'clock after which the General will be taken by Col. Munroe McFarland, commandant, on an inspection of the post.

Returning to the city Gen. Pershing will alight from the train at King's highway and Missouri Pacific tracks. He will be driven over an unannounced route to the St. Louis Club, the probable hour of his arrival there being 11:30 a. m.

An automobile parade will be formed at the club at 11:40 o'clock and will move downtown over the following route: East on Lindell boulevard and Locust street to Twentieth street, north to Washington avenue, east to Broadway, south to Olive street, west to Twelfth street, north to Locust street and west to the Coliseum, where a Chamber of Commerce luncheon will take place at 12 o'clock.

Tickets for C. of C. Members.

The Chamber tomorrow will mail to each of its members three tickets of admission to the Coliseum balconies and inform each member that he will be limited to two tickets for the luncheon, to be allotted in the order in which requests are received. The Coliseum will seat 2000 diners. The reservation list closes Friday. The price of tickets is $1.

The occasion of the General's visit has been seized for the Chamber "funfest." Horns, caps, rattlers, confetti and other fun-makers will be distributed. Fred Stone, the comedian; the Six Brown Brothers, saxaphone players, and Marie Dressler, comedienne, will take part in the program.

The General will have a short period of rest at Hotel Jefferson following the luncheon and then will be driven to University City where, at 3 p. m., he will lay the cornerstone of the Pershing School at the corner of Bartmer and Ferguson avenues.

At the General's own request, 4:30 to 5 o'clock has been set aside as a time when he will receive former service men at Hotel Jefferson.

Dinner of a private nature, with Gov. Gardner, Mayor Kiel and members of the Reception Committee as his fellow diners, will be served in Hotel Jefferson at 6 o'clock.

To Decorate Sergt. Ellis.

The closing event is planned as the chief event of the day, the decoration of Sergt. Michael B. Ellis of 1308 Cass avenue, with the Medal of Honor awarded for his single-handed capture of 53 Germans and their 10 machine guns. This will take place in the Coliseum, the mass meeting opening at 7:30 p. m.

Gov. Gardner will be a speaker, and Mayor Kiel will introduce Gen. Pershing. Edward Hidden will preside, and the Jefferson Barracks band and a chorus will provide music.

The General will depart for La-

SCHWAB FOR PROFIT-SHARING AND COLLECTIVE BARGAINING

Tells Pennsylvania Society Successful Employment of Labor Will Rest Upon These Rights.

By the Associated Press.

NEW YORK, Dec. 13.—Successful employment of labor will rest more and more on recognition of the rights of collective bargaining and profit-sharing, according to Charles M. Schwab, chairman of the board of the Bethlehem Steel Co. Speaking tonight at the annual dinner of the Pennsylvania Society, of which he is president, Schwab declared that "the more the Bolshevists talk and threaten destruction, the more will our people stand adamant for America continuing to be a land of law, of order and of opportunity."

"I believe," he said, "that the first and prime need of every man engaged in industry is to get and to keep his own house in order and to secure the confidence and the enthusiastic loyalty of his own men.

"It is the duty of the business men to address himself to seeing to it that the largest possible opportunity for employment and work is given to the greatest number of men, and I am myself a firm believer in the fact that the successful employment of labor does now and will in the future more and more rest upon the recognition of the right of the men to deal with their employers collectively and upon the privilege of the men, through some kind of profit-sharing, to obtain a direct share in the profits realized upon the articles they themselves are making."

JUDGE DYER SEEKS ASSIGNMENT IN CALIFORNIA OR FLORIDA

Remarks in Washington That Although He Is on Retired List He Is Still Capable of Work.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 13.—One purpose of Judge David P. Dyer's visit to Washington this week, it was learned today, was to seek some judicial assignment that would take him to California or Florida for the winter.

Dyer, it is understood, placed the request before members of the United States Supreme Court in the course of informal chat with them at the Capitol. To others he remarked in substance that although he was on the retired list he was still capable of judicial work and wanted something to keep him busy.

On assignments out of the city in which he regularly holds court, a Federal Judge is paid his expenses in addition to his salary.

Hindon, a Los Angeles diamond broker, who was arrested yesterday at Tia Juana, Mexico, supposedly in connection with a jewel transaction, is accused of conspiring against the Mexican Government.

Hindon, the message said, is being held without bail. O'Connor said his information came from the Federal secret sevrice.

Navy blue and silver gray seem to be the favorite shades so far. Silks and satins will be extensively worn. Embroideries will furnish an important feature in the adornment of costumes. Dainty satin sashes will again be in vogue. New hat models have not yet made their appearance.

COAL SETTLEMENT MENACE TO PUBLIC, GARFIELD ASSERTS

Tells Senators Commission of Inquiry Will Give Industry Two Members and Only One to Chief Party at Interest.

SAYS RESIGNATION HAS BEEN ACCEPTED

Declines to Answer Questions He Holds to Touch Confidential Intercourse With Former Associates.

By the Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 13.—Principles underlying President Wilson's plan for the settlement of the coal strike, accepted by the miners, are "fundamentally wrong as a matter of government," Dr. Harry A. Garfield, Federal Fuel Administrator until today, told a hastily assembled subcommittee of the Senate tonight His resignation, sent to President Wilson because of his views, was accepted today with those of one or two of his associates, he said.

While discussing with some freedom "a cleavage in the Cabinet" caused by strike settlement negotiations, Dr. Garfield withheld answers to questions by Senator Frelinghuysen, Republican, New Jersey, chairman of the subcommittee, on matters he regarded as touching confidential intercourse with his former associates during the strike period.

He adhered to this refusal, though Senator Townsend, Republican, Michigan, and Senator Myers, Democrat, Montana, joined the chairman in urging replies, and refused to furnish a copy of his letter of resignation, which he indicated had explained his views to the President

Senator Frelinghuysen intimated that Attorney General Palmer and other officials connected with the strike settlement would be called later.

States His Objection.

"My objection," Dr. Garfield said of the settlement plan, "goes to the point that the commission which I understood will be set up to decide wages and prices is composed of three members, one to be a miner, another to be a coal-mine operator, and the third to represent the general public. Under it, the public, which is the chief party at interest, would always be in the minority."

"Has it been your experience with the coal industry that employes and employers have a common interest in increasing wages and costs and passing that increase on to the public in prices?" Senator Townsend asked.

"They may have that common interest," Dr. Garfield responded, qualifying his answer by saying that he was not charging that this would be the result.

"I believe I represent the real opinion of the President in the matter," he said later, "that is, if I were able to see him and talk it over. Because I know his mind."

Sketching the history of the strike negotiations, Dr. Garfield explained that he thought members of the Cabinet were standing with him in his suggestion of a 14 per cent increase in wages and an advisory commission to review the facts from which he derived the 14 per cent clause. When this was refused, he added, he thought the question "was going to be fought out."

Dr. Garfield would not produce a telegram sent him by Attorney-General Palmer confirming that understanding, for which he was asked.

Proposals to Cabinet.

Discussing proposals which he submitted to the Cabinet, Dr. Garfield said:

"I had no power under the Lever act to fix wages, but did have power to fix prices, and the determination of reasonable prices involved finally a determination of reasonable wages. I drew up a statement of principles which I thought should govern the determination of reasonable wages, and submitted that to the Cabinet."

"They were with you on that statement?" Senator Frelinghuysen asked.

"Yes, except as to the second of the principles stated," Dr. Garfield responded. "That was one which said the average wage of workers in the industry ought to be taken as a guide in fixing increases allowed to meet the cost of living, and not the wages of a single group. Secretary of Labor Wilson desired the increases so given to be estimated on the wages of pick miners."

"What was your objection to that?" Senator Townsend asked.

"Basing the increase on the wage of pick miners," Dr. Garfield said, "would have resulted in securing an average increase of 179 per cent in wages in the industry over the period since 1913, when the Secretary of Labor conceded that the increase

SAYS WILSON'S PLAN MEANS 31 PER CENT INCREASE FOR MINERS

President of Kansas Union Also Declares Working Conditions Will Improve.

By the Associated Press.

PITTSBURG, Kan., Dec. 13.—"Lewis and Green knew some things they did not even dare tell the policy committee of the miners at Indianapolis," Alexander Howat, president of the Kansas miners, said today, discussing the recent strike. "I opposed acceptance of the President's proposal," President Howat said, "but had I known what Lewis and Green knew, I might not have opposed it."

The settlement is the best that could be obtained, President Howat said, speaking of the Indianapolis agreement.

"President Lewis and Secretary-Treasurer Green promised us that when the President's proposal is put in operation and results have been obtained under that proposal, the miners will not only have received the 31 per cent Secretary Wilson proposed, but there will be improved working conditions," President Howat said.

Call at White House to Convey Appreciation of President's Attitude During Strike.

By the Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 13.—John L. Lewis, acting president, and William Green, secretary of the United Mine Workers of America, called at the White House today to convey to the President their appreciation of his attitude in the coal strike.

Both expressed confidence that practically all of the miners would be back at work Monday. In reply to suggestions that the miners and operators' representatives on the commission to investigate wages and prices could outvote the public representatives and that a higher price for coal might result, Lewis said:

"I have every confidence that the President will select a commission whose integrity and high purpose will be beyond reproach."

Atlantic City Police Believe He May Have Drowned—Mother's Empty Purse Found.

By the Associated Press.

ATLANTIC CITY, N. J., Dec. 13.—After a 24-hour investigation, the police declared tonight they had reached the conclusion that James M. Blake Jr., 6-year-old son of a wealthy Philadelphia insurance broker, was not kidnaped by negroes. They have begun to search the beach front, in fear that the child may have drowned.

Mrs. James M. Blake, the child's mother, who is said to be estranged from her husband, is at the home of her mother recovering from the shock. The disappearance of the boy became known last night when Mrs. Blake crawled to the home of a doctor in Ventnor and told of being attacked by two negroes in army uniforms, who choked and beat her, robbed her of a handbag and then fled with the boy.

Mrs. Blake's handbag was found on a pier a block from where the supposed attack occurred.

Judge Cohalan Says Recognition of Republic Would Be Carrying Out "Self-Determination Pledge."

BUT ONE SPEAKER AGAINST PROPOSAL

Y. L. Fox of New Haven, Conn., Denies Government Has Support It Claims in Ireland or America.

By the Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 13.—Arguments for and against diplomatic recognition of the Irish republic were continued today before the House Foreign Affairs Committee, which is considering a bill to appropriate funds to send diplomatic and consular representatives accredited to the Republican Government.

Headed by Justice Daniel F. Cohalan of the New York Supreme Court, representatives of various Irish organizations in this country told the committee that such a recognition not only would follow out the self-determination pledges of President Wilson, but would stabilize the struggling republic and convince Great Britain that her domination in Ireland must be surrendered.

In closing the argument for the bill Bourke Cochran of New York declared conditions in Ireland were "infinitely worse" than they were in Cuba when the United States intervened there.

One Speech Against Bill.

The only speaker opposing the bill during the day was George L. Fox of New Haven, Conn., who continued the speech he began yesterday in general denial that the Republican Government was functioning sufficiently to deserve recognition. He asserted that the movement did not have the united support claimed for it in Ireland, and that many stories of mistreatment of the Irish by British authorities were myths.

A big gathering again was attracted by the hearing and, although the session was not so tumultous as yesterday, there were frequent bursts of applause.

"If any member of this committee," said Cockran, in his closing argument, "were to make in Ireland a Fourth of July speech advocating the principles of the declaration of independence, you would be put in jail. Although it is a country freer of crime than any other in the world, there are more people in jail than anywhere else and the crimes with which they are charged are the very things you celebrate as virtues."

Asked About War.

This situation has existed in Ireland, the speaker said, since the Norman conquest. It was evident, he added, that "England can never govern Ireland in any other way."

Asked if he favored war in case England took offense at passage of the bill, Cockran said his reply was that of Lincoln before the Civil War, when he said, "let us not be frightened by threats of danger to our country and dungeons for ourselves."

"That is my answer," repeated Cockran, "to a question of what may follow an act of justice by the American people."

Fox declared the reason Irish Republican leaders had been imprisoned was that they had "given aid and comfort to the enemy in the war."

Discounts Support in U. S.

"And if men in this country had done the same thing," he added, "they would have got it in the neck as quickly as those Irishmen did."

Fox attacked the statement that upwards of 20,000,000 Americans of Irish blood were asking recognition of the republic, declaring the 1910 census showed only 600,000 males in the United States who were born in Ireland.

He said that at least some Roman Catholics had an "utter contempt for the Sinn Feiners" backing the republican Government. If a vote were taken in Ireland with illiterates barred from the polls, he asserted, the result would be overwhelmingly against the Sinn Fein movement.

Plea in Behalf of Women.

John E. Milholland of New York protested against charges that the Sinn Fein movement was a Roman Catholic movement, declaring a large body of Protestants both in the United States and in Ireland were in sympathy with the republic. He declared if there was any doubt about the stability of the Republican Government, American recognition quickly would remove it. Within three hours, he said, he could produce financiers who would float $20,000,000 worth of Irish bonds if recognition were forthcoming.

A plea for recognition was made on behalf of Irish-American women by Mrs. Mary F. McWhorter of Chicago, national president of the Lad-

ALLIES REPORTED READY FOR SOME RESERVATIONS

PLEA BY ENGLAND FOR ITALY FORECAST

Spirit of London Conference Good, Matin Declares; Necessity for Closer Cooperation Recognized.

By the Associated Press.

PARIS, Dec. 13.—As a result of the conference being held at London by Premiers Lloyd George and Clemenceau, the American Government will be notified that in order to facilitate a compromise between adverse parties in the American Senate, the allies are willing to accept, to as great an extent as possible, some of the reservations to the Versailles treaty made by the Foreign Relations Committee, according to the Matin.

It is said the allies will do everything in order that America may participate in future conferences.

Important problems, the newspaper says, will henceforth be settled by a council of the Premiers of France, England and Italy. This council will meet sometimes in Paris and sometimes in London, and will examine principally Russian and Turkish problems.

England to Plead for Italy.

In the presence of John W. Davis, United States Ambassador to Great Britain, it is said Premiers Clemenceau and Lloyd George assured Vi[illegible] Scialoia, Italian Foreign Minister, that there was a necessity for an early settlement of the Fiume problem, and indicated England would intercede with the United States for Italy. Signor Scialoia will leave for Rome today to lay the matter before the Government.

The spirit which prevails at the London conference, the Matin says, is good, and the necessity for close co-operation by the allies is recognized.

Announcements relative to the engagements concluded by Premier Clemenceau and Premier Lloyd George at the conference they are holding in London will be made about Dec. 15, according to the Echo de Paris.

Great interest has been aroused here by Premier Clemenceau's visit to London, and considerable speculation has appeared as to the exact purpose of the trip. It has been learned from a high authority, however, that the official point of view of the French Premier's mission differs from that of the press in that his purpose is not, as has generally been represented, to find a substitute for the support for France which has been expected from the United States. It was, this authority declares, to consult with the British Premier regarding a number of questions that require more or less urgent treatment and which the United States in the present situation is not able to take up efficiently.

Cannot Make Expression.

France, according to the same authority, counts as much today as ever upon the moral aid of America, and upon her material aid in case of need; but the official expression of French opinion, it is pointed out, is particularly difficult, as it risks giving the impression of interference in American politics. For instance, it is stated in quarters generally considered highly authoritative that the French Government does not find anything impossible of acceptance in the reservations to the covenant of the league of nations voted by the United States Senate. However, the informant pointed out, if the Government should make a statement to this effect the action would have the appearance of taking part in the discussion of an American issue.

Confidence in the ultimate solution of the present difficulties and the continuation of the cordial relations existing between France and the United States as associated Powers remains intact, it is declared.

Clemenceau and Lloyd George Conclude Three-Day Conference.

By the Associated Press.

LONDON, Dec. 13.—The British Prime Minister, David Lloyd George, and the French Premier, M. Clemenceau, tonight completed a three-days' conference on the main outstanding international questions relating to the peace settlement, principally that concerning Turkey. The American, Japanese and Italian Ambassadors and French and British financial experts were called in at various times, while the Italian Foreign Minister, Signor Scialoia, took a prominent part.

The conference covered a wide range of subjects, and a brief official statement issued tonight records that "satisfactory agreements were arrived at on all outstanding points."

So far as is known, the American Ambassador, John W. Davis, partic-

JOHNSON TO MAKE FIGHTING CAMPAIGN FOR PRESIDENCY

Senator, in Anouncement, Says He Will Go to People in Every State.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 13.—Senator Hiram W. Johnson of California announced formally tonight that he would be a candidate for the Republican nomination for the presidency.

The Senator said he would make a personal campaign in every State, explaining that he did not intend to have his candidacy determined by "politicians in convention."

Plans of Senator Johnson, who formerly was Governor of California, who ran as the vice presidential candidate with Theodore Roosevelt on the Progressive ticket in 1912, he stated, include a direct appeal to the electorate in each State, whether their choice of a candidate is made by convention or primary.

"I have been laid up the past weeks and I am leaving Sunday night for California," Senator Johnson's statement said. "I hope to get myself in shape in a couple of weeks there, and on my return to enter into the presidential campaign.

"I fully realize the handicaps under which I labor and the obstacles which I must overcome, but I am exercising what is every American's birthright. Of course, any success for me must come from the people themselves, not from a certain well known class of politicans or from those whose interests make such politicians. Wherever it is possible, I am going direct to the people. Upon my return I shall announce a definite and specific program."

SEARCH STARTED FOR YACHT CARRYING MOVIE PERSONNEL

David Griffith and Party Should Have Landed at Bahama Island Wednesday Night.

MIAMI, Fla., Dec. 13.—Submarine chasers and airplanes are searching for the yacht Grey Duck, which left here Wednesday for Nassau, with David W. Griffith, motion picture producer, and a party of 36 motion picture actors, camera men and others. Advices received here say the party has not reached the Bahama Island capital. The yacht's motors were known to be giving trouble when the Grey Duck left this port.

The Grey Duck was due at Nassau at 9 o'clock Wednesday night.

A smaller boat left here ahead of the Grey Duck and arrived in Nassau yesterday. Cablegrams from Nassau by way of New York brought the first word that the yacht had not arrived.

The grey duck is 60 feet over all with a 200-horsepower gasoline motor.

Among the players on the Grey Duck are Richard Barthelmess, the leading man; Miss Carroll Dempster, the leading woman; Elmer Clifton, assistant director; Billy Bitzer, camera man; Kate Bruce, Anders Rudolph and Porter Strong.

Y. W. C. A. TELLS WHY WOMEN HOLD PLACES IN FACTORIES

Survey of Conditions Said to Show That They Do Better Work and Produce More.

By the Associated Press.

NEW YORK, Dec. 13.—Many women who displaced men in manufacturing industries during the war are being retained because they do better work and produce more than men, according to a survey of industrial conditions made by the Young Women's Christian Association.

The War Work Council of the Association today predicted a new era for women in industry. A questionnaire sent to 15,000 employers whose workers numbered 2,500,000, including 500,000 women, showed universal satisfaction with female employes.

A lumber dealer in a Southern State has decided to retain women whom he hired because he could not get men during the war. He has found that the women carry two boards if they can, while the men will only carry one at a time regardless of its weight. A large electrical company finds that women earn more at piece work than men.

Where only light machinery is used, women do the work better and produce more, according to a company which manufactures computing machines, magnetos, cameras and film. Half of this company's employes are women.

OVERTURES IN SENATE FOR COMPROMISE ON TREATY

Definite Moves Towards Breaking Deadlock Made During Debate; Democrats Urge Conciliation; Lodge Would Consider Suggestions by President.

KNOX OFFERS TWO PEACE RESOLUTIONS

One Would Ratify Between U. S. and Germany, Other Declare Peace by Congress' Act; Underwood Supports, but Hitchcock Objects.

By the Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 13.—The first definite move toward breaking the Senate deadlock on the German peace treaty came unexpectedly late today on the heels of nearly three hours of heated discussion of responsibility for the treaty situation.

Senator Knox, Republican, Pennsylvania, asked for immediate consideration for two resolutions. One would revive his former proposal for ratification of the treaty of Versailles so far as it would establish peace between the United States and Germany; the other was similar to the pending Lodge resolution, and would declare a state of peace with Germany by action of Congress, with approval of the President.

Senator Hitchcock, Nebraska, administration leader, objected to consideration of both resolutions, and, under the rules, the entire matter went over until next week.

Hitchcock's objections were made despite an agreement by Senator Underwood, Democrat, Alabama, prominent among Democratic leaders in the treaty contest; Senator Brandegee, Republican, Connecticut, leader in the faction seeking the treaty's defeat, and others to support the Knox resolution.

Senator Knox's proposals came after hot exchanges between Republican and Democratic leaders over the status of the treaty. It was coincident with reports from European capitals that negotiations were under way towards acceptance of some Senate reservations to the peace treaty, with a view to bringing America into the foreign peace conferences.

Form of Knox Resolution.

In calling up the resolution for declaration of peace with Germany Senator Knox changed its form from a concurrent resolution as proposed originally by Senator Lodge, to a joint resolution, requiring action by the House and also approved by the President. His ratification resolution also was altered from its original language as rejected during the special session. As presented today it reads:

"Resolved, that the Senate of the United States unreservedly advises and consents to the ratification of the treaty of Versailles in so far only as it provides for the creation of a status of peace between the United States and Germany."

The second resolution, following the form of the Lodge measure, proposes that Congress declare "That peace exists between the United States and Germany."

Republican leaders said tonight that with the support of Senator Underwood and other Democrats for an immediate measure to establish peace with Germany and suspend action on the league of nations, there now appeared prospect of a way out of the deadlock. Further discussion next week was regarded as probable. Adoption of either the Knox or Lodge resolutions, they said, would leave the Lodge reservations in their present position, establish peace with Germany and not interfere with operations of the league, except that the question of American membership would be determined later.

Overtures for Compromise.

Overtures for a compromise on the treaty came from both Republican and Democratic sides. During the debates Senator Lodge declared that President Wilson must take the initiative towards reviving action on the treaty, but offered to consider carefully any suggestions with regard to the Senate Committee reservations Mr. Wilson might make.

Senator Hitchcock urged a compromise through a committee of conciliation, and said he "held out the olive branch."

During the discussion, however, Senator Hitchcock said he would make no motion to bring up the peace treaty until some understanding had been reached in conference between Republican and Democratic leaders.

"The time for debate has passed,"

he said. "I think it would be very unwise to bring it in and have it kicked around like a football."

Discussion of the treaty was started by Senator Underwood during debate on the railroad bill, blocking progress on the latter for about three hours. Again Republicans and Democrats exchanged charges of responsibility for the deadlock on the treaty.

Calling attention to press reports that, because peace is not established, American export trade is being injured and business and industrial conditions remain unsettled, Senator Underwood declared the Republican majority was responsible for inaction on the treaty and urged prompt ratification.

Declares Wilson "Immovable."

Senator Lodge declared that President Wilson was "immovable" in his position for unreserved ratification. Only the President "can resurrect the treaty," he said, by withdrawing and resubmitting it to the Senate.

Senator Underwood suggested a "conciliation committee" to negotiate with the President, but this plan Senator Lodge rejected. Senator Hitchcock then suggested committees of conciliation representing the Republicans and Democrats to work out a compromise. Senator Lodge replied that the President first must act, but reiterated his willingness to give careful consideration to any proposals made.

Exchanges between the leaders had become sharp, when Senator Knox proposed, that, to secure a status of peace with Germany, the Senate adopt his plan, rejected in November, to ratify the treaty unreservedly so far as peace terms are concerned, but without action on the league of nations.

Senator Underwood agreed to support the plan so far as he personally was concerned, as the "price of peace," he said, and leave the people to decide lated whether the United States should enter the league.

Senator Knox then formally proposed immediate consideration in open executive session of his resolution and Senator Hitchcock promptly objected. Knox immediately asked similar action on the resolution to declare a state of peace with Germany and again Hitchcock objected.

Senator Lenroot, criticising delay of the railroad bill, said the afternoon had been spent in "political sharpshooting." Senator Lenroot said that if the administration would accept propositions which certain Democratic Senators had suggested privately a settlement soon would be reached. Senator Hitchcock or Senator Underwood, Lenroot said, should consult with the President regarding a possible agreement. "If we rest with the decision of the President, who is unwilling to accept views of an overwhelming majority of the Senate," he said, "I can see no hope for ratification."

Underwood's Position.

Then Senator Knox suggested his plan for ratification of the peace terms of the treaty, without action on the league. He asked if Senator Underwood would support such a plan.

"My personal position," Senator Underwood said, "is for unqualified ratification of the treaty. But if there is no other way to get peace, I would be willing to support the resolution proposed by the Senator from Pennsylvania, if there is no other and better way and the President would accept and strike out all provisions regarding the league of nations so far as we are concerned, not compelling European countries to agree to it but * * * leave the people of the United States to decide whether they will elect a Congress to ask admission to the league or stay out."

Senator Knox said his plan would leave the United States as a potential member of the league and the nation later could decide whether to apply for "full membership." He added that he would "give other Senators an opportunity to accept" his resolution to ratify the peace terms without acting on the league.

Senator Underwood said that unsettled world business conditions were curtailing American export trade to the point where the results soon would be felt by "the cotton farmer of the South, the wheat farmer of the West and the manufacturer and the laborer of the North."

Senator Underwood said the decreases in foreign exchange rates and cancellation of export orders placed in the United States indicated an "acute" situation.

"If the drop continues," he said, "purchasers of cotton, wheat, iron and steel and other products can no longer buy."

"The people of the United States demand peace," he added. "The time has come when a reasonable compromise should be made that can be approved by the President."

No effort has been made by Republican leaders to get in touch with the President, and work out a compromise, the Senator said.

"All Are Responsible."

Exception to this general view was taken by Senator King, Democrat, Utah, who said "responsibility is as much on the Democrats as on the other side of the chamber."

"Of course," replied Senator Underwood, "we are all responsible. But this ought not to be a partisan question."

He added that the initiative rested with the party in control.

"I would be willing," he continued, "to vote for any ratification resolution which would bring peace and that Senator Lodge and the President can agree on."

Senator Lodge said ratification of the treaty either with or without reservations would have no more effect on the rates of exchange than the [illegible]

"As to his duty to the country," he continued, "that every Senator must decide for himself. I can only do as I see my duty. The most important thing is to see to it that if we join that league of nations we do not endanger the peace, safety and independence of the United States.

"The reservations adopted by decisive majorities, including as high as [illegible] Democrats, are only for Americanizing the treaty and making it [illegible] for the United States. Only two reservations do not deal with the league—the labor clause and Shantung.

"Of course, the treaty is here. Every rejected bill is here.

"It is open for the President to bring the treaty again before the Senate, according to the rules, at any moment. He has nothing to do but withdraw it. He can then, without the assent of the Senate, at once resubmit it. That he apparently declines to do, whether because he refuses to recognize the Senate's parliamentary situation or because he is unable to make any concession even on a matter of form."

Says Opportunity Was Refused.

Before the Senate voted on the treaty, Senator Lodge said, the administration leader, Senator Hitchcock, was asked to submit any suggestion for modifications on the reservations adopted, but none was presented.

"The opportunity was refused," continued Lodge. "I have never sought to make this a party question. But the Chairman of the Democratic National Committee has made it so from the beginning.

"It is for those who are friends of the treaty without modification to make proposals, if they have them, and we are ready to listen and consider any proposals.

"If the President desires to present any modifications, it is open for him to do it. He has nothing to do but to withdraw the treaty, resubmit it and state what changes he desires made in the reservations.

"It is he and he alone who is standing immovable from his first position. He directed his party to vote against the treaty with reservations. He said it was nullification. These reservations are not nullifications unless nullification is the equivalent of Americanization."

Reply by Underwood.

Senator Underwood replied that if the President withdrew the treaty and sent it back it would go to committee. "What the country wants is action. If a conciliation agreement would be reached, I have no doubt the President would yield, withdraw the treaty and resubmit it.

"The time has come to end technicalities. The President lies on a sick bed. He is amply able to attend to the business of the nation, but it is not fair for the Senate to say, when it holds the treaty in its possession, that the fault lies with the President.

"He'll have no peace," the Alabama Senator said, referring to Senator Lodge, "unless the president is willing to yield to his will. That is the situation that confronts the country. No man can predict what the future holds if we continue to stand on this precipice with dogmatic obstinacy, each man insisting on his position and no one being willing to yield in behalf of the people."

Senator Hitchcock quoted Senator Lodge as saying he favored the ratification of the treaty "in some form."

"Oh, I didn't say in some form," interjected the Massachusetts Senator. "But with reservations."

Accuses Senator Lodge.

Senator Hitchcock accused Senator Lodge of "inviting the destruction of the treaty" by making no effort to "secure the support of the 45 Senators on the Democratic side who wanted the treaty ratified while he consulted with 14 or 15 Senators on the Republican side, "whose vote could not be depended upon to support ratification."

Senator Lodge said he did not consult with the Democrats, "because their votes were not their own."

Senator Lenroot, Wisconsin, said Senator Hitchcock was mainly responsible for failure to compromise, because he repeatedly declined to treat with the "mild reservationists."

"That statement is as far from the truth as the insult the Senator from Massachusetts flung at the Democratic Senators in stating that their votes were not their own," replied Senator Hitchcock.

Quoting from an interview by Senator Lodge, saying that he "wished to carry the reservations into the campaign," and that they "must stand," Senator Hitchcock insisted that Lodge had refused to compromise. He also declared that, after the votes on the treaty, Senator Lodge had insisted on adjournment sine die of Congress, blocking any further move for a compromise.

"The Senator cannot escape from that record," said Senator Hitchcock. "He cannot make the people believe he wants the treaty ratified. It is not fair to charge us, who are now ready to meet him in compromise, with killing it."

Denying that he had ever insisted on unreserved ratification, Senator Hitchcock said the Democrats always conceded that reservations would be necessary. He pointed out that the conference of Democratic Senators authorized reservations as substitutes for committee amendments but that these reservations were rejected.

"We have offered something," he continued. "If the Senator is willing to take those, we're willing to meet him in a compromise, a give and take."

Might Lose Shipping.

If the treaty failed, Senator Hitchcock said the United States might lose great material interests including 600 000 tons of German shipping valued at $800,000,000.

"These are enormous material reasons why we should waive some of our convictions, if necessary," he said. "We hold out the olive branch. We're ready for compromise. We wish to learn whether there is a spirit of compromise or wehther you want to defeat this treaty. There's the offer. If it's not taken the country will judge who is sincere."

Answering the administration leader, Senator Lodge said: "I have never said the treaty was dead except in the Senate. The President can resurrect it. The work of resurrection lies with him."

Referring to Senator Hitchcock's statement regarding America's material interests in the treaty, including the German shipping, Senator Lodge said: "The great vital interests of the United States not only now, but in the future, are not for sale for 500,000 tons of German ships or $800,000,000."

Lodge Withdraws Language.

Senator Walsh, Democrat, Montana, took exception to Senator Lodge's statement that he did not treat with the Democrats because "the votes were not their own." Citing the Senate rule against imputing unbecoming conduct, Senator Walsh suggested that Lodge withdraw his language.

Senator Lodge replied that Senator Hitchcock had attacked his motives in violation of the rules and that he did not ask for elimination and added that, if it would "soothe the feelings" of Senator Walsh, he would withdraw his statement, although, he said, it was true.

Senator Walsh said Senator Lodge had again violated the rule and asked that the language be withdrawn. Senator Lodge replied that he regretted the statement and would ask that his words be stricken out. Vice President Marshal said he had noted numerous violations of the rules and hoped Senators would "take them to heart" more in the future.

Republicans of both "regular" and "mild" reservation groups in the Senate expressed privately some satisfaction over the report from Paris that the allies were willing to accept some of the Lodge reservations. Some of them predicted that the reservations with possible amendment of the preamble would be adopted, but not before January.

ipated only in the Adriatic discussion. He denied the report tonight that the conference had submitted proposals to President Wilson for the revamping of the treaty, and that he had been called in to discuss them. What was wanted of him, or what advice he may have given, is concealed.

The London political writers are at wide variance regarding the proceedings of the conference, none of them apparently being really informed as to what has transpired.

Premier Clemenceau will leave for Paris on Sunday.

President's Illness Has Prevented Notification to Him.

By the Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 13.—Frequent conferences between Entente diplomats here have indicated that their Governments might be prepared to accept some reservations to the peace treaty in order to accomplish its ratification in the Senate, and it is understood that only the illness of President Wilson has prevented him from being so advised by some of them.

Mrs. Stokes to Run for Congress.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

NEW YORK, Dec. 13.—Mrs. Rose Pastor Stokes, who is out on bail pending appeal from a sentence imposed in Kansas City for violation of the espionage law, is to run for Congress in New York City to succeed Representative F. ## INDUSTRIES RELIEVED OF FUEL RESTRICTIONS

Coal Ordered Delivered, When Available, to All Plants for Emergency Use.

By the Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 13.—All industries may be supplied with coal for their emergency needs as far as coal is available in any section for that purpose under orders issued today by the Central Coal Committee.

The committee announced that companies must continue to make application to the roads which have been supplying them with fuel. It is expected that the new order will result in almost complete resumption of manufacturing next week.

The nation found partial relief today from the rigid restrictions enforced as a result of the fuel dearth. Regional directors of railroads over practically the entire country have modified the restrictions by authority of Director-General Hines, who issued an order leaving the enforcement of the regulations in their discretion.

Where local conditions permitted, the directors, after receiving the order, revoked the restrictions on coal and gave merchants an opportunity to reap the harvest of the heavy Christmas trade. Some anxiety had been felt among retailers over the limitations of business houses, and industrial plants were facing heavy losses by enforced shutdowns.

Business as Usual in Coal and Rail Service Officially Ordered.

By the Associated Press.

CHICAGO, Dec. 13.—Business as usual, delivery of coal to anyone in need of it, and partial resumption of curtailed passenger service, were the substance of orders announced today by the fuel and rail officials, effective at 12:01 a. m. Monday. Full passenger service was ordered for Thursday.

East and south of Chicago, general resumption of train service starts at 12:01 a. m. on Monday. The Pennsylvania lines announced full service beginning Monday, except the Broadway Limited. The New York Central lines made a similar announcement, adding that the Twentieth Century Limited would be restored within the week. Northwest and west of Chicago curtailed service awaits Thursday. Suburban service starts on Monday.

Illinois Coal Production to Reach Normal This Week, Farrington Says.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

SPRINGFIELD, Ill., Dec. 13.—"Practically all the miners in the Southern Illinois fields who have not returned to work will go back Monday," Frank Farrington, president of the Illinois miners, declared tonight on his return from Belleville and East St. Louis, where he has spent the last two days.

"The men in Belleville and in Saline and Williamson Counties are pretty much disgruntled at the settlement, but they are all going back," Farrington added. "Production will be normal sometime during the coming week."

MAN DIES 5 HOURS AFTER WIFE

August B. Oettger, 81 years old, 3022 Ohio avenue, died of heart disease at his home at 3:45 a. m yesterday, five hours after the death of his wife, Mrs. Friederika Oettger, 70 years old, who died at 10:30 p. m. Friday. They had been ill for several days.

Oettger was born at Bitterfeld, Saxony, in 1843. Mrs. Oettger was born in a village near Bitterfeld in 1849. They were schoolmates in Germany and in 1862 she came to America. He emigrated two years later and they met by accident in St. Louis. They were married in 1866. Two daughters survive. Oettger was a tailor.

AMERICAN HELD BY VILLA BAND FOR $10,000 RANSOM

Ranch Manager Believed to Have Been Taken Into Mountains; No Official Report of Capture.

By the Associated Press.

EAGLE PASS, Tex., Dec. 13.—Interest in Villista activities in the State of Coahuila tonight centered in the holding by the bandits of an American citizen for $10,000 ransom. The American held for ransom by Villa is Fred G. Hugo, manager of the J. M. Dobles ranch, near Muzquiz. It is presumed he was carried into the mountains to which the Villistas fled yesterday after their rout by Federal troops from Muzquis.

R. B. Dawson, a British subject, also reported captured by the bandits, was released, reports here said. Earlier reports that two Americans were held for ransom proved incorrect, due to an error in wire transmission. Besides Hugo, several prominent Mexicans are reported held by Villa for $5000 ransom.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 13.—The State Department has not received official confirmation of published reports that an American and an Englishman were among men held by Villa forces for ransom. The American Embassy will take up the matter with the Carranza Government if Americans are being held by Villa.

GARFIELD EXPLAINS HIS COAL STRIKE VIEWS TO SENATE

of cost of living had been only 79 per cent.

"Some members of the Cabinet," Dr. Garfield said, "supported him and some the Secretary of Labor, but all were in agreement on the balance of the proposal. He had finally taken the responsibility of putting through his settlement suggestion without securing a unanimous agreement of the Cabinet.

"I conceived myself to be the responsible officer," he said, "believing that I had authority to determine price questions. The matter was not presented to President Wilson."

14 Per Cent and Living Cost.

Applying the principles laid down, Dr. Garfield said, he decided that 14 per cent would meet the increased cost of living and that the operators could pay it out of profits and still keep enough mines running to supply the nation with coal under the fixed price per ton. The miners decided to refuse and continue the strike.

"I went home, thinking the matter was to be fought out," he said.

"And after that proposals were made in the Government to take the matter out of your hands, in spite of your magnificent war record and the way you were standing as a bulwark to the public?" Senator Frelinghuysen interjected.

"I don't wish to go into the matter of where and how the arrangement was made," Dr. Garfield said.

"But your proposals up to Dec. 4 were the Government's," Senator Myers began, "accepted by all parties as the fact, and then some change was made?"

"Yes," Dr. Garfield returned.

"Were you consulted?" Senator Townsend asked.

"No," Dr. Garfield replied.

Under insistent questioning, Dr. Garfield said he had not talked with John L. Lewis, acting president of the Mine Workers, and William Green, their secretary, on the flying visit made by those officials to Washington a week ago, when the strike settlement was submitted.

Would Not Object to Inquiry.

"If the President should see fit to establish a commission to review my work or my actions or my decision, that would not be a matter to which I would present any objection," Dr. Garfield said, reiterating that his objection was to "the basis by which a commisison, representative of two-thirds of the industry and one-third of the public, becomes empowered with right to control prices and wages."

"I think that is a power to which the Government cannot afford to surrender," he said.

"Do you know the Department of Justice, or the Department of Labor, or any other agency of the Government and the miners have come to a practical agreement that wages are to be increased by this commission above the 14 per cent you proposed?" Senator Townsend asked.

"I do not know that," Dr. Garfield replied sharply. "I make no statement that there has been such an agreement."

"It is my duty to ask you for the letter you sent to the President," Senator Frelinghuysen said, "and the telegrams the Attorney-General sent you in which was recorded the decision of the Government to fight the strike out on your proposition."

Dr. Garfield held to his refusal.

"Why Have You Resigned?"

"Now, why have you resigned?" the Senator asked.

"I've stated the principle involved," Dr. Garfield said.

"Do you see anything patriotic in the action of Lewis and his associates in calling off the strike?" Senator Frelinghuysen asked, referring to a message of congratulation sent from the White House.

"Not more so than when you or I obey the law generally."

The subcommittee before which Dr. Garfield appeared commenced its investigation of the coal strike situation some weeks ago and had Dr. Garfield's promise to appear. He was unable to respond to the request until tonight.

Chairman Frelinghuysen said the question of issuing subpenas to secure papers Dr. Garfield refused to produce would be considered.

RESOLUTION ON JEWS' PROTEST

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 13.—Protests voiced at a recent St. Louis mass meeting against the massacres of Jews in Ukraine were brought before the House of Representatives today in the form of a resolution introduced by Representative Newton of St. Louis, calling upon the Government, through diplomatic channels to use its best efforts to stop "what appears to be a merciless persecution of the Jewish people in Ukraine and other States in Eastern and Southeastern Europe."

The resolution recites that daily reports of heartrending outrages against the Jews in these sections have been received and that it is incumbent on the United States as the champion of oppressed peoples to take action.

LESS TUMULT AT HOUSE COMMITTEE HEARING ON IRELAND

ies' Auxiliary to the Ancient Order of Hibernians:

Cites Case of Cuba.

Cockran said diplomatic recognition would be a "most formidable step towards Irish freedom."

Arguing that Congress has precedents for such action, he cited the policy of the United States toward Cuba, Porto Rico, and the Philippines, and asserted that Sinn Fein courts were functioning in all parts of Ireland, except Belfast and Dublin.

"This is the answer to every dispute of whether there is a defacto government," he said. "They are settling every dispute and functioning as no other government in Europe. The only trouble is when the police try to stop these courts, as in Belfast and Dublin. The Sinn Fein courts yield justice and the whole population is yielding to these courts."

For three centuries, Cockran said, British laws had denied the Irish land ownership and kept them in poverty.

"After the repeal of these laws, the customs established under them continued," he declared. "The Irish race cannot be exterminated. That was tried for three centuries and failed. If it cannot be exterminated, then the Irish race must be emancipated."

No Action by Committee.

The entry of the United States in the world war raised the struggle to the plane of a "great crusade" for justice to all, Cockran said, urging that recognition of Ireland would be notice to the world that this country was continuing that pledge. As he concluded an uproar of applause swept the room, to be checked only when committeemen rapped for order.

No action was taken by the committee, which adjourned with the announcement that the legislation would be taken under advisement.

During the session Judge James E. Deery of Indianapolis, national president of the Ancient Order of Hibernians, told the committee that the order stood for independence for Ireland. James K. McGuire of New Rochelle, N. Y., to support the bill's provision for consular representatives, put in the record figures of Irish foreign trade, and Eugene E. Kinkead, a former representative from New Jersey, denied that the Pennsylvania branch of the American Legion had taken a stand against the Irish republic.

400 NATIVES KILLED IN PUNJAB REBELLION, SAYS CORRESPONDENT

Special Cable to the Post-Dispatch.

LONDON, Dec. 13.—What is called a horrifying story of the treatment of a subject by a dominant race is revealed today by the Manchester Guardian in the official record of the inquiry into the measures taken by the Government of India to suppress the Punjab rebellion last April.

Gen. Dyer is declared to have justified orders by which an unarmed crowd of 5000 was fired on until every soldier had exhausted every cartridge, had killed between 400 and 500 natives and wounded upward of 1500 more.

The Guardian correspondent, under the date of Nov. 21, says:

"The Hunter Committee now at work in India investigating the recent rebellion in the Punjab has already elicited evidence which even to those in India closely connected with the events is regarded as nothing less than amazing. The account of the riots at Amritsar, where a crowd numbering some thousands were fired upon in a closed square, suffering casualties of between 400 and 500, is the first complete account that has yet appeared, and is taken entirely from evidence given before the committee by the former deputy commissioner of Amritsar and other British officials connected with the administration at that time. The report goes on to give the testimony, the whole making almost as horrible a chapter as the aftermath of the Sepoy rebellion.

OFFER FARM FOR U. S. TEACHER

AGREES TO DIVORCE SO SHE MAY AGAIN WORK IN HOSPITAL

Wife of East St. Louis Postmaster Gives Up Social Position and Permits Husband to Get Decree.

SAID SHE REGRETTED GIVING UP CAREER

Mrs. Edgar Hugh Little, Formerly Miss Gertrude Cline, Once Headed Deaconess Hospital.

Preferring a life of activity in hospital work to that of a social leader as the wife of a prominent physician and politician, Mrs. Gertrude May Little, superintendent of the Mount Sinai Hospital in Chicago, yesterday permitted her husband, Dr. Edgar Hugh Little, Postmaster at East St. Louis, to obtain a divorce without contest. Mrs. Little entered her appearance through an affidavit acknowledging service and agreeing to immediate trial.

The suit was filed at 11 a. m. yesterday by Attorney Zulley, who kept the petition in his pocket until after the case had been disposed of at 4:30 p. m. Three newspaper reporters were the only spectators. Louis Beasley, law partner of Zulley served as court reporter. Judge Cook ordered that a copy of the testimony be filed so that Mrs. Little may see it should she do desire.

Dr. Little was granted custody of their son, Edgar, 8 years old.

Still Good Friends.

The divorce was granted on grounds of desertion. The couple became acquainted while Mrs. Little, then Miss Cline, was superintendent of Henrietta Hospital, now the Deaconess Hospital in East St. Louis. They eloped to Vandalia, Ill., where they were married May 24, 1909, after which they went to Europe, where they spent two years, while Dr. Little studied. Little testified that during the nine years they lived together they never had a quarrel, and they still were good friends. He said his wife frequently bemoaned the fact that she had given up her career and independence for matrimony. He said she ceased to be a wife to him during January, 1917, although they continued to live in the same house, a 14-room residence at 1623 State street, until April 14, last, when she went to Chicago.

He said that nothing was said by her prior to her departure to indicate that she intended to remain away, and since then she repeatedly asked him to join her in Chicago, saying she would never return to East St. Louis. In giving testimony and in discussing his affairs with reporters after the decree had been granted, Dr. Little spoke in the highest praise of Mrs. Little.

The other witnesses were Laura Seibert, an employe of the Little household, and Dr. Rolla Little, brother to the plaintiff, who resides at the State street residence.

Sorry She Gave Up Career.

Dr. Little said his wife was unable to interest herself in civic and social affairs. While other women were active in Red Cross and similar work during the war, he sought to have her enter into the activities, but she said she could not become interested, as her sphere and ambitions were among the sick and helpless, and in the interest of improvement in institutional work.

When he was appointed postmaster in 1914, Dr. Little said, he tried to have his wife enter into social activity, as he sought to make his home a place where he could entertain his friends and their wives, and develop social activities among the employes of the postoffice, but he said it seemed impossible for her to become interested in the work.

He said her attitude was not due to any presumption on her part that others were inferior, but because she felt that she was wasting her time.

Dr. Little said his wife never offered any objection when he informed her he proposed obtaining a divorce, and did not ask for a division of property.

ROADS WORK FOR MISSOURI

Hawes and Walsh Bringing Back Pamphlets From Washington.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 13.—"Missionary work" in the interest of good roads throughout the country and particularly in Missouri was carried on here today by Harry B. Hawes and Raymond Walsh, of the Federated Roads Council of St. Louis. They are taking back to Missouri a library of books and pamphlets on the subject.

Senator Townsend of Michigan, chairman of the Roads Committee of the upper House, told Walsh that he intended to push his pending bill, which provides for the creation of a national highway commission and the building of a system of national highways.

Husband of Mary Ellen Lease Dies.

By the Associated Press.

WICHITA, Kan., Dec. 13.—Charles L. Lease, husband of Mary Ellen Lease, one of the pioneers in the woman's suffragist movement, died here today at the age of 80. Mrs. Lease, who advised Kansas to "raise less corn and more hell," and was widely known as a militant suffragette, died in New York several years ago.

TAKING OF U. S. CENSUS IN ST. LOUIS TO START JAN. 2

Supervisor Asks for Co-operation as Enumeration Will Determine Rank of Cities in Population.

St. Louisans Urged to Freely Answer Census Questions

ST. LOUISANS are urged by proclamation of the President and appeal of the Supervisor of the Census in St. Louis to answer freely the questions that will be put to them by census enumerators who will begin going about the city on Jan. 2. The answers to the questions are not divulged under any circumstances, except in the form of aggregate, impersonal statistics. The chief questions follow:

Age at last birthday.

Each person 10 years of age and over will be asked whether he is able to read or write.

Each person will be asked his birthplace as well as the birthplace of father and mother.

If foreign-born the date of coming to the United States will be asked, and, if naturalized, the date of becoming a citizen; also mother tongue or native language.

Each head of a family will be asked whether his home is owned by him or rented. If owned, whether the home is mortgaged or free of debt.

Each person will be asked his occupation and whether he is an employer or employe or is working on his own account.

The task of finding out how many persons reside in St. Louis, which will be part of the taking of the census of the United States by the Federal Government, will be begun on Jan. 2. The Federal census is taken every 10 years. The population of St. Louis by the 1910 census was 687,029.

John A. Burke, an attorney, is supervisor of the census for St. Louis. He has employed 600 enumerators, more than half of whom are women. The time allotted for completion of the work is two weeks. It probably cannot be completed in that time.

Burke yesterday expressed his desire that he would have the public-spirited co-operation of all St. Louis residents. Some of the questions which will be asked may seem personal to some. In that connection, Burke stated that information elicited by the census cannot be used by any other department of Government for the levying or collection of taxes, nor to harm of the informant in any way. Enumerators are required under penalty to divulge nothing that they may learn of citizens' affairs while performing their duties.

Will Determine Population Rank.

Burke points out that every St. Louisan should be interested in seeing that the canvass is thorough, because it will determine the population rank of this city. St. Louis now is fourth in the United States in population.

"We want them all," Burke said. "Every man, woman and child within the city's limits. St. Louis must maintain her place in the population race, and she will do so if all the people will just give a hand and cooperate with the enumerators in their work. I appeal to the civic pride of our people in this particular, and ask them to interest themselves in this work, and to aid the enumerators in whatever way may present itself. Make them feel they are welcome, though this advice is hardly necessary in St. Louis where hospitality is of the essence.

"Ask them into the houses—the weather is likely to be inclement in January—and be especially courteous and considerate of the women enumerators. Don't worry about possible imposters. Every enumerator will be armed with an identification card and a written commission. Besides, it is a Federal offense for anyone to impersonate a census official, and any such occurrence should be reported to the authorities at once."

Difficulties of Census.

Burke defines the two chief difficulties of the census as catching the apartment dweller and the transient in the cheaper downtown lodging houses. "The apartment dweller is constantly 'on the go,'" he said. "People who live in efficiency apartments do not stay much at home, or they would have more home-like homes. It may be necessary for the enumerators to choose early Sunday morning as the best opportunity to find this class at home."

Seventy of the 300 women enumerators are residents of the Twenty-eighth ward, which is in the West End. The women, many of them wives of prosperous men, seem to have recognized this as another opportunity to do for pay the character of work they did during the war from patriotic impulse. Many of the women are thoroughly familiar with the districts to which they have been assigned by their house-to-house canvasses in various war drives. Enumerators are paid at the rate of 4 cents a name. The Census Bureau states that enumerators can earn from $60 to $100 in two weeks.

Each enumerator is required to account for every inhabitant in his district. In the event that repeated calls get no answer, report of the fact will be made and special enumerators will get the desired information before the final figures are reported.

Questions Asked to Farmers.

Enumerators in the country are allowed 30 days in which to complete their work. Following are the questions that are asked the farmers principally for the information of the Department of Agriculture:

Each occupant of a farm will be asked how many years, if any, he worked on a farm for wages; how many years, if any, he was a tenant; and how many years, if any, he farmed as an owner.

Whether he owns, or rents, or partly owns and partly rents his farm, or whether he operates the farm for others as a manager or superintendent.

How many acres in his farm. Number of improved acres. Number of unimproved acres and number of acres of woodland.

Total value of farm. Total value of buildings. Value of implements and machinery on farm.

Whether farm is mortgaged. If so, the amount of the mortgage.

Expenses for feed, fertilizer and labor in the year 1919.

Several questions concerning artificial drainage of his farm.

Number of cows, horses, sheep, chickens and other domestic animals on the farm Jan. 1, 1920.

Quantity and acreage of all crops grown on the farm in 1919, including fruits and vegetables.

Quantity of milk and butter sold off the farm during 1919.

Acreage of timber land on farm and value of forest products.

The task of taking the census nationally requires 87,000 enumerators who work under 372 supervisors.

President Urges People to Give Accurate Census Information.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 13.—The following proclamation by President Wilson regarding the fourteenth decennial census which is to be taken beginning Jan. 2, was made public today by the Census Bureau:

"Whereas, by the Act of Congress approved March 3, 1919, the fourteenth decennial census of the United States is to be taken beginning on the second day of January, 1920, and

"Whereas, a correct enumeration of the population every 10 years is required by the Constitution of the United States for the purpose of determining the representation of the several states in the House of Representatives; and

"Whereas, it is of the most importance to the interest of all the people of the United States that this census should be a complete and accurate report of the population and resources of the nation;

"Now, therefore, I, Woodrow Wilson, President of the United States of America, do hereby declare and make known that, under the law aforesaid, it is the duty of every person to answer all questions on the census schedules applying to him and the family to which he belongs, and to the farm occupied by him or his family, and that any person refusing to do so is subject to penalty.

"The sole purpose of the census is to secure general statistical information regarding the population and resources of the country and replies are required from individuals only to permit the compilation of such general statistics. No person can be harmed in any way by furnishing the information required. The census has nothing to do with taxation, with military or jury service, with the compulsion of school attendance, with the regulation of immigration or with the enforcement of any national, state or local law or ordinance. There need be no fear that any disclosure will be made regarding any individual person or his affairs. For the due protection of the rights and interests of the persons furnishing information every employe of the Census Bureau is prohibited, under heavy penalty, from disclosing any information which may thus come to his knowledge.

"I therefore earnestly urge upon all persons to answer promptly, completely and accurately all inquiries addressed to them by the enumerators or other employes of the Census Bureau and thereby to contribute their share toward making this great and necessary public undertaking a success."

NEW ODEON SETTING USED FOR SYMPHONY

Georgian Drawing Room Effect Transfixes Kreisler and Audience Guesses at Panels.

It was promised last night's audience at the concert of the St. Louis Symphony Orchestra that the somewhat dingy setting of the Odeon stage would be replaced with something brighter. The promise was fulfilled to the point of transfixing the soloist, Fritz Kreisler, and permitting the audience all the pleasures attending the solution of a Chinese puzzle with a few ornithological problems besides.

The setting had a sort of Georgian drawing room effect, the walls being pale green. At the back were three large panels extending to the gold and white ceiling. Two-thirds of the height of each panel was taken up with an arch having the appearance of marble enclosing mahogany doors. Topping each arch was a pedestal and topping each pedestal was a statue. It was clear that the audience could not agree upon the statues. Handel, Beethoven and Hayden seemed a popular guess. Above each statue the panels had the appearance of black velvet, upon which were emblazoned huge peacocks with plumage extended in an atmosphere of red roses and other embroidered glories.

At either wing of the stage front was a smaller panel. On the right panel was a bird of paradise, with crimson body and yellow tail feathers of great length. Flying about were other red birds.

The panel at the left carried a fowl that to some appeared to be a South American cuckatoo. It has a pronounced topnot and a long tail. The colors were red, white, blue, green and some others.

Kreisler turned his back upon his audience to survey his surroundings and when his eyes fell upon the cuckatoo his attention was held almost past the point of the beginning of his program.

The two chandeliers that composed the new lighting system were suspended by three ribbons and resembled big bass drums, the light shining through their parchment-like heads. The use of footlights was discontinued. The improvement in the general lighting was apparent.

The setting completely enclosed the orchestra, quite apparently lending brilliance to the acoustics. It was the work of Tom P. Barnett.

WOMAN'S SCREAMS SAVE $5000

There was $5000 in the safe of the Buhner-Roedig Packing Co. office and butcher shop at 153 Russell avenue, when a highwayman entered last night and commanded Mrs. Lena Buhner and Gus Langley to hold up their hands, but Mrs. Buhner ran out at the rear door, climbed on a shed and screamed for help so loudly that the robber departed after taking only $12.05, which was in the cash register.

The butcher shop and the packing company office are connected. Langley is the manager of the shop, and Mrs. Buhner is the wife of a member of the firm. The robber wore a handkerchief over his face when he entered, and carried a revolver.

POLITICAL ACTIVITY BY LABOR IS URGED

Union Leaders, Meeting in Washington, Call on Laborers to Seek Redress of Grievances.

By the Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 13.—A declaration of principles was adopted here tonight by the conference of presidents of labor unions affiliated with the American Federation of Labor. It calls on all workers to seek redress of their grievances by political pressure, presumably through existing parties, as no mention is made of a labor party.

Issues which face union labor require unity of effort, if "industrial tyranny is to be avoided," the declaration said. It denounces the use of injunction proceedings in the mine strike and criticises the "usurpation of unconstitutional authority by the judiciary." The declaration had the approval of President Samuel Gompers of the American Federation of Labor. Numerous resolutions were introduced and many attempts were made to change the draft without success.

Radical Activities Condemned.

Radical activities were condemned by the conference and workers were urged to aid in stamping out "destructive elements" in their own ranks. At the same time dangers that lay on the other side were noted, "for powerful forces are seeking more and more to infringe upon the rights of the wage earners and deny to him the right to cease work," the declaration said.

"The perversion and abuse of the writ of injunction" was enumerated among these.

The declaration urged Congress to enact legislation retaining the railroads under Federal control for "at least two years after Jan. 1, 1920," to permit detailed study of the situation and save the country from another increase in transportation rates."

The fixing of wages on a cost-of-living basis was strongly disapproved.

The antistrike provision of the Cummins railroad bill were described as "establishing, by legislation, involuntary servitude."

"Labor fully understands that powerful interests are at work today to achieve reaction in industry, if possible," the declaration continues.

The right of Federal, state and municipal employes to organize and affiliate with the American Federation of Labor also was defended. Interests of these workers, the statement argues, could best be promoted through legislation and administration, but their rights must be safeguarded fully through their own organizations.

Treaty Adoption Urged.

Adoption of the peace treaty was urged. "We feel that we cannot with honor and humanity maintain a policy of isolation and disinterestedness from the distress and sufferings of the European peoples," the declaration said.

The treaty's labor provisions were indorsed and it was declared that only through them could the standard of working conditions throughout the world be lifted.

Labor's proposals, submitted to President Wilson's first industrial conference, were reiterated and the attitude and action of the employers' group at that conference bitterly assailed. A "small majority" in that group was charged with the failure of the conference, in which labor had made a sincere effort to aid in ending unrest, the declaration said.

GIRLS HAUL OUT COAL AS THEIR FATHER DIGS IT

Shortage of Manager of Collinsville Mine Is Solved in Four and a Half Hours.

Some unusual makeshifts were the product of the coal shortage caused by the strike, two interesting stories which come from the East Side being as follows:

The family of Lewis Williams, manager of the Bunker Hill mine at Collinsville, ran out of coal Wednesday, although he had access to the whole mine. It was a case of coal, coal, coal, but not a lump to burn, until his daughters, Gladys, 19 years old, a teacher in the Columbian School, and Hazel, 17, a high school student, volunteered to turn miners. They donned overalls, went into the shaft and loaded the coal into the boxes as their father dug it. They got out 75 bushels in four and one-half hours, and the famine was ended, as far as they were concerned.

The East Side Coal Co.'s mine, at Edwardsville, for several months had been filling in a railroad embankment with refuse from the mine. During the shortage, 1000 tons was shoveled out of this embankment and sold. It wasn't very good coal, but it would burn. The mine price of such coal was about $2 a ton. Hereafter the company will construct its embankments with less precious stuff.

LINER CARMANIA BARELY SAVED FROM BEING CRUSHED AT SEA

Quick Maneuvering Prevented Collision in Fog From Having Serious Results.

By the Associated Press.

HALIFAX, Dec. 13.—Recitals of passengers on the Cunard liner Carmania, which arrived here today after being in collision with the American freighter Maryland on Wednesday evening off Cape Race, indicate that a marine disaster was barely averted. The Maryland was heading, bow on, for the midship section of the Carmania when she loomed up out of the fog and darkness. Only quick maneuvering of both vessels converted the shock into a glancing blow, which smashed in four ports and sheared off rivets and damaged plates on the liner over an area 25 feet square.

Temporary repairs which were made after the collision were inadequate to keep out the water during rough weather encountered the following morning, and rooms and corridors were flooded.

Most of the third-class cabin passengers had lined up for entrance to a concert in the dining saloon and were thrown from their feet by the impact. Women became hysterical, several fainted and great excitement prevailed until word came from the bridge that the liner was not seriously damaged. First-class passengers who felt the shock to a lesser degree united in praising the presence of mind of the captain and officers of the Carmania.

NO GOVERNMENT AID FOR RIVER TERMINALS

Hines Tells St. Louis Delegates to Conference Early End of Control Makes It Inadvisable.

The Railroad Administration will not undertake the construction of transfer terminals at points along the Mississippi River between St. Louis and New Orleans necessary to the operation of extensive river and rail rates in connection with the Government River Service, which is the fleet of towboats and barges now being operated.

This was the statement in Washington Friday of Director-General Hines to United States Senator Spencer, James E. Smith, president of the Mississippi Valley Waterways Association, and T. F. Cunningham of New Orleans. Smith returned from Washington last night with news of the conference.

Hines last summer indicated his willingness to furnish approximately $3,000,000 needed for the terminals, and caused engineers to submit plans for them. He new declares that the period of Government control of railroads and waterways likely will end early in 1920, making any new undertaking at this late date inadvisable.

Noncommittal on Tariffs.

He was noncommittal concerning the desire of St. Louis and other valley cities that the restricted rail and river tariffs now in effect be extended to permit St. Louis to ship by river and rail to Texas and to Southeastern states and to similarly otherwise widen the scope of the river's benefits. This was one of the chief aims of the Mississippi Valley delegation which gathered in Washington last week.

However, he did make it certain that tariffs on those rates which have been authorized would be published before the period of his control ends. Chief among these rates are those which will permit shipments by river and rail from St. Louis to points in Southern Arkansas, including Little Rock, and to points in the eastern half of Louisiana.

Hines appeared surprised when informed of the limited territory to which shipments by the barge line could be made, indicating to the river advocates that he had not been aware of the difficulties which have been met with in his own department in obtaining measures necessary to fix the success of the river experiment.

River Service to Continue.

"One thing is certain," Smith said. "The Government River Service will be continued beyond the period of Government control of railroads and will be continued long enough to affor an honest test. I am almost equally sure that the extension of the rail and river rates will be accomplished by mandatory legislation in the railroad bill which will be the outcome of the House and Senate conferences on the Cummins and Esch bills. I reach this conclusion from interviews with both Esch and Cummins and the apparent favor with which we were received by the Rivers and Harbors Committee of the House. There has never been a time when favor for waterways was so high in Washington as it is today."

Smith said that permission had been granted for the Government River Service to employ solicitors of freight. Lack of authority to employ solicitors has been one of the handicaps of the experiment from its beginning. There has been virtually no means, except the press, of informing shippers of the freight savings that could be theirs by use of the barges.

KING'S FIRST WILL UPHELD; GASTON MEANS LOSES SUIT

$3,000,000 Left by Lumberman to Go to Home for Old Men in Chicago.

By the Associated Press.

CHICAGO, Dec. 13.—Probate Judge Henry Horner today handed down a decision sustaining the validity of the first will of James King, wealthy lumberman, who died in 1905, leaving an estate of $3,000,000, the bulk of which was bequeathed to the building and maintenance of the James C. King Home for Old Men in Chicago.

The second will, under which practically the entire estate would have gone to Mrs. Maude A. King, was declared spurious by Judge Horner, and the efforts of Mrs. Melvin and Gaston B. Means, who is alleged to have discovered the second will, to have the instrument declared valid, were denounced by the Court as a fraud.

The case has been in the courts for several years, and counsel for Mrs. Melvin and Means, it is said, will take an appeal to the higher courts.

Under the second will, which was said to have been made by King Oct. 9, 1905, less than a month before his death, the bulk of his fortune was bequeathed to his widow. After her death it was found that she had willed the greater portion of her estate to her sister, Mrs. Melvin.

The legal fight to supplant the probated will of Mr. King, made in July, 1901, bequeathing most of his estate to the Northern Trust Co. of Chicago as trustee for the erection and maintenance of the home for old men and giving only $100,000 to Mrs. King, was begun after Mrs. King had died of a bullet wound on a lonely road near Concord, N. C., Aug. 29, 1917.

"SAFETY FIRST" IDEA WILL BE EMPHASIZED

Council to Use $10,000 Promised by Rotary Club as Basis of 1920 Campaign.

Safety first, last and all the time, in the street, the home, the factory, the school and elsewhere is the aim of the Safety Council of St. Louis, which has obtained the promise of a $10,000 fund from the Rotary Club to use as the foundation of its 1920 campaign for the elimination of needless injury and death.

M. L. Fellmer, secretary of the Central Mississippi Valley Division, National Safety Council, who is in charge of the work here, says that the emblem of the council is the white cross—a new safety symbol.

The work of the council will be concentrated chiefly on elimination of injuries by automobiles. "The automobile as such is not dangerous, but in 1920 St. Louis will have 60,000 of them on its narrow streets," Fellmer said, "and we must get the public to realize the danger from them if due precautions are not exercised.

"Under the common law we cannot limit the crossing of streets to corners only, but we can advise against it. We want the public to use only the crossings provided, watching the traffic officer where there is one, and looking to the left for traffic from one way until the middle of the street is reached, then to the right. That alone will eliminate many injuries."

Plans to Educate Public.

The council will endeavor to educate the public to danger from all sources, however. "Getting on and off street cars, elevators and trains, working around machinery and pleasure seeking on the Meramec River will be included," said Fellmer.

A week of campaigning by "four-minute speakers" in various theaters has just ended, the audiences being told of the increased danger just now due to congestion downtown caused by Christmas shopping. In the schools the safety work is continually being carried forward by the teachers.

The $10,000 fund of the Rotary Club was promised at a recent dinner. The president of the club will appoint 100 members to see 10 men each for a $10 contribution.

The chief expenditure will be for bulletin boards to be placed in all garages and gasoline filling stations, warning pictorially of traffic dangers, and accompanied by copies of the traffic laws. These bulletins will cost $5000.

All of the $10,000 will be expended on this and similar objects. Secretary Fellmer is paid by the national body, and he is the only paid executive or employe.

To Distribute Traffic Rules.

Among other expenditures will be the following: Giving every applicant for an automobile license a copy of the traffic rules, working for better automobile legislation, conducting a school for chauffeurs, furnishing speakers to various clubs to teach safety, including women's organizations, that the homes may be reached; safety movies on the playgrounds next summer, a school of propaganda in all the city's schools, including universities and private schools; a statistical committee to study the causes of injuries, and the continuation of the vigilance committee watching careless driving.

Courses of instruction for chauffeurs, superintendents, foremen and others are now being held.

Safety campaigns began 10 years ago when industrial employers throughout the country saw the loss to themselves and their employes in needless injuries. Industrial campaigns for safety have met with great success. Other cities are now following St. Louis' lead in a general safety campaign.

Gridiron Club Joker Says Coal King Sings of High Price and Short Weight

Vice President Marshall Heads Group of Distinguished Guests at Dinner of Washington Correspondents.

By the Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 13.—The Gridiron Club had its little evening of fun with public men and things at its opening winter dinner tonight. Headed by Vice President Marshall, Cabinet members, Ambassadors and Ministers of the diplomatic corps, and members of Congress, a large guest list included scores of men well known in public and private life.

Nothing was spared from the traditional gridiron. The railroad problem, prohibition, the labor situation, woman suffrage, reform and other topics in the public eye came in for their share of good-humored treatment.

Members of the club, principally Washington correspondents, took the parts of the actors in the skits which did the "gridironing" on these subjects.

As the the capital, like the remainder of the country, now has "dry" banquets, or at least is supposed to, it seemed appropriate that one of the skits should be on "Moonshine."

Moonshiners Prepare Brew.

A company of moonshiners preparing some "brew" was shown and some of the dialogue included the following "jabs":

"A gridiron dinner is not the place for that sort of thing."

"There ain't no place where it's more needed."

"Speaking of books on the subject, I see by the papers that the prohibition enforcement agents raided the office of the Saturday Evening Post and confiscated six installments of Henry Watterson's memoirs."

"Has it got any kick in it?"

"Kick, well you ought to see the way it keeled over Morris Sheppard and Wes Jones the other day."

"I see Vice President Marshall's here. Did you hear him order the Senate galleries cleared the other day when we cheered Jim Reed?"

"Oh, yes, that's the oldest Moonshine around here."

"I suppose you read that Josephus Daniels thinks he has a presidential boom?"

"That's moonshine off a green cheese."

"Speaking for the Old Solid Democratic party, I nominate the best-known moonshine dispenser of the day, Mr. Will H. Hays, chairman of the Republican National Committee"

"On behalf of the United States Republican party, progressive and reactionary factions, I suggest there is no finer connoisseur of moonshine than Mr. Homer S. Cummings, chairman of the Democratic National Committee."

It was decided to present both chairmen with a bottle of "moonshine." The bottles, they were told, were "refillable."

"Unscrambling the Railroads."

The railroad skit dealt with "unscrambling the railroads." The actors represented former Director-General McAdoo, Director-General Hines and an Investor.

McAdoo: "The late Mr. Morgan said that you cannot unscramble eggs. He was wrong. By the exercise of a little magic, to which we modestly lay claim, we shall illustrate how the railroads of the United States may be scrambled and then in the twinkling of an eye, as it were, and so to speak, unscrambled again. Can anyone loan me a silk hat. I shall return it promptly and entirely undamaged."

(Man steps forward with silk hat. He is Mr. Investor, a well-known citizen.)

McAdoo: "I shall return it with its pristine beauty untarnished."

Investor: "Please be careful. That hat represents the sale of a Liberty Bond."

McAdoo: "Tut, tut, have no fear, we shall not hurt it in the slightest. I shall break this egg into the hat—so"—— (Breaks and drops egg and shell into the hat.)

Investor: "Oh, my hat!"

McAdoo: "Tut, tut, sir. Have no fears. Trust me. Kindly turn your back. What you don't see won't annoy you. Now, we take another egg and break it—so. Now we take some flour—add some coal—pour in some of this agreeable variety of ketchup—add a little sand—and finish with a dash of vinegar. Please don't groan, Mr. Investor. It is all right. All these ingredients are symbolic, gentlemen. Now we have the roads scrambled. This completes my part of the trick. I shall now pass the buck—I mean the hat—to my friend, Mr. Hines, who will, in his magic way, with a few passes produce the beautiful rabbit known as Government operation and control, and return the hat undamaged to my good friend, Mr. Investor."

(Investor groans.)

A Little Messy.

Hines (looks at hat and glares at McAdoo)—"I am deeply indebted to Mr. McAdoo for his trust and confidence. I wish he had finished the trick. He hates the limelight, and likes to retire while the retiring is good. But to the trick, gentlemen. Let me first cover the hat for anesthetic and olfactory reasons. It is a little messy." (Covers hat with handkerchief, seizes wand.)

Hines: "I now make these mysterious passes—so—saying the babalistic words—Hocus—pocus—1920—Brotherhoods—As Taught Me By Mr. McAdoo. Then I quickly raise the cloth and here we have—(starts back, looking nervous.) Ah, I see, Mr. McAdoo forgot something. Let me add the Plumb plan." (Drops three plums and breaks another egg. Investor groans and tears his hair.)

Hines: (Continuing) "Now we have it. Hocus—pocus—1920—presto." (Takes up handkerchief, looks—starts back, rushes to McAdoo, saying:)

Hines: "My God, Mac; I can't do the trick."

McAdoo: "That's your affair—not mine."

Investor: "My hat—my hat!"

McAdoo: "Give him back his hat."

Hines: "But this mess—what will I do?"

McAdoo: "Oh, hand it back. He can't kick.'

Hines: "Here you are sir." (Hands hat to Investor, who takes it and yells:)

Investor: "What a mess! Oh, my hat! I can't use it. I can't clean it. I can't sell it. I can't give it away."

McAdoo and Hines: "Take it up to Congress. They'll fix it for you. (Both link arms, bow and go off.)

Insane Over Labor Problem.

The labor problem and its relation to politics got a "brief touch" in a skit wherein a policeman disturbed the banqueters, entering with a raving maniac.

"Who's he," was demanded.

"Well," replied the policeman, "it seems that a few days ago he was waited on by the managers of his political party and informed that he's been selected to write the labor plank in the next year's platform."

There was another labor skit described as the "one hundred and twenty-seventh installment of the Continuous Comedy Drama."

One actor who acknowledged that he was made up to look like Judge Gary of the United States Steel Corporation, said he had troubles remembering his lines, and was admonished not "to run up to New York for instructions" every time he forgot them.

Another, called Lentrotski, announced that he was the "sole surviving member of the International Labor Conference" and told the diners that his colleagues had been "asphyxiated by the United States Senate." He said he used both the names of "Lentrotski" and "W. Z. Foster" in "his business."

Finally, the director of the skit announced that it was "rotten" and that it would be done all over again, whereupon the actors struck and announced that they worked "only three hours a day" and "knew their rights."

"Life is one dam strike after another," groaned the director.

Utopia Right at Home.

The coal crisis came in for separate treatment in a skit dealing with "Utopia." The Coal King, the Landlord, the Butcher, the Baker, the Grocer and other functionaries of everyday life all had prominent parts through which they bewailed the prospect of no greater profits.

The Coal King sang that his idea of the greatest fun was "High-priced coal and a short-weight ton."

The Capitalist said his idea of Utopia was "a place where there is neither income nor excess profits taxes and you can charge 20 per cent interest." He wailed that "it's got so a billionaire can't lay up a dollar any more."

When the walking delegate entered he was invited to "come over and meet Judge Anderson of Indianapolis, "but the delegate protested that he 'was busy.'"

The King of Utopia advised them all to go back "to the good old U. S. A., play the game square and find Utopia right at home."

The walking delegate allowed that the place wasn't Utopia after all, but rather was "Hell."

Some singing of popular airs with words arranged for the occasion completed the evening. It included a little song for Vice President Marshall to the tune of "Bubbles," with the refrain:

"I'm forever facing troubles,
"But they never get my goat."

Senators Borah, Reed and Johnson of California came in for a little ditty entitled "Hiram, and William and Jim."

Four newly-elected members to the club, Ashmun N. Brown of the Seattle Post-Intelligencer; Mark L. Goodwin of the Galveston and Dallas News; H. E. C. Bryant of the Charlotte (N. C.) Observer, and Charles S. Groves of the Boston Globe were initiated. They tried to pass themselves off successively as the Four Horsemen of the Apocalypse, the Four Apostles, the Big Four at the Peace Conference and the Gridiron Quartet, but the diners would have none of it, the chairman pronounced them the four flushers, whereat they retired to "get up" another skit.

FRANCIS, AT CAPITAL, SOUNDS MISSOURIANS

Talks With Clark, Long and Others on Selection of Opponent for Spencer.

By the Washington Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 13.—Ambassador David R. Francis of St. Louis spent yesterday and today in Washington sounding the sentiment of Missourians on the political situation in their home State with special reference to the picking of a candidate to contest with Selden P. Spencer for the Senatorship. Francis tonight declined to discuss the senatorial race, further than to say that he would not enter into a contest for the nomination.

Among others Francis talked with former Speaker Champ Clark, Secretary of Commerce Alexander, Representatives Booher, Nelson and Rubey and Breckenridge Long, Third Assistant Secretary of State, who is himself a potential candidate for the nomination.

Wants Convention Support.

The concensus of opinion among those interested in the matter here is that Francis will take the nomination if it is tendered him by the party. He does not wish to fight for it, holding that a sharp primary contest would endanger Democratic chances of success in the election. If the nomination could be made at a State convention in the old-fashioned way, Francis would undoubtedly resign the Ambassadorship and accept.

If the same practical result can be achieved at an "advisory" convention preceding the primary, that is, if opposition can be eliminated in favor of the convention's choice and that choice happens to be Francis—in that event Francis will accept.

"Advisory Convention" Plan.

Such an "advisory" convention has been proposed by Harry B. Hawes, of St. Louis, also a visitor in Washington today. "Barkis is willin'" was the comment of one Missourian to whom Francis talked.

Tonight at the Willard Hotel, Francis and a friend clapped each other on the back in exuberant greeting. The friend is Dr. Hugh H. Young, who performed a successful operation on Francis in London a year ago, after the Ambassador had left Russia on a stretcher for the trip home. Dr. Young, who is in the medical department at Johns Hopkins' University, Baltimore, had come to Washington to attend the annual dinner of the Gridiron Club tonight. Francis also was a guest at the dinner.

Francis expected while there to extend an invitation to Herbert Hoover to address a mass meeting to be held in St. Louis next Thursday night to urge speedy ratification of the peace treaty.

POSITION OF PLANETS ALARMS PORTO RICANS

500 Students Ask University for Recess to Be With Parents on Dec. 17.

By the Associated Press.

SAN JUAN, Porto Rico, Dec. 13.—Five hundred university students, aroused by predictions of a calamity on the earth due to the juxtaposition of planets Dec. 17, have petitioned the Commission of Education for a recess in order that they may be with their parents or families on the 17th.

A general alarm has spread throughout the island following the publication by local newspapers of alarming prophecies concerning what was to happen Dec. 17.

Harvard Astronomer Ridicules Fears and Explains Phenomenon.

By the Associated Press.

NEW YORK, Dec. 13.—The world need fear no calamitous effects from the peculiar configuration of the planets that will occur next Wednesday, according to a statement by Dr. Harlan T. Stetson of the Harvard astronomical labratory, issued here today.

Predictions of floods, electrical storms, riots and other disturbances of far-reaching effect, credited recently to a popular meteorological scientist, are based on nothing more substantial than "hot air," Dr. Stetson said.

"There is absolutely no scientific foundation for predicting any of the other phenomena such as riots, which have been described as possibilities," he continued. "We can rest assured that our lives will remain untroubled on Dec. 17 by anything which could be traced to the position of the planets."

On Dec. 17, according to the Harvard scientist, all the planets, with the exception of the earth, will lie in an approximate line with the sun and all of them except Uranus will be on the same side of the sun. They will be strung along in approximately the same plane and approximately the same line, like so many points on one spoke of a wheel. Meanwhile Uranus will be on the same line, but on the other side of the sun, like the point on the spoke directly opposite.

By the Associated Press.

TORONTO, Dec. 13.—Collision with the head of a large comet would cause a calamity such as has been predicted for the world Dec. 17, according to officials in the Toronto observatory, but they add that if such collision were imminent "we would have had some warning."

"There is no comet of the size visible which would be apt to cause such a calamity," said one official, adding that there is no cause for alarm, as there is no recognized scientific basis for the prediction of disaster.

Indian Tribes in Oklahoma Prepare for End of World.

By the Associated Press.

LAWTON, Ok. Dec. 13.—Great excitement has been caused among the less educated and older members of Indian tribes in Southwestern Oklahoma as a result of predictions of the world's end Dec. 17. Along the creek banks and in the wilds of the Wichita Mountains the muffled beating of the tomtoms can be heard night after night as the red men dance and chant their weird songs, fearful of events to come in the next week. Older Indians are greatly depressed, declaring it is to be "heap cold" and that none will survive.

GIRLS OUTNUMBER BOYS IN W. U. UPPER CLASSES

Chancellor Explains Male Students Give Up College Work for Technical Courses.

Of the 916 students in the college division of Washington University, the number is more nearly equal as between boys and girls than usual, there being 428 of the latter and 488 of the former. The boys also outnumber the girls in about the same proportion in the two lower classes, but in the upper ones the girls have a decided majority, as has been true for several years. This fact, shown year after year, has led some observant members of the alumni to express to Chancellor Hall the belief that the small number of men taking the A. B. degree will eventually cause decline in the standing of the college section of the university, because, as time passes, its graduates promise to be chiefly women.

"It is, unfortunately, true that the number of men pursuing their studies to completion of the course for the A. B. degree steadily shrinks in proportion to the number of men entering the freshman year," Dr. Hall stated. "On the other hand, the women usually pursue their course to the end, so that in spite of the normal shrinkage due to various causes, the number of women annually graduating from the college corresponds fairly well with the number who enter the freshman year.

"The fact that relatively few men take the A. B. degree is to be regretted, but may be explained, at least in part, by the tendency in recent years to select that course of training which will fit one for some specific occupation in life. A great majority of young men who enroll have in mind primarily the preliminary preparation for some professional degree. Most of the professional schools connected with Washington University now require two years of college work, and in the near future it is probable that all of these schools will have this requirement.

"In America—thus far, at least—the leisure class is small, and in the Middle West most men begin to consider the means of livelihood at the earliest age consistent with sound preparation. No doubt public sentiment also plays a conspicuous part in diverting young men from what might be termed a cultural course to the so-called practical."

TELLS OF INFLUENZA HORRORS IN LABRADOR

English Doctor Says Dogs Reverted to Savage Instincts and Ate Human Bodies.

Dr. Harry L. Paddon, for seven years connected with the medical mission work of Dr. Wilfred T. Grenfell on the Labrador coast, spoke before the Round Table Club at the St. Louis Club last night, and showed lantern views of summer and winter scenes in Labrador. Dr. Paddon is an Englishman and an Oxford graduate. He will speak before the City Club at luncheon tomorrow, having arrived too late to keep an engagement at that club yesterday.

Dr. Paddon volunteered for war service, but was not accepted, as he was the only qualified practitioner on 900 miles of coast, and it was decided that he was most needed there. The section, which has never been represented in any legislative body of the British Empire, sent a body of volunteers, including eskimos, Indians and whites.

Life in Snow Season.

Most of his narrative and pictures were of life in the snowbound season, when dog sleds, known as komatiks, are the standard means of transportation. The temperature reaches 55 degrees below zero in winter, he said, whereas the summer extreme is 107 degrees, the range of temperature thus being 162 degrees.

"Our work is on a religious basis," the speaker said, "but it is a mission of practice rather than preaching. As originally built, our plant was more chapel than anything else. This looked like saying to the people that we had provisions for their souls only, and none for their bodies. So we turned the chapel into hospital space.

"The last mail boat that came to us in the fall of last year brought the Spanish influenza, of the existence of which none of us had heard. Of the 75 in our settlement, 67 contracted the disease, myself among the first. We had only two deaths, but at other points on the coast the results were frightful.

Bodies Eaten by Dogs.

"At the isolated places there were terrible incidents. Entire families were prostrated, and the dogs, with no one to feed them, reverted to their wolf instincts, and ate the bodies of those who died. One woman, more than 70 years old, only survivor of a family of five, defended the four corpses for nine days against the dogs, which tried to force their way in. She could not build a fire, although the temperature was freezing, as that would have made it impossible to keep the corpses in the house. She lived through it, and kept her reason.

"A little girl, on an island, in a somewhat similar position, was unable to keep the dogs away from the bodies of the rest of the family, and had to keep from freezing by standing against the bodies of the savage dogs. A native rescue party came after 17 days, and, through superstition, fled and left her there for several days longer. She survived that experience and remained sane. In other places, frozen or half-eaten bodies were found, with no survivors.

Preacher Kept Up Courage.

"The minister of the Episcopal Church in that region, the Rev. Henry Gordon, had to keep up the courage of his widely scattered parishioners and prevent a panic. He is not a physician, but he had to be nurse and grave-digger. The loss among his people was 25 per cent."

Dr. Paddon told of a memorable surgical experience, when, with most of his instruments 150 miles away, he faced the necessity of amputating the leg of one of his assistants, because of a gunshot wound, which had been inflicted in springtime duckshooting—a pursuit which is carried on in white canoes, with the hunters camouflaged in white to resemble ice floes.

With Patient 19 Nights.

"I put in the night before the operation in sterilizing everything," he related, "and in the morning the Labrador men handled the articles, and spoiled that work. I had to choose between a carpenter's saw and a small surgical saw. A tourniquet burst, because the rubber was rotten, and the Labrador men administered too heavy a dose of chloroform, so that the operation had to be dropped until this effect was overcome. The small saw broke. I was up with the patient 19 nights after that, and thank God, he pulled through."

Dr. Paddon told much of the Eskimo dogs, and mentioned the fact that sperm whale meat is fed to them, being considered fit only for dog food. He said he had been interested to hear that whale meat had been eaten in some eastern cities, and on some coastwise steamers.

Eskimo Dogs in Summer.

"The Eskimo dog is my friend," he said, "but in summer he is a curse to the country. He is likely to be saucy when overfed and underworked. There have been cases of wolf-like attacks on human beings. One woman was rescued from two dogs by a teacher, who had difficulty in keeping both himself and the woman from being killed. Yet two other dogs lay nearby, without taking any part in the attack.

"The choice of a leader dog is very important. The leader is guided by the driver's calls of "ouk, ouk' (right), 'ra, ra' (left), and 'aa-aa' (stop). A good leader has no use for a trail, and a leader which has once been over a route will subsequently follow his own path, regardless of what trails may be made.

Men Lost Every Season.

"Men are lost every season by not following good leader dogs, or by following dogs who are bad leaders. In the case of a party who left the komatiks to go deer hunting, and lost the way, a native boy, 16 years old, waited three days and two nights until they found their way back to him.

"Out on the open bays, the wind and snow give you a severe dusting, and it is hard for either man or dog to see. However, I have traveled 10,000 miles behind dogs, and I have never had to spend a night out, because I have always insisted on starting at the very earliest moment of dawn. Delay in starting may mean a night in an igloo or even worse shelter.

"The diseases found in that region are mostly due to deficiencies of clothing, diet, education and sanitation. These are scurvy, rickets, consumption, beri-beri and anemia. We are trying now to get four nurses, one of whose important duties will be to train the local midwives, who are shockingly incompetent.

Hit Wife With Stick of Wood.

"We serve as justices of the peace, but are somewhat handicapped in administering justice by the lack of jails or sheriffs, and by the inability of most persons to pay a money fine. I received a complaint from an Eskimo, who came to consider his wife his intellectual inferior, and who hit her on the head with a chunk of firewood. To teach him a proper respect for wood, I sentenced him to cut up 1000 terns (armloads) of wood for the nearest mission station."

CAPPER SUGGESTS PROFIT-LIMITING LAW

Senator Calls Attention to Canadian Plan Requiring Cost to Dealer to Be Recorded.

By the Washington Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 13.—Speaking yesterday in favor of the McNary bill to extend the life of the United States Sugar Equalization Board and permit it to take control of the available sugar supply, a bill which passed the Senate despite the opposition of Louisiana sugar interests, Senator Capper of Kansas declared that "speculation, spoliation and plunder" are rampant in the United States, and that train robbery or burglary is a poor trade by comparison.

Capper said that testimony before the Senate Agricultural Committee had convinced him that unless the Government took charge of the sugar business, prices would advance to a practically prohibitive figure. Though representing a State producing 50,000 tons of beet sugar annually, and interested in the encouragement of that industry, Capper said that in the present emergency the welfare of the whole country was to be considered ahead of the interests of any locality.

"The profiteers of big business, and this includes a lot of coal operators," said Capper, "are as great, or greater, menace to us than the Bolsheviks, the I. W. W. and the radicals who are preaching the overthrow of the Government.

Price of Oil Advances.

"Because the operators wished to pocket their war profits, while paying the miners wages lower in buying power than they were receiving in 1913, the people to keep warm had to resort to fuel oil, another natural resource provided by the Almighty. And what happened? Why, the usual thing. The price of fuel oil has been advanced 300 per cent in less than 30 days by a bunch of oil profiteers, not because of the increased cost of production that already has been well taken care of, but simply because the men in control of this product could get the money by exploiting the people's needs.

"I have filed charges direct with the Attorney-General against the oil profiteers in Kansas City and in Kansas, who have taken advantage of the fuel shortage period to line their pockets and have demanded immediate investigation, prosecution and imprisonment of those found guilty. I am glad to say to the credit of the Attorney-General that he began his investigation on the day following and undoubtedly will get results, as this is profiteering of the rankest kind.

"Unless we speedily check price gouging the high cost of profits is soon to be translated into the excessive cost of existence. We are beginning to hear about $18 shoes, $80 hand-me-downs and $15 hats for next spring, notwithstanding the people have bought and paid for all the cotton and woolen mills in a single year as during the war they bought and paid for all the shoe factories, all the big flour mills, all the steel mills, the saw mills, the packing houses, the tanneries, the coal mines and who knows what else, and yet do not own them, and are at their mercy. I do not concede that as yet labor troubles and slack productions are responsible, except in part, for the more and more excessive toll exacted of the consumer.

"Soak" All They Can Get.

"While the people made sacrifices and fought during the war and are still fighting and sacrificing, these industries have paid no part in the cost of the national defense, nor have they contributed anything to help the country except at war prices and for tremendous profits. And now they are collecting their war taxes from the people and exacting excessive toll besides by 'soaking' them for all they can get for their products.

"According to the papers today, Bradstreet's report shows that the cost of things to eat has increased another 1¼ per cent in the last 30 days, notwithstanding the millions lost in rating markets by Middle Western producers.

"Nine months ago a dollar would buy 5 pounds of coffee. Today it will buy only 2 pounds. A nickel sack of tobacco now costs 10 cents.

"Lumber sells at from $70 to $102 a thousand feet. I have it from a lumberman, who has spent his life in the business that this is at least 30 per cent beyond all reasonable profit.

"And so it goes, and will continue to go until we beggar the people, lower consumption, and kill demand, unless we find and apply the means to check the game of grab, which is at the bottom of most of our present troubles. Men working for wages may be expected to keep asking for more. They must if a family of five is to be shod with $18 shoes all around and supplied with other wearables and with eatables at constantly increasing prices.

"Profiteering is now a prison offense and I hope to see the State Governments actively assist the Federal Department of Justice in bringing all such offenders to book.

I. W. W. ACCUSED OF PLOTTING STRIKE 'TO STARVE THE ARMY'

Scheme to Escape War Service in 1917 by Checking Wheat Harvest Told of in Kansas Trial.

By the Associated Press.

KANSAS CITY, Mo., Dec. 13.—Alleged activities of the I. W. W. to bring about a general strike in the wheat fields in 1917 and thus "to starve the army," were brought out by the Government in testimony introduced in the trial of 32 alleged members of the organization in the Federal District Court in Kansas City, Kan., today.

Witnesses for the Government told of their operations when they acted as "sab cats" or saboteurs. Frank G. Wermke, 30 years old, who said he was a reformed I. W. W., was a Government witness.

While in a jail in North Dakota, where he said he was arrested in the summer of 1917, Wermke testified that the Judge of the court took an interest in him. Through his conversations with the Judge, the witness said, he began to see things in a different light and when released from jail joined the army. He testified that he had served 22 months in the army, 11 of which were spent in France.

In a letter written by Phineas Eastman, one of the defendants, to William D. Haywood, is this passage: "I have been outlawed by my master for so-called genteel jobs and am, and have been for some time (12 years), a real working stiff. I can thank whisky primarily for this, which I do fervently. If I had never drunk I would not have been estranged from my aristocratic people and bourgeois associations and would have remained ineligible to become a member of the I. W. W., whisky having been accredited (innocently, it's true) with guiding my foosteps into the paths of industrial unionism and the only life."

30 HERE TO SUE LOUISIANA ORANGE GROVE COMPANY

Investments by St. Louisans Said to Approximate $90,000 — Suits to Be for $300,000.

PROMOTERS HAD GREAT PROSPECTUS

Land Described as So Wonderfully Fertile Is Declared, However, to Suffer From Salt Water.

Following the filing Friday of an attachment suit against the Hibernia Bank & Trust Co. of New Orleans, covering more than $12,000 of its funds on deposit in local banks, it was announced by counsel that suits will be started shortly by about 30 St. Louisans against the same defendant on account of an investment they made in a Louisiana orange grove project.

The St. Louisans invested approximately $90,000, representing sums they either paid in cash or gave their notes for. However, the suits will ask for a total of $300,000 damages, this being what the investors estimate the property would have been worth had the land company which promoted the enterprise fulfilled its promises, according to Harry C. Barker, one of their attorneys.

Receiver in 1918.

The attorney says that the Hibernia Bank & Trust Co. is liable because it guaranteed the contracts by which the land company sold the orange groves. The land company passed into the hands of a receiver in September, 1918, since which time suits have been filed in New Orleans by investors. Barker said that the selling company which sold the stocks, of which C. W. Marsh of Chicago and New Orleans was the head, received over $1,000,000 in commissions.

The St. Louis investors and the amount of their investments are: George W. Chadsey, 6334 Waterman avenue, $10,000; L. R. Gifford, 521 Frisco Building, and his wife, $3350 each; estate of John P. Reese, 5614 Waterman avenue, $3200; William J. Zeller, 4701 McPherson avenue, president Zeller Bros. Catering Co., $3550; B. G. Shackelford, 3622 Lafayette avenue, principal of the Fremont School, $3075; Oliver T. Remmers, 736 King's highway Park, lawyer, $3075; Louis P. Scoville, 4442 Olive street, $3250; Dr. F. C. Rodgers, Wall Building, $3075; R. J. Leacock, president Leacock Sporting Goods Co., $5700; Joseph Sheldon, 728 North Taylor avenue, $3250; R. L. Mernagh, 1014 Chemical Building, $2200; W. H. Funke, 1009 Railway Exchange Building, $3450; Dr. Lister Tuholske, 453 North Taylor avenue, $5700; Walter A. Godbey, principal Shepard School, 3450 Wisconsin avenue, $3075; Dr. J. L. Marder, 3157 North Vandeventer avenue, $6700; F. T. Hatch, 1311 Syndicate Trust Building, $3250; E. A. Koeneman, 1420 Pine street, $3550; his brother, William A. Koeneman, 1305 Pine street, same amount; D. J. Pine, 4015 Sullivan avenue, $2850; William M. Porteous, 2051 Railway Exchange Building, $3250; L. H. Wagner, 3734 Wyoming street, $3075; Mrs. Sarah J. Stephens, wife of the Mayor of East St. Louis, $2850; Mrs. Alice Meeker, widow of Congressman Jacob E. Meeker, 3433 Giles avenue, $3075; Hugo Wurdack, president of the Light and Development Co. of St. Louis, $3250.

Other local investors whose claims could not be ascertained yesterday are Robert W. Brooks, 406 Security Building; H. J. Willey, 1800 Sidney street, and Harold R. Wilson, 1102 Federal Reserve Bank Building.

Claim by Meeker's Estate.

Congressman Meeker's estate also has a claim in the matter, Attorney Barker said. He pointed out that the selling contracts provided that if an investor died within two years from the time of purchase and had faithfully paid notes when due, remaining notes were to be canceled and the estate of the deceased obtain absolute title. Meeker bought two groves and paid on the notes more than two years before his death, but the company has not kept its contract in regard to surrendering notes not yet matured, the attorney said.

The plaintiff in the attachment suit is Circuit Judge James G. Tucker of Mount Clemens, Mich., who recently presided at the trial of Henry Ford's $1,000,000 libel suit against the Chicago Tribune. The Judge invested $2500 in orange groves, and is suing for $9100 damages. He alleges that misrepresentation was made to induce him and others to buy.

Glowing Description.

His petition recites that in 1913 a land company decided to exploit certain marsh land bordering on Lake Ponchartrain, Louisiana, as a citrus fruit proposition. This consisted of 7700 acres, divided into five-acre groves, each grove to have a villa in order to make it more attractive, he avers. The selling company, he says, put on a campaign in which they described in glowing terms the advantages of the tract, "misnomered orange groves," and promised that the groves would be planted "with trifoliate stock and the best grade of sweet orange and grapefruit stock, creating a semi-deciduous tree capable of withstanding frost." The climate there, the plaintiff avers, was pronounced superior to that of Florida and California, and the place, it was said, "would become the garden spot of the world, scented with orange blossoms and filled with melody of birds."

Lake Pontchartrain was pictured, the Judge avers, "as the greatest duck-hunting pond in the United States, and the fishing thereon such as Isaac Walton never dreamed of." As a result, he avers, 859 persons, including himself, "dwellers amid the snow and ice of northern states," entered into alleged contracts to purchase 1250 groves at average price of $3500, making a total of $4,300,000. The promoters represented that each grove ought to net $2500 a year, Judge Tucker alleges.

As a matter of fact, the plaintiff further avers, the climate is not suitable for growth of citrus fruits, the fertility of the soil is impaired by salt water washing over from the Gulf of Mexico, frosts of three winters, 1916, 1917 and 1918 contributed to prevent the growth of orange trees, the land was a marsh or "floating island," and the growth of weeds and shrubbery is so rapid as to make cultivation impracticable. Judge Tucker also complains that the marsh is a breeding ground for mosquitos.

After the receivership proceedings against the land company, investors, including St. Louis interests, banded together for protective purposes, Attorney Barker said. Before this time the company made frequent explanations of the reason for the failure of the trees to produce which seemed to satisfy those concerned. The receivership, however, precipitated a getting-together of the different interests and resulted in local investors forming the "St. Louis Orange Grove Association" to prosecute their claims. B. G. Shackelford was chairman. Thirteen suits filed in New Orleans similar to Judge Tucker's suit here are in the nature of legal experiments, Barker said. Other local lawyers associated with him are Walter H. Saunders and Roy T. Britton.

WEAK EXCHANGE RATES FAIL TO LOWER CORN

Week's Prices Are Steady After Some Early Selling; Oats Follow Corn.

Despite sensational breaks in foreign exchange, the corn market here last week showed comparative strength. Scantiness of readily available supplies was largely responsible, and quotations at the close yesterday compared with a week ago, varied from steady to an advance of 2¼c. Oats showed a gain of a shade to ⅝c.

Fuel restrictions and severe cold weather operated simultaneously to hinder the movement of corn to primary centers. Besides, the frigid temperatures acted as a stimulus to increased feeding of livestock. On the other hand, the actual ending of the coal strike led many owners of corn to realize on their holdings.

Selling pressure due to this reason was greatly added to at times by one collapse after another in foreign exchange. Throughout the week, however, the smallness of the stock of corn in sight was so apparent as to check any serious decline in values. Yesterday's market was irregular.

Notwithstanding gossip that foreigners were reselling, the oats market was governed by the action of corn. Receipts were light, and promised to continue so. Yesterday's market was firm.

Record prices and bountiful production sent the value of United States farm crops harvested this year to the unprecedented total of $14,092,740,000, exceeding the value of last year's crops by almost $1,500,000,000.

Final estimates of production were issued Friday by the Department of Agriculture and values were based on prices paid to producers Dec. 1. The area of harvested crops this year was more than 2,600,000 acres larger than last year, amounting to a total of 359,124,473 acres.

Corn easily maintained its place as "King of Crops," with a value of $2,934,234,000, while cotton, including cottonseed, was second with a total value of $2,132,912,000. Hhe May crop was third with $2,139,087,000.

Wheat, combining the winter and spring crops, was fourth with $2,028,522,000. Oats, a billion-dollar crop last year, reached a total of only $895,408,000, because of decreased production.

Record crops of winter wheat, rice, sweet potatoes and hay were grown, while the production of all wheat, rye and tobacco was next to the largest harvested.

Prices paid producers were higher this year for every crop than they were last year, with the exception of beans, cranberries and oranges.

St. Louis Cash Grain.

Cash corn was 1c to 3c lower here yesterday and in fair demand.

Cash oats were steady; demand fair.

Quote: No. 1 red winter wheat, $2.51; No. 2 red winter, $2.48@2.50; No. 3 red winter, $2.41@2.46; No. 4 red winter, $2.36; No. 3 hard, $2.45; No. 3 corn, $1.45; No. 4, $1.40½@1.51; No. 3 yellow $1.46; No. 4 yellow, $1.42@1.44; No. 5 yellow, $1.39; No. 3 white, $1.47@1.48; No. 4 white, $1.43@1.44; No. 2 white oats, 83@83½c; No. 3 white, 82½@83c; No. 3, 81c.

CHICAGO CORN MARKET WEAK AND NERVOUS AT CLOSE

CHICAGO, Dec. 13.—Weakness developed in the corn market today largely as a result of the fact that the Government crop report was construed as bearish. The close was nervous. At the same as yesterday's finish to ⅜ cents lower, with January $1.34⅛ to $1.34⅜ and May $1.31½ to $1.32. Oats gained ⅛ cents to ⅜ cents. In provisions the outcome varied from 37 cents decline to 12 cents advance.

Corn traders took special notice of Government figures, showing an increase of the yield of corn as compared with previous official estimates. In many quarters, the revised total had been expected to disclose a substantial reduction. Talk of prospective heavy sales of Canadian wheat to the United States counted also to some extent as a bearish factor. Declines which followed were due, however, more to lack of support than to any great pressure. Rallies during the last part of the session came about chiefly through week-end covering by shorts and because railroads were expected to give attention next week almost altogether to moving coal.

Comparative firmness in the oats market was ascribed to scantiness of receipts and to predictions of a falling-off of the visible supply total on Monday.

Unloading by holders of lard had a depressing effect on the provision market. Strength of hog values went unheeded.

*Record run.

Trading in cattle was irregular last week. Early advances of 50c to 75c were practically wiped out, and the reversal of form in the market came in conjunction with liberal late-week supplies, an uncommon happening in the cattle trade. Trade at the close was practically steady with the low time of the previous week, which was $1 under the preceding week.

Christmas beeves for the local St. Louis trade sold at new record-breaking figures. A drove of baby beeves from Illinois brought $20.50, and some heavy, 1300-pounders sold up to $20, a new record also. The latter offering was from Pike County, Missouri. A spread of $14 to $17 accommodated the rank and file of the better grades, while a spread of $11 to $13.50 covered plainer kinds, which comprised the major end of the supply.

Good yearlings were about steady also, but there were some of the common heifers and mixed offerings that appeared 15c to 25c lower for the week. A very plain assortment was yarded here. Cows sold higher early and good cows sold strong at the close, but medium shipper grades were barely steady. Canners selling from $5 to $5.50 were 25c lower. Medium cows sold from $6 to $8.50, with good cows up to $14. Heifers sold around $8 to $12, with a top of $15 for the week. Bulls were slow sale and went to common sausage grades, largely selling from $6 to $7.75.

Good-weight stockers and feeders were in demand at all times, but the plain kinds were a quarter lower for the week. Quality and weight continued a main requisite. A range of $10 to $12 covers feeder grades.

The vealer trade opened higher and went up to $17.25 on a small supply this week, but the close was lower, and best calves sold around $16, with bulk of sales from $14 to $15.50. Yearlings sold 25c to 50c lower for the week, going from $5.25 to $6 on the late rounds.

Price changes were erratic on hogs last week. Market started out about steady and before the close of the initial day was 40@50c lower. In two sessions that followed the market worked its way to the lowest point of the year, and then recovered sharply, only to lose a large part of the advance on the closing day. Top Saturday at $13.65 compares with a $13.80 high mark last Saturday. General market is about 25c lower for the week. High time of the week was $14 and low $13. The low point developed represents the lowest the market has been since February, 1917. Pig market was active throughout the week, and at one time pigs were selling 15@25c above best hogs—a very unusual trade condition. Closing prices on pigs at $13@13.50 represents a 25c decline from last week's prices.

The lamb market was sharply higher during the week and closed at the highest point since early August. Best lambs are at present quotable from $16.50@16.60, whereas a week ago they were selling mainly on a $16 basis.

The present range on lambs is also distinctly higher than it was at any time during the month of December a year ago. Light receipts and scarcity of good lambs have been bull factors. Fat yearlings, mutton sheep and other aged grades show little change, the former going from $12.50@13.50, according to weight, preference being decidedly for light stuff; fat sheep at $9@9.25; canners, $3.50, and choppers and bucks from $6 to $6.25.

Although showing a slightly improved action early in the week from moderate receipts, average selling in horses was again on a comparatively low basis as compared with market a month ago. Outlet has been restricted to Southern states, and conditions in parts of this territory have not been especially encouraging.

Last week's mule trade was as slow as at any time this season. Declining tendency of the market for the past three weeks has led to a curtailment in shipments to a large extent, and material available throughout the session consisted of holdovers.

ACTIVE AND EXCITING ADVANCE IN NEW YORK ON COTTON

NEW YORK, Dec. 13.—Early irregularity was followed by an active and excited advance in the cotton market today, owing to rumors of favorable peace treaty developments. January deliveries sold up from 34.45c to 35.60c, or 115 points from the low level of the morning, and 84 points net higher, while October advanced to 28.50c, or 100 points from yesterday's closing figure. January closed at 35.55c, and the general list closed firm, at a net advance of 13 to 92 points.

The opening was steady, at a decline of 5 points on October, but generally 13 to 21 points higher on the improved coal situation and covering for the week end. The higher prices met a renewal of liquidation, which caused quick reactions, with the near months relatively weak, but there was not the volume of selling there was yesterday, and the market soon turned firmer on continued covering.

There was also buying by brokers with foreign trade connections and scattering support, encouraged by the firmer ruling of exchange and the better tone of the stock market. Later the demand became more active and general on rumors indicating a better prospect for a completion of the peace treaty, with March selling up to 33.45c and May to 32c, or about 93 to 97 points net higher. December was relatively quiet, and showed the minimum gain at the close.

The census report, showing domestic mills consumption of 490,698 bales for November, against 440,354 last year, was somewhat disappointing to local bulls, but was not considered an important factor. The cotton on shipboard awaiting clearance at the close of the week was 378,268 bales, against 174,580 last year, and reports from the goods trade indicated continued firmness, notwithstanding the increased crop estimates.

Cotton futures closed firm: December, 36.50; January, 35.55; March, 33.40; May, 31.95; July, 30.45.

London Review.

Special Cable to the Post-Dispatch and the New York Evening Post.

LONDON, Dec. 13.—"The extraordinary position of the foreign exchanges, coupled with sensational articles in the press by Sir George Palsh and others, concerning an impending financial collapse of Europe, demands plain speaking. Although doubtless accentuated by speculative operations, the fall in the franc, the mark and in sterling is recognized as absolutely natural, due to economic conditions. It is easily apparent that the decline in French rates has been aggravated by the country's colossal imports against small exports.

"The position of sterling has been affected by the fact that our big increase in exports has been brought about mainly by extending credits to impecunious countries. As to the mark, it has been affected by the delay at Washington over the treaty, and the general unrest in Germany and throughout Continental Europe, which results therefrom.

"Palsh, however, in recommending the immediate grant of wholesale credits to Europe, overlooks a vital factor, namely, Europe's extravagance. France refuses to face the necessity of a great increase in taxation, a sounder governmental balance sheet and curtailment of the currency. This lack of courage of the French Government stimulates private extravagance among the French people, especially among the war profiteers.

Taxation Is Very Heavy.

"In lesser degree, the same censure applies here. Our taxation is already great, but sound opinion is that the Government should immediately establish equilibrium in the national balance sheet and adopt a strict attitude toward labor. Not only are reforms in these directions necessary to increase confidence among lending countries, but they are also necessary if Europe is to become self-supporting through increased production.

"Subject, however, to these considerations, it is felt that America also needs to take a bigger view of the requirements of the situation. It is held that the world's peace must not be subordinated to party politics, if America should more clearly recognize that Europe can never cancel her external indebtedness save through her exports of goods and services.

"Thus, during the present year, our imports of goods from you amounted to £550,000,000 and our exports to you £30,000,000, which represents an impossible situation. Finally, it is regarded as essential that your country and Britain should co-operate immediately in a system of rationing European credits during the next six months, which will probably be Europe's most critical period.

"The Supreme Economic Council has been slow and disappointing in its movements. Each nation requires to recognize that peace and prosperity depend on the well-being of every other nation; and because America and England are strongest our bankers regard it as natural that they should take the lead."

ANNOUNCEMENT OF ARRIVAL OF An Extraordinary Sedan:

There are two important reasons why the Elgin Six Sedan commands such high respect and open admiration from discriminating buyers—buyers who, in many instances, might well afford higher priced cars:

One is, simply, that the Elgin Sedan is all that the word "Sedan" may imply. The impressive character of its carriage work, the winning straight-line effect of its design, its exceptional built-in comfort and roominess—all represent its commendable enclosed car virtues—which these folks seek, so earnestly, to find.

The other is—and it is necessary only to mention this —that it possesses the unrivaled advantage of being built upon the standard chassis of the well-known

TOCK VALUES ARE IRREGULAR IN WALL STREET

Wide Fluctuations of Foreign Exchange Are Factor in Trading.

By Leased Wire From the New York Bureau of the Post-Dispatch.

NEW YORK, Dec. 13.—The Evening Post, in its weekly financial review says:

"The movements this week in the international money market—the extraordinary fluctuations in our rates of exchange, not only on the recent belligerent states of Europe, but on Canada, the Far East and the European neutrals—have been so numerous and complex, even though so intimately related, as to make a general survey of the whole position all but impossible. It has been difficult to see the forest for the trees.

"Both England and the United States have been importing vastly more merchandise from Asia than we have sent to that continent. We have paid our own trade bill in exported gold; to help pay that of England, which is not sending out gold, we are melting up our useless Treasury silver dollars and exporting them as bullion; thereby settling the 'silver question' which has vexed our own markets and legislators during nearly half a century.

"Canada's rate for exchange on London has been ruling considerably higher than ours, when quoted like our own in dollars. Somebody began last week to buy sterling bills at the lower New York price, send them to Canada to be sold at the higher Canadian prices, and, by drawing on Montreal for the proceeds, forced up New York exchange in Canada, until that market sent us $20,000,000 gold in payment.

NEW YORK, Dec. 13.—The Evening Post, in its weekly financial review, says:

"The movements this week in the international money market—the extraordinary fluctuations in our rates of exchange, not only on the recent belligerent states of Europe, but on Canada, the Far East and the European neutrals—have been so numerous and complex, even though intimately related, as to make a general survey of the whole position all but impossible. It has been difficult to see the forest for the trees.

"Both England and the United States have been importing vastly more merchandise from Asia than we have sent to that continent. We have paid our own trade bill in exported gold; to help pay that of England, which is not sending out gold, we are melting up our useless Treasury silver dollars and exporting them as bullion; thereby settling the 'silver question' which has vexed our own markets and legislators during nearly half a century.

"Canada's rate for exchange on London has been ruling considerably higher than ours, when quoted like our own in dollars. Somebody began last week to buy sterling bills at the lower New York price, send them to Canada to be sold at the higher Canadian prices, and, by drawing on Montreal for the proceeds, forced up New York exchange in Canada, until that market sent us $20,000,000 gold in payment.

Exchange at Stockholm.

"At a time when sterling was depreciated 23 per cent on Wall Street, its depreciation in Stockholm was less than 1 per cent. As a consequence dealers in exchange bought drafts on London, in the New York market, sold them in Sweden, paid for them in Swedish exchange on New York City, and the sales of the bills on Sweden in New York to make the payment were so large as to force down our own exchange on Stockholm 23 per cent under parity.

"The process was in either case entirely simple, for a draft for so many pounds sterling, payable in London, may be collected as easily from Stockholm or Montreal as from New York City. If one assumes the par of sterling exchange as 100 and the actual depreciation as, say 1 per cent at Stockholm, 20 per cent at Montreal and 24 per cent at New York, then the cost would be the same as with a commodity which was selling at 99 in Sweden, at 80 in Canada and at 75 in the United States. The dealer would buy in the cheapest and sell in the dearest market.

Market to Be Adjusted.

"It is one indication of the great derangement of the international money market, that these 'triangular operations' do not bring the rate for sterling, in all markets of the world, to something like uniform quotations. But the movement is too swift; the actual aggregate debt or credit varies too greatly in one market from another, to admit of such solution.

"The position resembles in some regards the world's exchange market of the first few weeks of war, in 1914, when rates on every market moved with unprecedented violence, because no market could foresee what would be the outcome of the causes suddenly put in operation.

"Of the present movement it may be said that its scope and violence are in large measure due to the fact that influence on the belligerent European markets was so long counteracted by artificial support of rates. But it is also safe to say of the existing confusion in the international money market, that the larger result will be what it was after 1914—namely, such positive adjustment of international finance and trade to the new conditions that the immediate problem will very soon assume a new and intelligible shape.

"Prices of stocks showed irregular changes on the week's trading. Yesterday's market was firm."

NEW YORK, Dec. 13.—Yesterday's late rally in the stock market was extended at the opening of today's session, Steels and motors leading the further recovery with gains of 1 to 2 points. Oils were hesitant, but soon rallied on the strength shown by Mexican Petroleum.

The one feature of the railroad list was a point rise in Canadian Pacific, others transactions reacting fractionally. Equipments and Motor Specialties were included among the stronger issues of the first half hour.

Dun's Review.

NEW YORK, Nov. 13.—Dun's Review says: "Settlement of the coal strike this week, while a favorable development of far-reaching significance, unfortunately does not mean an immediate ending of the inconvenience and loss sustained by business through six weeks of interrupted mining operations. Measures of fuel conservation, impelled by conditions that had daily grown more serious, will not be abandoned with the return to work of many thousands of bituminous workers, and some time must necessarily elapse before various important industries and trades will fully recover from the deleterious effects of the recent controversy.

"Shortened hours in not a few mercantile establishments have been forced in a season when the early activities of Christmas shoppers have been a conspicuous feature and production and transportation have been further impeded at a period when the call nearly everywhere is for more goods with which to satisfy current extensive requirements."

New York Curb Market.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

NEW YORK, Dec. 13.—Trading on the Broad street curb during the past week was marked by the establishment of many new high records, particularly in the petroleum group. Those stocks were directly influenced by news of new production in usually large volume, and as this new production naturally adds to revenues, it was an incentive for persistent buying of some of those stocks. Gilliland Oil was one of the most active issues, moving up to the new high record of 48, with a moderate reaction before the end of the week. Shell Trading and Transport, before being listed on the exchange, sold at 81¼ to 75. White Oil sold yesterday at the new high record of 43¾, but reacted in the late trading. Carib Trading moved up from 270 to 350, Carib Syndicate, after selling at 57¼, reacted to 49.

There was initial trading in new Locomobile Co. stock prior to the announcement of the reorganization of the Locomobile Co. of America into a new company to be known as the Locomobile Company. The new company, which is about to be organized, will have an authorized issue of 300,000 shares of common stock, of which 200,000 shares will be presently issued; also $5,000,000 7 per cent bond debt of $3,500,000, of which $1,416,000 first and refunding mortgage 6 per cent bonds, due 1935, will be outstanding. The company for the 12 months ended June 30, 1918, showed net profits of $1,249,823, or equal to $4.65 on the new common stock. The new company will have $2,000,000 new cash working capital.

General Asphalt had a wide range, first selling at 121, and after dropping to 101 rallied to 105. Montgomery-Ward was traded in at 48 to 44. American Tobacco Securities was one of the weak features, falling from 68 to 61½. General Motors was also weak, ranging from 37 to 33. Tobacco Products Exports fell from 35 to 29. Allied Packers sold down from 34 to 30.

Several new motor stocks were added to the list traded in on the curb and were fairly active, although trading was naturally restricted by the unsettled character of speculative conditions. Vanadium Steel, which was listed on the Stock Exchange on Wednesday, ranged during the first half of the week from 61½ to 57½. Madison Tire was under pressure, dropping from 65 to 50, and Maxwell Chalmers sold down from 50 to 40.

There was little feature in the mining group, the leading issues being under pressure in sympathy with other departments in the outside market.

Potthoff Elected Captain of 1920 Washington Team

Plunging Halfback Is Selected Over Conzelman at Annual Banquet to Football Team.

Fred Potthoff, a sophomore, was elected to the captaincy of the 1920 Washington University football eleven at the second annual Washington Union dinner at the Missouri Athletic Association, last night.

Potthoff played halfback on the Pikeway team during the recently completed season. Although his regular position has always been at fullback, he fitted in well at a half and was awarded a backfield position on the all-star Missouri Valley Conference eleven recently published in the Post-Dispatch. The selections were based on the opinions of various coaches and officials in this section. Potthoff was also a member of the Washington U. S. A. T. C. team which won conference honors in 1918. Before entering the university he had gained athletic recognition at Central and Cleveland high schools.

The election of Potthoff came as a surprise to the great number of Washington adherents. It had been generally conceded that Jim Conzelman, the idol of the Pikeway, would be awarded the honor. The failure of Conzelman to receive the election will also shock the remainder of the Valley Conference. Conzelman was the first member of the squad to congratulate Potthoff when the announcement of the latter's election was made to the 500 students, alumni and faculty members at the meeting.

McCourt Presents Letters.

President Robert W. Brookings of the university corporation, Chancellor Frederic Hall, Judge Edwin W. Lee, Coach Dick Rutherford, Dr. Walter W. McCourt and R. Emmett Kane were the speakers of the evening. Dr. Walter McCourt, faculty athletic representative, presented the letters to the players, and Judge John W. Calhoun acted as toastmaster.

Coach Rutherford spoke of the athletic plans for the coming year which are the most pretentious the local school has ever undertaken. Rutherford stated that the Illinois game had not yet been definitely scheduled, but that he was certain that the Pikers would go to Urbana on Oct. 9. He also announced that the Missouri game of Nov. 15 might be played in St. Louis instead of at Columbia as the present contract calls for.

New athletic acitivities will include a baseball team which will play Missouri, Ames, Drake, Grinnell, and Illinois; a wrestling team, a gymnastic team to compete in the Western meet, a high school basketball tournament, and a swimming squad which will be sent to the Western Conference contests.

Judge Lee, who played on the Washington eleven in 1891 and later played at Williams College, where he received all-American recognition, related incidents of the old days when professors played on the college elevens and when the Red and Green's adversaries included the village blacksmiths and the baggage smashers.

About 50 athletes of local high schools and Alton (Ill.) high schools attended the dinner as guests of the Athletic Council.

GREENLEAF CAPTURES FINAL "POOL" MATCH; ALLEN TAKES SECOND

WILLARD WILL BE TRIED ON PROFITEERING CHARGE

KANSAS CITY, Dec. 13.—Jess Willard, former heavyweight champion of the world, charged in a Federal warrant with profiteering on wood, surrendered to O. T. Wood, United States Marshal for Kansas today.

Arraigned before O. Q. Claflin Jr., United States Commissioner, the former champion, through his attorneys, denied the charge and requested a hearing, which the Commissioner set for Jan. 3. Willard was released on a $500 bond which he was permitted to sign.

Willard walked into the Marshal's office alone. He appeared in good spirits and talked and joked with the deputies.

The Government charges Willard charged excessive prices for wood cut from his farm near Topeka.

Negotiations to match Frank Moran, the Pittsburg heavy, and Fred Fulton, the Minnesota plasterer, have been started by the Olympia A. A. of Philadelphia. The heavies are wanted for a bout New Year's day.

Walter Camp Selects 2 Centre College Players For All-American Eleven

Phenomenal Kentucky Football Team Only One in Country to Win Two Places on Mythical Machine — Casey of Harvard Named.

In commenting upon the qualifications of the various players selected for its first eleven, Walter Camp writes as follows in Collier's Weekly:

"The lineup of the All-America of 1919 present the most powerful and versatile aggregation of players that has been on the gridiron for a long time. It is practically all veteran material, educated in the modern game. There is no man on it who has not developed to the full, the possibilities of his position. It is a combination of strong, hard-hitting, powerful and experienced players, with a line of exceptional physique to lift and open holes; tight on defense, and with a backfield combining speed and power in running with strong interference for each other in a most remarkable way. It has men who can not only only make forward passes, but receive them. It has short and long distance accurate drop kickers, a long-distance punter and a quarterback who never muffs and who is not only sturdy but extremely elusive when once started down the field with the ball. There is also to work with him a man who is a speed demon and ever ready to take some of the kicks and run them back, thus making the most dangerous combination to the opponents.

"We have in the ends, Higgins of Penn State and H. Miller of Pennsylvania, a pair of players of remarkable speed in getting down the field and covering kicks, both of them strong in breaking up and sifting interference, and each an adept on receiving forward passes. Circling these ends has proven well night impossible all season.

Tackles Stand Out.

"In the two tackles, West of Colgate and Henry of Washington and Jefferson, we have men who have practically dominated this position for two or three years, and in one—Wes—a long-distance punter of both a dry and wet ball, as well as a field goal kicker from placement. Henry's defense has been so good as to practically force the attack to give him a wide berth, and his endurance is phenomenal.

"The two guards, Alexander of Syracuse and Youngstrom of Dartmouth, are the greatest pair of defensive guards that have ever been seen on the gridiron, Alexander particularly against running plays and Youngstrom the terror of the opponents when forced to kick. This man blocked so many kicks this season that every punter who played against him feared him and learned to take plenty of room when Youngstrom appeared in the line and even then found upon occasion that the kicks must be hurried.

Weaver of Centre College is one of the best built men for the position of center that has ever player in the middle of the line. He is lighter in actual pounds than the usual type of center, but that weight is so placed that as pivot man he can play either in the line or as roving center, and in fact combine the two, for he will take a place on or outside tackle even when he is playing in the line. He is a good, steady passer and opens holes and drives forward, utilizing every pound of his weight. He is also very alert at jumping and spoiling short forward passes over the middle of the line. Weaver is the best converter of touchdowns into goals, having missed but one goal out of 47 tries, an invaluable asset in a close game.

McMillan at Quarter.

"McMillan of Centre gets the quarterback berth for his allround utility, speed and hard-hitting aggressiveness. He works his team up to the limit of their possibilities and when he had to make the fight against West Virginia, who had just beaten Princeton, 25 to 0, he showed the greatest headwork in his use of plays and with a score of 6 to 0 against him so handled his men as to win in the end, 14 to 6.

"But the trio behind him would be the envy of any team. Casey of Harvard, Harley of Ohio State and Rodgers of West Virginia. Casey tied the Princeton game, coming stronger and faster when his team was practically beaten and in the last few minutes of the game, after bringing his team within scoring distance, he then received the forward pass that yielded the tying points! He won the Yale game, for he not only received the forward pass, but by quick head and foot work he secured the other 18 yards necessary after he caught the ball, winding his way through the Yale backs. He is a good forward passer, a very fast man with the ball and particularly elusive in his turning and twisting. Harley of Ohio State is a fitting mate for Casey and a star drop kicker, while we have in our tackle, West of Colegate, an ideal man for the long place kicks. Harley is also one of the hardest men in the country to stop when once started on a run.

Rodgers Is Great Player.

"We complete the trio with Rodgers of West Virginia, the hard hitting backfield man who is even more adept at throwing the pass than any man who has played this season. He can throw all kinds of passes and make them connect. In his running game he hits fiercely on and outside of tackle and even when grasped goes twirling, twisting on. But above all this he is a field general who has struck the highest spot in combination of running and forward passing plays, as instanced when in the Princeton game he so used his plays and team as to run up no less than 19 points on Princeton in the first period, which consisted of only 12 minutes' play! By similar plays he brought about a touchdown on Centre in four minutes.

"This team would also be provided with two generals and would start its game with Rodgers goving the signals from the fullback position. If anything happened to Rodgers the generalship would then devolve upon McMillan, a man quite competent to handle it. The advantage of having the fullback give the signals is very great in this game where the direction of the attack in the use of the forward pass depends considerably in sizing up the secondary defense the opponents. Rodgers is an expert in this respect and by this means we should keep McMillan always fresh for his work and runs."

Martin Will Not Box Dempsey for Eighteen Months

Manager of A. E. F. Champion Declares His Protege Lacks Polish and Poise.

By John E. Wray.

Bob Martin who, as a member of the American Expeditionary Force won 28 fights and the heavyweight championship of the allied armies, circumnavigated the business district here, yesterday afternoon, convoyed by Brooklyn Tommy Sullivan, before whose club the rising young fighter will box Arthur Pelky next Tuesday.

An inspection of the man who is being groomed for a world's championship battle two years hence, fails to reveal any of the customary earmarks of the fighter. We said earmarks advisedly. Nothing of the sort is observable about the rosy-cheeked young giant, who lifts his dome to an altitude of 6 feet 2 inches from the sidewalk. His ears and face are without the semblance of a scar, although the bridge of his nose has been knocked slightly out of alignment, somewhere on that hard trail up through the army tournament. Martin does not recall just when it happened.

Excelled Fulton's Feat.

In all his fights in the army, including four against professionals of considerable repute, Martin was never knocked off his feet and never was seriously in distress. His most creditable victory was that over the Australian professional, Coghill, whom he defeated in 59 seconds. It took Fred Fulton three rounds to stop the same fighter a few months later.

Martin looks, dresses, talks and demeans himself like a college man, although prior to his war experience he was in the employ of an Ohio rubber concern.

"I have been working hard almost ever since I was strong enough to. I was in the 'curing' department of a tire company at Akron and the work required considerable strength. I developed rapidly there. I also had several third-rate fights, but nothing to amount to anything. I really learned most of my fighting in the ring during army service."

"Ghost" Is Training Martin.

Martin is in the hands of Jeff Clarke, the Joplin Ghost, for development. The colored phantom is an ideal man to teach the soldier the niceties of the profession.

Jimmy Bronson, the A. E. F. referee, who is managing Martin's ring campaign was in the city with his protege and says that his man will not be ready to engage in a world's title contest for about 18 months.

"Fighters are not made overnight," Bronson declares. "Many a boxer's chances have been ruined because his manager foolishly let him go out of his class too early in his career. Martin is a great fighter right now, but he has not acquired the ring poise and confidence of a seasoned professional. That's what we're trying to build up for him. When Martin acquires the needed polish we will send him after the occupant of the title throne—Jack Dempsey, or whoever he may be."

Champions Develop Slowly.

Made-to-order champions are rare birds in the pages of history. The development of green material into championship factors is usually accompanied by some exceptional physical attribute. In Willard it was his enormous size; in Jeffries, who was molded into title form by Tommy Ryan, it was his gorilla-like bulk and superhuman endurance; in Jack Dempsey it was an abnormal punch.

Martin is a clean-cut young man of almost ideal athletic build. He appears too much like an old Greek statue to be a champion fighter; but he may be blocked out of granite instead of marble, at that. Two inches over six feet tall, he has a reach of almost 80 inches (Willard's was 83) and is credited with a knockout punch. At least that has been the result of the first three battles in his recently begun campaign. He has stopped in brief time the husky Joe Bonds, the game but broken Jack Moran and the Canadian giant, Tom Riley.

Pelky is putting on a "comeback." He has won five fights by knockouts. He was a fair fighter a few years ago, but was always careless in training. Billy McCarney is now looking after Pelky's interests. It was McCarney who managed Lute McCarty when that unfortunate white-hope fighter died as a result of blows administered by the same fighter, Pelky.

BUD CLANCY IS MATCHED TO BOX AT SPRINGFIELD

Bud Clancy, formerly of St. Louis, and prominent in A. E. F. boxing circles, is now making Detroit his home. He is still boxing and has been matched with Harry Krohn of Akron, O., to fight at Springfield, Mo., 10 rounds, no decision, in the near future.

First of the "300."

Al Bechestobill, who was in France last year with the Y. M. C. A. and who saw "Babe" Asher box "over there," was one of the first to come forward to express willingness to be one of the "300" to take ringside seats necessary to guarantee a match with Wilde, on the plan proposed by Tommy Sullivan.

No Word From Wilde.

Sullivan stated Saturday that he had no reply to his offer made to the English promoter now looking after Wilde's interests, relative to a match with Asher here.

A Smokeless Boxing Show.

Friday's boxing show at the Odeon was the first "smokeless" event St. Louis has attempted in some time. The only "smoke" observed was furnished by "Babe" Asher who fairly burned up the canvas.

Unionizing the Egg Plant.

When the hens form a union and strike for more pay,
Insisting on working an eight-hour day—
I say,
If a hen were engaged in her regular chore
Of laying an egg and the whistle should roar
Before
The job was completed, I wonder if she (Presuming her hours were seven to three)
Would be Compelled to lay off in the midst of her lay
And quit with the whistle and call it a day?
Then backed by the union demand
she be paid
For the fractional part of an egg she had laid,
Or made
To finish the job she had started to do,
In spite of the fact that the whistle had blew,
When due?

Why Not Now?

See where Jack Dempsey expects to fight Georges Carpentier "eventually."

British sports can't believe that Jimmy Wilde was trimmed by Sharkey. They wouldn't have believed that Joe Beckett was rocked to sleep by Carpentier in the first round if they hadn't seen it.

To this day some of those birds are skeptical about George Washington making Cornwallis take the count.

Quite So.

Is of the same opinion still;
However to remove all doubt
It might be well to knock him out.

Which incidentally gives rise to the thought, why is a war tax on base balls?

Some Wildcat.

See where a hunter in New Jersey bagged a wild cat which he said "was as big as an ordinary dog." To get the size of an ordinary dog add up a chow, and collie and a great Dane and divide by three.

A. L. Is Not in Danger Owing to Factional Fight

CHICAGO, Dec. 13.—No danger to the structure of organized baseball or to the championship season of 1920 exists in the factional fight of the American League, according to George W. Miller, attorney for President Johnson, to whom the American League executive referred all questioners on his return from New York today.

The only damage the three belligerent club owners can do the next baseball campaign, Attorney Miller said, is to refuse to open their parks and enter teams in the race. This action, he said, is not anticipated.

"The American League will continue to function in the interest of clean sport," Attorney Miller said, "in spite of all efforts to hamper President Johnson in the performance of his executive duties.

"Afer the three dissenting club owners have had time to cool off, another meeting will be held in legal form, and whatever business is necessary to conduct the coming baseball season will be transacted. That meeting will be called by the president and the time and place will be designated by him.

"We expect the three minority owners to attend it, but if they do not, it will not precent the preparation for playing baseball next season and the minority can rest assurred that its interests will be protected.

"The action of the retiring of directors at their meeting in advance of the league session contains no danger to the welfare of baseball or the continuation of Mr. Johnson in the presidency."

Richardson of Philadelphia was announced here tonight. The price is said to have been approximately $400,000 and Griffith, manager of the club for the last eight years, will succeed Benjamin E. Minor as president, continuing to act as field manager also, temporarily at least.

Richardson is a member of a grain firm in Philadelphia, and through the deal today became an equal partner with Griffith in ownership of about four-fifths of the 20,000 shares of stock in the club, purchased from a dozen local holders. Griffith will vote the stock, however, and control the club's future policy.

In a statement tonight Griffith said he planned to build the club up and put it in pennant-winning shape for next year. The deal included all assets of the club, and the new president indicated that a vigorous policy that would not let expense stand in the way of development of the team would be pursued.

It was stated that the sale in no way altered the line-up of the club in the fight in the American League Washington was still to be counted in the Ban Johnson column, Griffith said.

"Johnson was right in the action he took in the Mays case, which precipitated this trouble," Griffith said. "The Washington club will back him up to the finish for this reason, and will continue to support any move or policy calculated to maintain discipline among the players and will work for the best interests of baseball."

SCHAEFER GAINS 5-PIN LEAD IN SPECIAL MATCH WITH OSCAR WHITEHEAD

Harry Schaefer gained a lead of five pins over Oscar Whitehead in the first 10 games of their 20 games, total pins to count bowling match, which was started last night on the Washington alleys. Schaefer totalled 1844 and Whitehead 1839. Schaefer had eight misses against only three for Whitehead. However, Schaefer picked five of nine splits, while Whitehead cut down only two of 14.

The match will be completed at the Congress alleys today. Last night's scores:

Schaefer, 179, 168, 158, 200, 200, 191, 177, 207, 167, 197—1844.

Whitehead, 166, 201, 183, 200, 149, 183, 155, 211, 209, 182—1839.

E. E. Grubb and Johnny New are scheduled to bowl a 10-game total pins to count match on the Washington alleys this afternoon.

Some good scores were shot in the fourth round of the Missouri-Pacific elimination tournament on the Washington alleys. H. C. Abbey, 435, won two from O. Oberbeck, 327; V. I. Nittelin, 358, won two from J. M. Chaney, 310; F. H. Fairchild, 534, won two of three from C. Stein, 601 and W. E. Taylor, 445, won two from I. C. Moore, 334. Pairings for the fifth round are Abbey vs. Nittelin and Fairchild vs. Taylor.

There is a story going the rounds on the Pacific Coast that Jack Dempsey, world's champion, and Babe Ruth, the home-run king, will meet in the squared arena.

Ban Johnson Must Tell of His Interest In Cleveland Club

NEW YORK, Dec. 13.

NEW legal action against Ban Johnson, president of the American League, was started today by the New York American League club. An order was obtained from Supreme Court Justice Lydon asking that Johnson and the Cleveland American club apear in court here on Dec. 17 to show reason why a commission should not be created to take open testimony of officials of the Cleveland club. The officials named were James C. Dunn, Walter McNichols and E. S. Bernard, president, secretary and business manager, respectively.

The object of the moves is to ascertain the exact nature of Johnson's alleged holdings in the Cleveland club. The order was obtained on the affidavit of Col. T. L. Huston, part owner of the New York club, and Charles H. Tuttle, one of the club's attorney's. Huston in his affidavit charges that Johnson's interest in the Cleveland club influenced his actions in the Carl Mays case. A statement by the New York owners said the action was taken in self-defense because of Johnson's eleventh-hour appeal to Justice Wagner's decisions in the Mays case.

Rickey Not Ready to Announce 1920 Plans at Present

President-manager Branch Rickey of the Cardinals, who returned from the National League meeting at New York last night, when asked concerning the 1920 manager of the Knotholers, stated as follows:

"I have not 'fired' myself as yet. However, I do not think anything definite will be done along these lines until the annual meeting of the Cardinal Club, scheduled, I think, the second week in January.

"What I will do I do not know. I hope to be identified with the club in some way. However, since the close of the 1919 season I have been so busy with club affairs that I have given myself no thought. If anyone is named to succeed me he will find the affairs in pretty good shape."

Rickey stated that he had several trades pending, but could not announce what they were. However, he said that what the club needed most —pitchers—could not be obtained. Because of this he is attempting to get hitting strength to offset the lack of twirling.

The president-manager of the Cardinals again announced that "Hornsby was not for sale or trade."

While Brownsville, Tex., will be the likely training camp of the club, Rickey said he would not be able to announce this definitely until probably later in the week.

During his stay in the East, Rickey heard many flattering things about "Polly" McLarry and stated that the first sacker would make the trip South. Reports from Louisville yesterday stated that McLarry would be turned over to the Colonels in exchange for Mollwitz, but Rickey said there was nothing to the report.

"I suppose the challenge is being sent by mail," said Mr. Empie. "As soon as it reaches me I will notify the press."

Radical Changes In Tennis Rules Will Be Propose

Executive Committee Wo Change Present Scoring and Foot Fault Codes.

NEW YORK, Dec. 13.—Radi changes in the scoring rules, fo fault code, and in the associatio form of voting, will be proposed the annual meeting of the Unit States National Lawn Tennis As ciation, to be held in this city ne February. These suggested alte tions were rounded into legislati form at a meeting of the Executi Committee which did not end un early this morning.

The fact that the various prop als will go to the annual meeti with the general support of t committee, is thought to insure th adoption by the organization as whole.

The most striking change is t proposal to eliminate the old syst of scoring entirely and provide a 2, 3 method that will make such score as "15 love" only a memo The proposed rule follows:

New Scoring System Proposed.

"If the server wins the first poi the score is called 1-in. The scori is continued in this manner u either player has won four poin when game is scored for that pl er, unless the other player has sco three points; when the score is cal 4—3, as the case may be, and ga is scored for the player who fi thereafter gains a lead of t points."

The committee has swept aside t old foot fault rule and proposes i stead, the following:

"Before commencing to serve, t server shall stand with both feet rest behind, that is, further from t net than the base line, and with the limits of the center mark and t sides line. Both feet shall be ke behind the base line until the racq strikes the ball."

The present method of handica ping is to be revised by the follo ing rule, and simple table:

Revision of Handicap System.

"The method of handicapping sha consist of allotting to each play one or more points in a set, the points to be added to the poin scored by each player in that se The points scored shall be record at the end of each game, and, at t conclusion of the set, the allott handicaps shall be added to this t tal. The player then having t greater number of points wins t set regardless of the number games won or lost."

A new plan of voting recogniz the playing membership of the cl as the basis for votes. Thus, a cl of 100 members or less would p annual dues of $10 and cast 100 vot Larger clubs would vote accordi to additional membership, increasi the voting power pro rata and t dues by $2.50 each for each additio 25 members. Clubs affiliated thro subassociations cast their full v ing strength. Country clubs, at letic associations and organizati fostering tennis only in connecti with other sports, will pay $10 d and cast 100 votes.

International Play for Women.

Regarding the Davis cup, the co mittee recommended that all detai incident to this competition be r ferred to the Executive Committ of the association.

Further development of inter tional competition was promised recommendation to accept the of of the Hazel Hotchkiss Wightm trophy, as a prize for women's i ternational matches along simi lines to the Davis cup play.

The Women's Advisory Committ recommended a change of date the women's national champions from June to September.

Rule Carpenters Again to Operate on College Football

Many Suggestions, Some of Them Weird and Striking at Long-Established Conditions, Will Be Presented to Code Committee.

By John E. Wray.

That intercollegiate football is far from being stabilized is evident from the number of alterations in rules put forward by the dissatisfied educators.

At least half a dozen suggestions, some of them striking at old-established conditions, have been made since the closing of the season. Probably all of them will be presented with more or less seriousness at the meeting of the Rules Committtee early next year in New York City.

Demands for changes have arisen because of dissatisfaction with the failure of the rules to bear uniform results; or because of some clauses of the code at times work harmful results.

Perhaps the gravest difficulty and the one that seems least likely to be remedied easily is that the work of a team as an eleven no longer yields results in proportion to the effort expended.

It was found last year that advancing the ball by rushing was a dubious scoring method, despite the fact that it is and always has been the foundation stone of intercollegiate football; and that, on the other hand, scoring by forward pass and freak plays was rather easy to accomplish. Hard work is discounted and take-a-chance plays encouraged, under present conditions, making the pastime more and more a hazard.

Forward Pass Overbalances Game.

To the widening influence of the forward pass is generally attributed the many unexplainable fractures of form noted in all sections of the country.

Another feature complained of was the amount of one-man scoring done and the number of games won through the work of an individual as contrasted with that resulting from team work. It was pointed out that numberless victories were gained when one team failed to kick a goal from touchdown; and that in several games field goals won for the victors over a touchdown for the opposing side.

In the aggregate the complaints form a protest against rules which advance the value of one-man play over team play.

Novelties in Rule Suggestions.

At various times since Thanksgiving day the following suggestions have been advanced:

Abolish the goal following a touchdown.

Permit all goals from touchdowns to be kicked from directly in front of the goal.

Graduate the value of goals from field, according to distance from goal posts.

Give greater value to "earned touchdown."

Restrict forward pass.

Graduate values of touchdowns.

Establish a maximum weight limit for individuals.

The goal from touchdown and the varying angle from which it may be kicked has been the basis of many a grievance. One touchdown earned under great stress and long continued effort may end in defeat by a team that achieved a touchdown in a single play, should the latter be lucky enough to have an easy angle from which to boot the winning point.

Time was when the goal from touchdown counted for four points and the touchdown only two—that was back in the early 80s—so that moderns have little to worry over the mere one point obstacle.

One feature of football that has always been offensive to coaches—especially those who had no good kicker—was the goal from the field. These count three points, and on at least two occasions this year—one of them in St. Louis—goals were booted from beyond the center of the field! Imagine the effort and the number of plays that would be required to advance the ball this distance by rushing across the goal line! Yet for rushing the reward is only twice as great as for the result of one play executed virtually by the peculiar skill of one person!

Graduated Scores for Field Goals.

It is suggested that field goals, booted from the 10-yard line, be given a value of only one point; goals from the 25-yard line two, and those from beyond the 40-yard mark three—or that some graduated system based on similar lines be used in scoring. The average goal from the field is begun with the scrimmage line not more than 20 yards from the enemy's goal.

George Parmly Day, an Eastern authority, thinks from 3 to 5 points ought to be allowed on this play. Such a premium on field goals, coupled with the spread of forward passing, would inevitably wipe out the rushing game and make football an overhead activity entirely.

The suggestion relative to increasing the value of touchdowns gained by sheer rushing power seems to involve too many nice distinctions. Zones would have to be established in front of each goal, perhaps of 25 yards, with the understanding that any eleven marching this distance by rushing the ball without the aid of forward passing, would be allowed more points than one which scored by means of a forward pass within this territory. The complications involved in a serious consideration of this proposition befuddle the mind.

Abas the Forward Pass.

That the forward pass is an effective but unreliable weapon is the contention of those who would see it restricted and the rushing attack restored to supremacy. West Virginia, using the pass to best advantage, defeated Princeton, 25—0. But on one other day, when it met Pittsburg, the Virginia pass was not working and the Mountaineers were humbled, 26—0.

This instance is cited as evidencing the unreliability of elevens using the forward pass almost exclusively. Just how it can be tamed into a dependable attacking method has yet to be explained. It has a distinct value as a threat to make the enemy open up its defense that makes it popular.

As for the maximum weight limit, that is obviously designed to increase the activity and diminish the beef trust factors of collegiate football elevens. It will be as popular in the football world as Bolshevism in America.

Dempsey Willing to Meet Carpentier in France, Kearns Says

MILWAUKEE, Wis., Dec. 13.

JACK DEMPSEY, heavyweight champion pugilist, would just as soon fight Carpentier in France as in America, according to a telegram from his manager, Jack Kearns.

Ben F. Steinel, Milwaukee, representing Theodore Vienne, head of a boxing syndicate in France, today received Kearns' announcement, a reply to a message Steinel sent early in the week, asking for Dempsey's terms.

Kearns added that he would gladly consider any offer the French promoter might make.

CARPENTIER IS ANXIOUS TO GET DOWN TO WORK FOR GO WITH DEMPSEY

PARIS, Dec. 13.—M. Decoin has not yet received a reply to his offer for the Dempsey-Carpentier fight in the Pershing Stadium. Sporting circles are expectant in view of the official challenge issued by Carpentier's manager to Dempsey yesterday.

Carpentier told the Associated Press today that he was not concerned about the arrangements and was leaving for England on Monday. The general opinion is that Dempsey would not be willing to come to France, while Carpentir's expressed willingness to go to America or Australia has caused renewed enthusiasm.

"I wish that this matter could be arranged as soon as possible," said Carpentier today, "so that I might go to work. I desire to depart from the old time publicity stunts. I believe that the records of both Dempsey and myself speak for themselves and I wish to get down to business and settle the matter once for all. If I am defeated I will proclaim Dempsey the greatest living fighter."

At the Duck Island Preserve

Sportsman Describes Thrills of Shooting Waterfowl at Resort Where Cream of Sport Is Assured—Injunction Protects Game.

By William C. Hazelton

OF many enjoyable days spent on the marsh and in the blind, the writer most esteems those spent the latter part of October as the guest of Daniel Voorhees, president of the Duck Island Preserve on the Illinois River. Fortunate, indeed, is the sportsman who has an opportunity to be entertained by such a sterling sportsman and at such a splendid resort for waterfowl. He is assured of the very cream of wildfowl shooting and that everything will be done for his personal comfort.

"Would you like to see the lake?" said a friendly pusher at the Duck Island clubhouse, where I was awaiting the return of Daniel Voorhees on my first visit there. A member had come in with a broken gun and this young man had been his guide.

On my assuring that I would, together we walked down the path through an opening in the trees leading from the clubhouse to where a narrow channel ran in from the main lake. At hand was an observation tower from which one could locate the flight of waterfowl at a distance with a pair of field glasses.

Flock of Green-Wing Teal.

Before us were acres of the American lotus, their huge leaves waving in the strong northwest wind. An ideal day for ducks, clouds of which were hovering over the open waters of the lake, and others at rest on its bosom, which glistened brightly in the November sun. Just then a flock of green-wing teal whizzed by over the swaying lotus, swirling and drifting as caught by the wind and fighting their way into the teeth of the gale like so many erratic jack snipe. They are truly speed demons at times.

The view of the lake was one of great beauty and carried me back to my earliest recollections of the sport. Could any sportsman view such a scene without having his blood stirred and his heart-beats quicken?

"You won't need any decoys," I was assured the next morning, as I started down the lake in company with two other boats containing Judge Carpenter and Dr. Lewis, with their pushers.

After proceeding down the lake nearly a mile, we followed a channel into the Goose Pond, where my companions located and I pressed on a few hundred yards further into the dead overflowed timber. Little patches on buckbrush were here and there and water covered all this part of the club's domain.

Birds Approach in Numbers.

Large numbers of mallards and gray ducks, which had been routed out by our approach, now began to return. My boat was partially concealed by a few trees standing upright. I made no attempt to build a blind as it was unnecessary. Some of the keen-eyed mallards would see me, at times, of course, especially when swinging nearly overhead.

My first shot at a single gray duck was missed and my thought was that it was foolish of me to shoot at him at all. Thus one salves one's conscience for a miss. Then I did better, getting three straight, all single birds, two gray ducks and a fat mallard hen. A few flocks of pintails circled around, but these long-necked and wise birds, often when headed directly for me and I expected to certainly get a shot, would veer off before reaching me just enough to put them safely out of range. I did not wish to strain the gun by shooting at them. Besides, there were plenty of other ducks to be had.

I would try for some mallards. Here comes a pair and why not make a double? I failed, though, getting my first bird only. Old man, you don't shoot as well as you used to. In the old days you would not miss a shot like that. The only alibi I have is that my present gun does not just fit me. I must have some excuse.

Here comes a mallard hen and she is apparently determined to alight in a little opening just in front of me without any precautionary circles. Her wings are cupped in close to her body as she lowers directly facing me. There was no warning for her. She never saw me. I made a center shot on her and she dropped with a heavy splash.

Drops One in Boat.

Well, so the day continued with a succession of hits and misses. I made a few good shots and some poor ones. I was glad no one was near to see some of the misses. It would not have added to my reputation as a marksman. I guess they all do it at times.

Just before I had my limit, an amusing incident occurred. The first time in my life I ever had it happen. I would not have objected to a spectator this time.

A single mallard drake approached me with the wind at a good speed and pretty well up in the air. He was perhaps 45 or 50 yards high. I fired at him just before he was immediately overhead. He fell with great force directly into the boat, with a resounding crash. He barely missed hitting me. Had he only been winged, which he was not, the fall would have killed him. A good idea doing them in the boat, if one could do it with regularity.

After bagging two more birds, I had the limit, eight mallards and seven gray ducks, and wended my way back to the club house, arriving about 2 o'clock, and found about all the hunters had returned, each with the legal limit of 15 birds.

One Gun Allowed in Boat.

The entire Duck Island Preserve is covered by a permanent Federal Injunction, putting it under the charge of the United States Marshals of the State. This prevents all poaching. Poachers that have been caught in the past have been convicted and severely sentenced. The last two with $100 fine and 30 days in jail.

A strict rule at this progressive club is that only one gun is allowed in a boat and the guide or pusher is not permitted to shoot. This restricts each member to 15 birds. The rule might well be followed at other preserves.

Each evening in the spacious living room, by an open fireplace, drawing for location for the next day's sport would take place—a custom of the club for many years.

Kingly Prep Shirts

A New Idea—Much Needed

Never before have shirts been made especially for young men. Other shirts are made for the average man—who has quite outgrown the figure of his youth. Kingly Preps are made to bring new fit, new comfort, new style to youths. They are form fitting. Around shoulders, chest, waist and wrist they fit more snugly and comfortably, and at elbows they allow more room for active movement. Smooth fitting coats stay smooth over Kingly Preps.

The Kingly Line

The whole Kingly Line—Kingly shirts for men, Kingly Preps for young men, Kingly Yuthbuilts for boys—is as distinguished among shirts as a great man among children. Kingly shirts are genuine works of art of their kind—actually designed by real artists. Their refined difference is remarkable—and memorable. Ask your dealer.

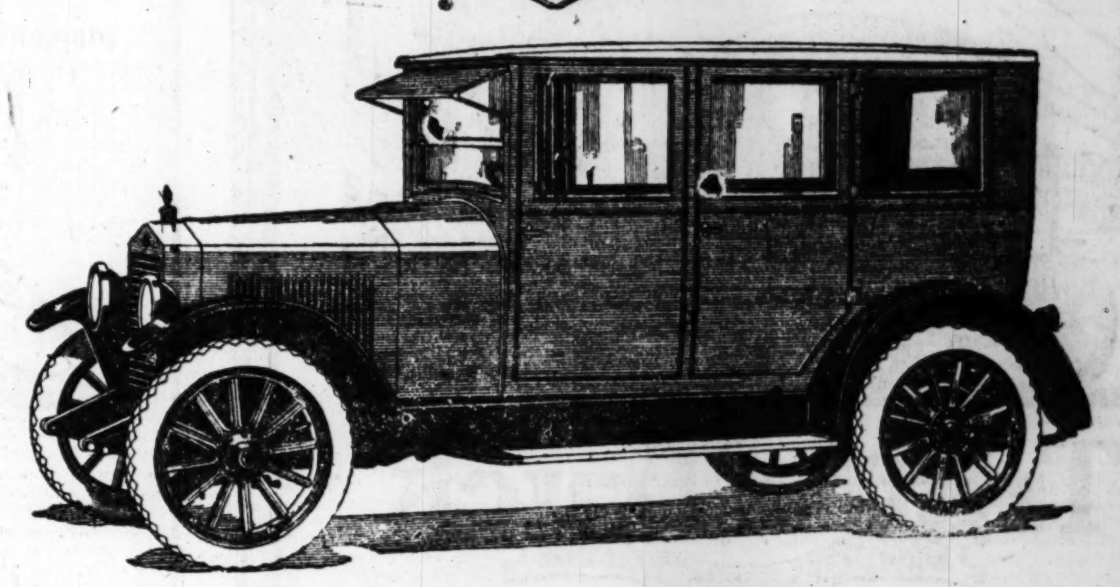
CARS



Make It an Essex

Delivery in the Spring Is Not So Certain.
Hear How 20,000 Owners Urge You

This Christmas

What better gift than an Essex?

Have all the year's use of it and remove doubt as to delivery in the spring.

There can be no advantage in waiting. The Essex so leads in qualities which must ultimately be the features of all moderate priced cars that until they can be incorporated by others, it has no rival. Everyone says so. Hear what owners are saying about the Essex. More than 20,000 Essex cars were delivered in 10 months. In excess of $30,000,000 were paid for them. A new sales record was established, because every Essex owner seems to have made it a point to urge his friends to buy.

Note Its Economy

The Essex won its way through sheer merit. What car has more champions?

Where can you find such performance, or fine quality and good looks? Owners tell you how their car outperforms larger, costlier cars. Some have driven their Essex more than 15,000 miles without a nickle for repairs.

The tire, gasoline and oil economy is unusual. In these respects the Essex is like lightweight, low-priced cars. But the Essex also has the fine car durability and the finish and looks of higher priced cars.

It has their performance, too. Its acceleration, speed and power are always compared to cars in the high priced field. So also is its riding qualities.

Three Models to Choose From

There are three models to choose from: the five-passenger touring car, a roadster that has the sportiest lines and which is so arranged that it makes an ideal business vehicle with large carrying space under the rear deck. Both are fitted with full protection storm curtains. The third model is the sedan, a five-passenger closed car, that is a traveling sun parlor. It gives full protection from all weathers in winter and can be opened up to be more comfortable in summer than an open model. But you have seen these charming cars. They are all about you, and you have heard all about them from their owners.

The opportunity to get an Essex in time for Christmas is yours if you act quickly.

It will be difficult to get delivery in the spring if you wait until then, for practically every dealer reports orders on hand in excess of his season's supply.

PI KAPPA ALPHA INSTALLS NEW CHAPTER AT W. U.

Local Fraternity Gets Chapter in National Organization Founded at Virginia in 1868.

A new Greek letter fraternity chapter at Washington University was installed last night at the Marquette Hotel, Pi Kappa Alpha, a national fraternity which had its origin at the University of Virginia in 1868. Chi Alpha Pi, a local fraternity organized in the spring of 1917, was obsorbed by Pi Kappa Alpha as the Beta Lambda Chapter.

Twelve charter members and a number of alumni and inactive members were installed. Members of the national fraternity from the University of Missouri, Rolla School of Mines, Kansas State Agricultural College, Iowa State College and the University of Kansas attended the ceremony, which was conducted by Grand Chancellor Henry N. Eversole, attorney for the Federal Land Bank of St. Louis.

A banquet at the Marquette followed the installation.

Pi Kappa Alpha is the eleventh fraternity at Washington University; all are national. The last local to be nationalized was Alpha Kappa Delta, which obtained a charter in Alpha Tau Omega two years ago.

STORES OFFER ONLY COSTLY "CANE" SUGAR

Housewives Complain That They Cannot Be Sure They Get Higher-Priced Variety.

Many St. Louis housewives are complaining that when they go to retail stores to buy Western beet sugar at 13 cents a pound they are told that the dealer has only Louisiana cane sugar retailing at 20 to 22 cents and that under these conditions they cannot be sure whether they are actually obtaining the higher-priced cane sugar or being forced to pay 22 cents a pound for 13-cent beet sugar.

Under an order issued Nov. 29 by the Fair Price Commission, grocers were required to display, where their customers would readily see it the wholesaler's invoice showing what character of sugar was being sold and what price the grocer paid for it. Failure on the part of any retailer to comply with that regulation, if reported, will result in an investigation by the commission to see what kind of sugar the grocer is selling.

May Be Imprisoned.

The food control act, under which the Fair Price Commission was created, provides that any merchant charging an unjust rate for necessaries shall be punished by a fine not exceeding $5000, or by imprisonment for a term not exceeding two years, or by both such fine and imprisonment.

Assistant Circuit Attorney Williams, who is in charge of investigations for the Fair Price Commission, said yesterday that any retailer or wholesaler who sells Western beet sugar at the price allowed to be charged for Louisiana cane sugar is guilty of charging an unjust rate, and is doing business in violation of the Food Control Act.

There is little difference in the physical appearance of Western beet sugar and high grade granulated Louisiana cane sugar, but any expert can easily tell them apart. Plantation cane sugar is of a light yellowish cast, and is moist and lumpy, but the Louisiana refinery sugar, known to the trade as granulated, is white and dry like the Western refined beet sugar.

The object of this society is to aid in the prevention of blindness, to educate the adult blind and to promote employment of the blind. Dr. J. W. MacIvor of the Second Presbyterian Church, addressed the meeting.

CAR KILLS UNIDENTIFIED MAN

An unidentified man about 52 years old was taken to the city hospital unconscious after he was struck by a Jefferson street car at 8 o'clock last night at Jefferson avenue and Market street. He died at 11:30. The injured man was taken to the hospital before the police arrived at the scene of the accident and the street car also was gone when they arrived. A card in the man's pocket, issued by the Washington University Dispensary, gave the name of Carter Johnson as that of a person taking treatment

The Great Heart of St. Louis ### is aglow with the Christmas Spirit

WE feel its pulsation in this store as item after item is sent out into the homes of the city, state and country as a messenger of good cheer and affectionate regard.

"Christmas Gifts for Homes" they are, because when there goes to a member of your family a piece of good furniture, a good rug or some art object of a purely decorative character as your Christmas message, it goes also to the home, making it prettier, cheerier and cozier, and adds to the happiness of everyone sheltered beneath its roof-tree.

You who shop here will feel the thrill of discovery as you from time to time find the just-right gift article for someone whom you have listed for a Christmas remembrance.

Lamps and Shades for Gifts

THE TRORLICHT-DUNCKER collection of Lamps and Shades is worthy of the attention St. Louis gift buyers are giving to it. It embraces Lamps and Shades for almost every need. There are the tall Floor Lamps of richly carved mahogany; of cunningly wrought iron; of beautiful polychrome effects; of the rich, dull Italian gold; of the chaste and pretty dull silver. Among these showing the same exquisite effects are a number of the 4 ft. 6 in. Reading Lamps which are to be placed just behind one or at one's side when reading. It also includes myriad table and boudoir lamps which show the pleasing motifs evident in the floor lamps, but adapted to the particular uses for which they were designed. Shades proper in material, outline, proportion and color for all of these beautiful lamps are here in great numbers. One who does not see our display of Lamps and Shades misses too much that is good.

Gifts for a Man

A BOOK TROUGH or a table to go alongside his easy chair (a splendid gift article that), or a Smoker's Stand to place near at hand as he smokes and reads.

A Tape-o-Lite would be a convenient and pretty receptacle for his cigar or cigarette ends and ashes—would ornament the table for books.

A Chaise Longue would take the place of an easy chair—and some men prefer them—or for more complete relaxation we'd recommend a day bed, built with long, resilient springs and soft upholstered top.

A Bridge Lamp with a pretty shade of harmonizing outline and color would make reading easier because it stands on the floor, is only 4 ft. 6 in. high and can be placed at any preferred place.

He would appreciate a pair of book ends to keep his favorite books in order on some convenient table.

One who shops here will see all of these suggested gift articles—and many more. The prices on all of them are reasonable, but whether the price is small or large the article is "good" in the sense of being worthy a place in some well-furnished home!

12-STORY BUILDING PROJECTED ON LOT OF 26 FEET FRONT

Improvement on Large Scale for Locust and Eleventh Streets Indicated by W. J. Holbrook.

MAY LEASE IT TO DRY GOODS COMPANY

First National Bank to Retain and Enlarge Present Quarters, Including Olive Street Entrance.

By Berry Moore.

W. J. Holbrook, president of the Holbrook-Blackwelder Real Estate Trust Co. said yesterday that arrangements were being perfected for construction of a 12-story building on a lot 26x122 feet at the northeast corner of Eleventh and Locust streets, controlled under a 99-year lease by the Bristol Realty Co., of which he is the leading spirit.

The lot fronts 26 feet on Locust street and 122 feet on Eleventh street and adjoins holdings comprising 332x122 feet on Eleventh street and extending to the southeast corner of St. Charles street, bought recently by the Mercantile Trust Co., represented by Festus J. Wade, its president, in behalf of the Liggett estate as a site for a 12-story fireproof building, to be erected by those interests for the Rice-Stix Dry Goods Co.

The plan of the building contemplated by the Bristol Co., according to Holbrook, is to be such that it will be available for use in connection with that to be erected for the dry goods company. It has been conceived, it was stated, with a view to leasing it to the dry goods company, which with the exception of the aforementioned 26x122 feet will have the entire Eleventh street side of this block. In order to make it profitable, exclusive of the building to be constructed for the dry goods company, the 122 feet of Locust street frontage of the structure to be erected by the Bristol Co. will be divided for retail stores.

Too Valuable for Wholesale Use.

According to realty circles, the Mercantile Trust Co. sought the Bristol company's Locust steer corner as an integral part of the site of the proposed building for the Rice-Stix company, but the price at which it was held was regarded as too high for wholesale purposes. It is understood that the Bristol company has decided to erect a building on the diminutive lot entirely on its own responsibility and without assurance that the Rice-Stix company will lease it for consolidation with its 12-story projected structure.

The Eleventh street site bought by the Mercantile Trust Co. cost approximately $375,000. The operation was engineered by C. H. McMillan, vice president of the Mercantile Trust Co. The building will be erected by the Liggett Estate at an estimated cost of $1,500,000, and will be financed by the Mercantile Trust Co. It will be occupied by the Rice-Stix company under a 20-year lease.

The dry goods company now occupies a seven-story building facing Washington avenue, occupying the block between Tenth and Eleventh streets, owned by the Liggett Estate, and an 11-story annex at the southeast corner of Eleventh and St. Charles streets. Thus, with the completion of the proposed building, the Rice-Stix company will occupy the two blocks between Washington avenue and Locust street and Tenth and Eleventh street, except that part occupied by the building of the Kinloch Telephone Co., at the northwest corner of Tenth and Locust streets, and the 26x122 feet at the northeast corner of Eleventh and Locust streets, controlled by the Bristol Realty Co.

According to officers of the Mercantile Trust Co. an additional building of the extent contemplated is made necessary by the greatly increased business of the Rice-Stix company, which has an extensive export trade.

Financing Two Costly Structures.

The Mercantile Trust Co. is financing construction of an 11-story annex at the northeast corner of Seventh street and Washington avenue for the Stix, Baer & Fuller, or Grand-Leader, department store, and the eight-story fireproof home being erected at the southeast corner of Fourth and Market streets for the International Fur Exchange.

As was told during the week in the Post-Dispatch, the First National Bank will retain its present quarters at the southwest corner of Broadway and Locust street, which are to be extended. The second floor of the building, to be vacated by the Chamber of Commerce, will be occupied by the St. Louis Union Trust Co. The First National will continue to occupy the third floor of the building as well as the first.

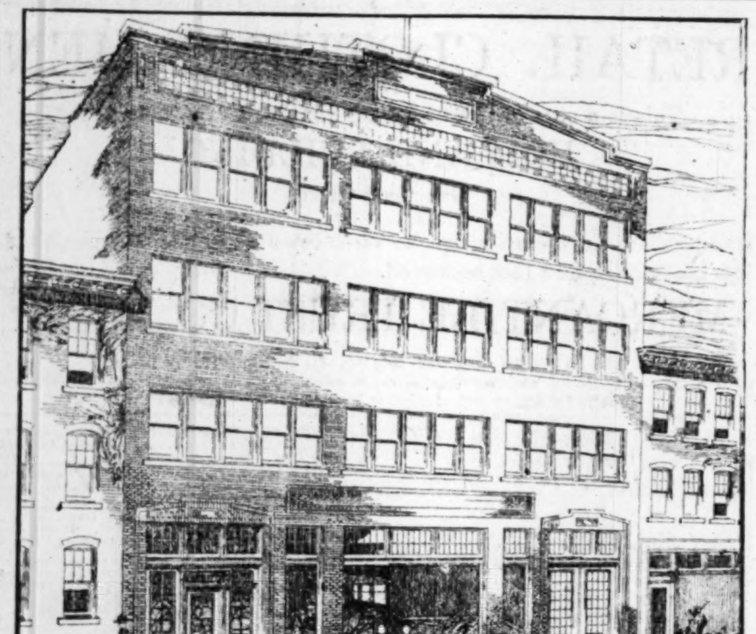
Pine Street Home Being Built For Strauss Motor Company



THE Leonard-Locust Investment Co. has begun construction of a four-story and basement fireproof building at 1117-21 Pine street, for the Strauss Motor Co., of which Milton Strauss is prsident, and which has leased the building through Cornet & Zeibig at an annual rental of $15,000. The improvement is to occupy a lot 66x109 feet and will cost $20,000, according to the Rosenbaum-Hauschulte Real Estate Co., agents for the property.

The show room, fronting on Pine street, will be of sufficient size for display of each type of car manufactured by the Ford Motor Co., and part of the first and upper floors will be utilized for accessories and repairs.

When repairs on a car are of a minor nature, they will be made on the first floor. Work requiring more than 30 minutes, but which does not come up to a major operation, will be sent to the second floor. The third floor will be devoted exclusively to complete overhauling jobs, for which special machinery has been installed.

The fourth floor will be given over to the installation of commercial bodies, paint and top work, and as a used car sales room. For Ford owners who do their own repair work, a parts department will be on the first floor. The building was designed by Frank A. Cornet, who is supervising its construction.

PRICES ON UNSOLD HOMESITES LOTS TO BE INCREASED DEC. 26

Prices on all unsold homesite lots will be increased from 10 to 50 per cent Dec. 26. The Olive Street Terrace Realty Co. has been making efforts to buy additional acreage in the vicinity of the new industrial district, and finds that values have so increased during the past few weeks that it could not buy and subdivide property and sell lots for the low prices now getting for homesites. Acreage not far from Natural Bridge road and Union avenue was offered to the company a few months ago for $200,000. It did not buy at that price and within the past few days the company offered $300,000 for the property and the offer was refused.

Nearly 400 lots have been sold in Homesites since its formal opening, three weeks ago. Most of the purchasers have been St. Louis business men, who bought for investment, expecting to make a quick profit.

The demand for well-located sites in the new industrial district continues, and the Olive Street Terrace Realty Co. believes that every lot in Homesites will be sold by the first of the year.

MINERS TO RECEIVE ONLY TWO DAYS' PAY BEFORE CHRISTMAS

May Not Get That, As New Scale Has Not Yet Been Calculated in Illinois Field.

Christmas will not mean a great deal to many of the coal miners in the East Side fields this year, notwithstanding their return to work. Mine pay days as a rule are on the 15th and 30th of the month, so the miners will have two days' pay coming Monday, and no more until Dec. 30. They may not get the two days' earnings then, as the new scale has not yet been calculated.

Pit committees from several mines in St. Clair and Madison counties yesterday conferred with operators and asked that a special pay day be fixed for Dec. 24, when the men would be given what they had earned up to then, in order to do some Christmas shopping. Others pointed out, however, that most of the miners are so far in debt from the strike period of idleness that two weeks' pay will not go very far.

Miners continued to return to work yesterday, it being estimated that more than 11,000 of the 14,200 miners in St. Clair and Madison counties, and a similar percentage in Macoupin County, had resumed. From these fields St. Louis gets most of its coal. The local situation in Belleville has been complicated by a demand from team owners for an increase from 4 cents to 6 cents a bushel for hauling coal.

WELLSTON CAR AIRBRAKES FAIL TO WORK, FIVE PERSONS HURT

Uncontrolled Car, Coasting Downgrade, Crashes Into One Ahead at Hamilton Crossing.

Failure of the air brakes on an eastbound Wellston car to work resulted in the injury of five persons, one possibly seriously, when the car collided with one ahead of it at Hamilton avenue, at 7:30 o'clock last night. All those injured were passengers on the car ahead, except the motorman on the other car.

Mrs. Ethel Boeckelman, 23 years old, 5851 Maffitt avenue, was internally injured. Cuts and bruises were suffered by Mrs. Carrie Kubisch, 30, 4851 Maffitt; Fred Grenig, 48, a stationary fireman at the German Orphans' Home; Louis Ouberchon, 26, a laborer, 6301 Hamburger avenue, and Churchill Brown, 32, 5317 Goodfellow avenue, motorman on the rear car. The two women were sent home in ambulances.

The rear car was coasting downgrade on Easton avenue, from Hodiamont to Hamilton, and the car ahead had stopped for the crossing. Brown told the police that when the brakes failed he tried the hand brake, but unsuccessfully.

BUILDING TRADES INTEREST CENTERS ON 1920 PROSPECT

Unprecedented Volume of Public Highway Construction Planned for New Year, Making Materials a Problem.

With the executive committee of the Associated General Contractors of America meeting in New York City, planning for the annual convention; highway officials in session in Louisville, Ky.; Rivers and Harbors Congress meeting at Washington, D. C., and the annual convention of the Builders' Exchanges scheduled for early in January at Indianapolis, current interest of the construction industry appears to be centered on the problems and prospects for 1920, says the American Contractor.

The meeting at Louisville last week showed clearly that 1920 will establish a record in the United States for road building. It is a reasonable expectation that the money invested by the several states and the Federal Government will be not less than four times as much as the money invested in highways in any given year of the nation's history.

So vast is the contemplated road work that highway officials and road contractors are considering the transportation problem involved in getting road materials to the localities where they will be required during the summer. The car shortage is expected to be a serious handicap. Some of the states, fearing that road contractors will be unable to get an adequate supply during the rush season, are buying materials and having them shipped to strategic points. In some localities the motor truck will be resorted to.

Need of Water Transportation.

Embarrassments of shippers and buyers of road materials experienced during the war, and especially since the armistice has aroused in the construction industry unusual interest in the Rivers and Harbors Congress and the subject of water transportation. Railroad conditions have been seriously hampering building and construction work, through excessive rates and inadequate service. The building industry realizes that river transportation, supplemented by motor trucks and trailers, is the field of development promising permanent relief. This realization will, doubtless, throw the organized construction industry influence behind the waterways development and the essential legislation in Congress.

It is doubtful if the general public, and some officials at Washington, appreciate the unfavorable conditions resulting in the construction industry from unprecedented freight rates, inadequate car supply and labor controversies which have cut down the production of such necessities as fuel and steel. The National Federation of Construction Industries continues its efforts at Washington to get a more favorable rating on the transportation lists for material manufacturers and construction projects. It says:

Housing Situation Critical.

"The housing situation throughout the entire country is critical. Building programs are from one to three years behind present-day requirements, and this is a most potent cause for the prevailing discontent and radicalism throughout the United States. The construction industry is the foundation of the whole social fabric; because of its magnitude and wide geographical spread its condition is reflected in all phases of national life. The claim of the construction industry for reclassification on the priority schedule is based upon the immediate vital public need for homes and apartments, humanitarian and other essential buildings."

While the miners' strike has been called off, it will take many weeks of full production to ease the situation, and unless during those weeks the material producer is held to be among the essential producers of the country the 1920 building material shortage is bound to be acute and construction costs higher in proportion.

Garage for Delmar Boulevard.

The Weisels-Gerhart Real Estate Co. reports the sale of a lot 100x110, on the south side of Delmar boulevard, beginning 200 feet west of Limits avenue, to Walter A. Haye and Jessie B. Thomas, for the Meredith Realty Co. The purchasers will erect a garage on the site.

If you contemplate buying a home in the spring we suggest that you look into this at once. In the first place, it would take about six weeks to close the purchase and obtain possession, and you should shape your plans so as to be out here early to obtain the pleasure of the spring and have the property in shape for the summer. In the second place, if you put this house proposition off until spring, you are going to have trouble, that is, if you want to come to Webster. Houses are becoming scarce and the wise man will take this matter up now rather than two or three months from now. The price is $6000 and reasonable terms can be arranged.

VAST SUMS BEHIND CUMMINS AND PLUMB BILLS, SENATE HEARS

Debate on Railroad Measure Halted By Resolution to Investigate Reported Raising of Huge Fund.

By the Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 13.—Debate on the Cummins Railroad Bill was interrupted today by a demand, in a resolution, that the Senate investigate reports that vast sums of money had been raised to help put the measure through Congress. The resolution was introduced by Senator Norris (Republican) of Nebraska.

Senator Lafollette charged that the Railway Executives' Association and other interests had provided funds for propaganda purposes.

Senator Norris raised no objection to a proposal by Senator Pomerene (Democrat) of Ohio, that the Senate Interstate Commerce Committee, to which the resolution was referred, investigate reports that advocates of the Plumb plan for railroad control had $4,000,000 to expend in an effort to force adoption by Congress of the tripartite system they proposed.

Warning was given by Republican leaders that failure to dispose of the railroad bill next week might force abandonment of plans for a holiday recess starting Dec. 20. Senator Cummins gave notice that he would endeavor to have the Senate remain in session Monday night to expedite action.

An amendment by Senator Spencer (Republican) of Missouri, to permit subordinate railroad officials as well as clerks and stenographic assistants to submit grievances and wage disputes to the transportation board, was adopted. This provision affects about 100,000 railroad employes not classed as workers and not within the meaning of adjustment provisions of the bill, Senator Spencer said.

OVER-SUPPLY OF FOREIGN EXCHANGE CAUSE OF DECLINE

Banker Says Europe Must Return to Gold Basis and Sell More Goods to Us Before Normal Condition Is Restored.

By the Associated Press.

NEW YORK, Dec. 13.—Restoration of an approximate equilibrium of imports and exports between the United States and Europe and a return of European currencies to gold basis, are needed before foreign exchange will return to a normal basis, according to James F. Alexander, president of the National Bank of Commerce and an authority on foreign trade. Alexander, who was chairman of the Committee on Credit and Finance at the International Trade Conference at Atlantic City, and who is chairman of the Executive Committee of the National Committee on European Finance, was asked today by the Associated Press to reduce to plain terms the highly complicated international business problem presented by the present condition of foreign exchange.

He prepared a statement in which he explained that foreign exchange is a commodity and, in the present demoralized depreciation in rates for sterling and other European exchanges, is a normal depression of the law of supply and demand. The statement follows:

"Depreciation of the foreign exchange is primarily only a reflection of deeper problems in the relation of exports and imports between America and Europe. The problems may be simply stated as follows:

"When exporters sell to foreign buyers they draw checks, drafts, etc., on those foreign consignees or their banks for the amounts due. These bills are drawn in foreign money, preponderantly pounds sterling, that is, on houses in London, long the world's international clearing house. Americans drawing these bills sell them in the foreign exchange market for what they will bring, which under all conditions fluctuates within narrow limits of face value. The total volume of such checks and drafts coming into the foreign exchange market constitutes the supply of foreign exchange in existence at that time. The foreign exchange market consists of foreign exchange houses whose function is to buy exchange, say in New York, on London, and send it there for collection or establishment of balances.

How Balance Is Maintained.

"Ordinarily, at the same time Americans are selling goods to foreigners, foreigners are selling goods to Americans, who therefore have remittances to make abroad. They therefore buy from the foreign exchange dealers drafts or checks against the balances those dealers have established abroad through the purchase of foreign exchange. Thus, while American exporters sell foreign exchange, American importers buy foreign exchange. The one creates the supply, the other creates the demand.

"Normally, this supply and demand were about equal, because the total volume of goods and services sold to Europe about equaled the total volume of goods and services bought from Europe. In pre-war times the differences in the two volumes fluctuated between narrow limits and the excess one way or the other was settled by shipments of gold.

"The following states in general terms what normally took place in the foreign exchange market, ignoring many technical details, which, however, do not alter the main thought.

"The war, however, has materially changed the situation. In the first place, while there have been huge increases in our exports to Europe, there have been great decreases in our imports from Europe. There has, therefore, come into the foreign exchange market a greater volume of checks and drafts on Europe than European drafts on America, resulting in a far greater supply of foreign exchange in this market than in demand on the part of Americans having remittances to make abroad. As always happens in the case of any commodity when supply exceeds demand, prices of the foreign exchange fell. The depreciation of foreign exchange in this market, therefore, is merely a normal expression of the law of supply and demand.

Postponed by U. S. Credits.

"During Europe's war purchases from us before America's entry into the war, foreign exchange on Europe was kept from depreciation to represent levels by the great volume of gold she sent us in cash liquidation of her adverse balance until America entered the war and Government credits were extended to our allies, serving to keep a large volume of foreign exchange for Europe's purchases out of the market. Drafts and checks which would otherwise have come into the market during this period were funded in a consolidated long-time credit. This postponed the depreciation. The extension of Government credit, however, has ceased, and there is nothing now to prevent foreign exchange from coming into the market in greater supply than there is demand for it, due to the continuing excess of Europe's purchases from us over her sales to us.

"In addition to this, exchange on Europe is further depreciated by the fact that foreign currencies are depreciated because of the abandonment of gold redemption, made necessary by great issues of paper money and the reduction of the gold basis through shipments of gold to America. Foreign exchange calls for payment in foreign moneys, and, naturally, since those foreign moneys are below face value, foreign exchange bills themselves will be correspondingly below face value.

"The question as to what will correct the situation can be answered on general principles without any attempt to prophesy: foreign exchange cannot come back to parity until the restoration of the gold standard in Europe corrects the depreciation of European currencies and until the restoration of approximate equilibrium between exports and our imports in respect to Europe again makes the demand for foreign exchange approximate the supply."

CITY LOSES ONE CONVENTION, BUT WINS TWO OTHERS

St. Louis did not get the Republican convention, but Charles F. Hatfield, secretary and general manager of the Convention and Publicity Bureau, took away from Chicago two of the largest commercial meetings in the United States after it was settled beyond a doubt that Chicago had procured the Republican convention.

One of them is that of the Auto Accessories Branch of the National Hardware Association. This organization has a membership of 3000, and has always had an attendance of more than 1000 at its conventions. H. W. Geller of the Geller, Ward & Hasner Hardware Co. and Frederick H. Bein, field secretary of the bureau, procured 94 votes for St. Louis against 53 for Cincinnati, 45 for Cleveland and 35 for Chicago.

The second convention procured was the Master Gravel and Slag Roofers' Association of America. Chicago bid strongly for this convention, but the arguments for St. Louis won. It will be attended by delegates not only from the United States but from Canada, and the meeting will settle certain questions of labor saving devices and the cutting down of overhead expenses.

Hatfield has gone East to try to take three more from Chicago.

5000 APPEALS SENT OUT FOR GIFTS TO GIRLS' HOTEL FUND

$5 Is Sum Asked for by Letmar Club Association—$12,000 Has Been Contributed.

Five thousand appeals for $5 contributions were sent out yesterday by the Letmar Club Association, which is conducting a campaign to raise funds to buy a hotel for working girls of the city. More than $12,000 has already been contributed to the fund through visits of women on the board to business houses and prominent men and women. The money is urgently needed, as girls by the hundreds are turned away from the present club, 3658 West Pine boulevard, and the new hotel is planned to care for 150 at low rates and with all the homelike attractions of the club retained. The appeal was as follows:

"If your little sister came to town and had to earn her living, wouldn't you worry the long night through, for fear of all the dreadful things that might happen to her in the big city? Wouldn't it make you sleep easier to know that she was living in a girls' club where a kindly housemother watched over her as your own mother would? Wouldn't you feel better to know that she was not getting in debt but that she was having the financial benefit derived from co-operative buying, and her warm, comfortable room and two hearty meals a day—three on holidays—were furnished her at cost? Wouldn't you be glad to be sure that she was having a normal good time with other girls and boys of her own age under the supervision of women of high character, and that she was urged to go to church—her own church—every Sunday? If any of these things touch your heart, won't you give $5 to the fund for a hotel for working girls? Please send your check to Mrs. Marion C. Blossom, president, Letmar Club Association, 3658 West Pine boulevard."

Again It's Milton-Marshall Live Stock Commission Co., Inc., Who Sets the Pace

THOUGH organized in 1912 and but seven years old, they have many records to their credit in this short time, and have quickly won the admiration of the live stock trade.

When they sold for Richard Hall of Ray, Illinois, on July 9, 1918, 21 steers weighing 1445 lbs. each at $18.00 per cwt., they secured the highest price ever obtained on any open market up to that time.

Just 21 days later Underwood & Heim of Montgomery County, Mo., sent them a train consisting of nine cars, comprising the entire feeding of R. T. Black of Saline County, Mo., which their Mr. A. J. Milton sold to Swift & Co. at $18.15 per cwt. Never in history were so many cattle sold at such a price.

Their sale for James Long of Saline County, Mo., to the Independent Packing Co. on Aug. 5, 1918, of 2 cars of steers weighing 1290 lbs. at $18.25 is also a market record, and surpassing their previous record sales, and the market's record up to this time.

Not content with establishing historical records in 1918, their ambition did not wane in 1919, as the cut here will show 20 steers weighing 1300 lbs. Branded Herefords of the Western variety that were sold by them on Dec. 10 to Roy Overly, one of Armour's oldest and most proficient buyers, for the local Christmas trade at $20.00 per cwt.—a price exceeding the local market's record on heavy cattle. This shipment sold straight at the remarkable price.

Not only have their steer sales won prominent mention throughout the 14 states from which they draw patronage, but much credit must be given to their Butcher Cattle, Hog and Sheep departments for their accomplishments as well.

Mr. Edward Beggs of Bowling Green, Pike County, Mo., not only deserves much credit for upholding the reputation of one of Missouri's most famous counties, but he has set an example that any of the 114 counties of the state would gladly cherish. For the acme of service, ship to

STATE UNIVERSITY PAYROLL HANDLING AMAZES GOVERNOR

President and Business Manager Called for Conference Following Criticism From State Auditor's Office.

BLANKET CHECKS IN TREASURER'S BANK

Auditing of Cafeteria Receipts Account Called Impossible—Hill Admits Manager Can't Be Controlled.

By a Staff Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch.

JEFFERSON CITY, Dec. 13.—Dr. A. Ross Hill, president of the State University and E. E. Brown, business manager of the university, called on Gov. Gardner today, at the request of the Governor, to confer about certain methods of bookkeeping and business management which had been criticised by examiners from the State Auditor's office.

When the Governor called Dr. Hill by telephone and asked him to come here for a conference, the University head said he would arrive last Monday, but came today instead.

When he and Brown arrived at the Governor's office, Eugene Stephens, chief clerk, and O. P. Caulfield, chief examiner, from the Auditor's office, were called in.

Gov. Gardner during the conference expressed emphatic dissatisfaction with certain phases of the financial management. Dr. Hill told Caulfield he himself had learned some facts about the finances he did not know before and expressed the opinion that Stanley Sisson, manager of the University cafeteria, would have to change his methods or lose his job.

One of the methods used at the University which met with the disapproval of the examiners was the practice of making one or two blanket checks to cover the $50,000 monthly pay roll and depositing the bulk of the pay roll fund in the Boone County National Bank, of which R. B. Price, treasurer of the University, is president. It was found that in this way approximately four-fifths of the monthly pay roll was deposited in Price's bank.

Forced Deposits in Official's Bank.

The practice was this: Instead of giving to each professor or employe his monthly check, or its equivalent in money, the university made out a blanket check for several thousand dollars, listing the name of each employe and the amount due him, and deposited it in the bank. Comparatively small amounts were deposited similarly in other banks. This compelled the employe to maintain an account at Price's bank or to check his money out and transfer it to another bank.

This, however, is not the reason the examiners objected to this system of bookkeeping, but they told Gov. Gardner that such a system made it impossible to check up the accounts, and that it would be possible to pad the payroll of an institution heavily without detection, under such a system of accounting, unless the bank would volunteer to permit the State's examiners to have access to its private records.

Caulfield also told the Governor that the system of depositing salary accounts in the bank by a bank official, through "power of attorney," had resulted in the paying out of about $30,000 for which the State has no receipt whatever.

When Brown admitted that this was true, Gov. Gardner expressed surprise, and, slapping his hand on his desk emphatically said: "Why, doctor, you know that those canceled checks, without any indorsement, are not worth the paper they are written on. I am surprised, very much surprised.

State Funds in Individual Name.

The examiners found that Stanley Sisson, manager of the cafeteria, who is an employe of the State, deposits the daily receipts under his own name, in a bank which has no contract for State funds, and does not pay the State any interest on daily deposits.

The State maintains the cafeteria on a cost basis and it is patronized by a majority of the 3200 students and members of the faculty and employes.

Although the Board of Curators made an order that Sisson should settle with the business manager at least once each week, the Governor was told that Sisson did not settle every week; in fact, that he did not settle until he was pleased to do so, and that on one occasion no settlement could be effected with him for five months and then only after President Hill had used vigorous methods to obtain one.

Dr. Hill admitted that he could not control Sisson, and that the business manager could not control him.

"Sisson seems to be a fixture there, and none of us can do much with him," Hill said. "Ever since the cafeteria was installed he has been in charge, and he runs it about as he pleases."

Sisson admitted to the examiners when they were in Columbia that his daily deposits were large, but said he did not profit from them because the bank in which he deposited them did not pay him any interest on daily balances.

The examiners told the Governor that Sisson's methods of bookkeeping were such that it was impossible to make a check of them. His only record of receipts, they said, were the records of his cash registers and these, he told the examiners, had been destroyed after the money was deposited.

Caulfield also told the Governor that appropriations made by the Legislature for other specific purposes had been used by the university management to pay salaries and the expenses not contemplated in the appropriation act.

Dr. Hill took issue with him, saying that the amount appropriated for the maintenance of the university by the Legislature was too small, and that they were compelled to use money from the other funds to supply the needs. He said that under the general language of the appropriation act the university authorities could use the appropriations for such things as they had been used.

On one voucher against the appropriation for "scientific appliances" Caulfield showed that nine cots and cotton mattresses had been bought from a Columbia furniture store for $10 each.

"Whew-ee," said the Governor, "mattresses must have been pretty high," as he glanced over the bill.

Dr. Hill said the cots and mattresses were for the home economics building, and therefore were scientific appliances.

Ethel Clayton Tells How To Instantly Have a Beautiful Rosy-White Complexion

MISS ETHEL CLAYTON

New York—Miss Ethel Clayton, the clever young actress now successfully starring under the Paramount banner, is famous for her beautiful complexion. When her friends inquired about it she said: "It's all due to a toilet preparation called derwillo which I use twice daily. The experience I have had prompts me to make my secret public. This wonderful derwillo instantly beautified my skin, and its continued use has made the results permanent." When Mae Edna Wilder, the well-known beauty specialist, was interviewed in reference to Miss Clayton's remarkable complexion stated: "Anyone can have a beautiful complexion when they know how. It's a very simple process. I use the same article in my work, and until you try it you have no idea of the marvelous results. The very first application will astonish you. Go to the toilet counter of any drug or department store and get a bottle of derwillo, then make the following test: Examine your skin critically before your mirror, note carefully its appearance, then apply derwillo as directed. After you have made the first application look in your mirror again and note the surprising change. A peach-like color mounts the cheeks; a baby softness comes to the skin; it makes the skin rosy-white, velvety and radiantly beautiful. It is wonderful for a dark sallow skin, shiny nose, freckles, tan, oily skin, sun spots, coarse pores, pimples, blackheads, chapped, rough skin, ruddiness, wrinkles and many other facial blemishes. Derwillo method is absolutely harmless, and will not produce or stimulate a growth of hair. It is superior to face powder, as perspiration does not affect it, therefore it stays on better. Thousands who have used it have had the same results as Miss Clayton, and I am sure if you will give it a fair trial you will become just as enthusiastic as I am and always use it in preference to any other powder or beautifier."

NOTE—When asked about Derwillo, one of our leading druggists said: "It is truly a wonderful beautifier, away ahead of anything we have ever sold before. We are authorized by the manufacturers to refund the money to anyone who is dissatisfied, and we would not permit the use of our name unless the product possessed unusual merit." It is sold in this city under an iron-clad money-back guarantee by all department stores and up-to-date druggists, including Wolff-Wilson, Judge & Dolph, Johnson Bros. and the Enderle Drug Co.

"Wrinkles? Use This Now—See The Difference Tomorrow"

By Valeska Suratt.

Very Remarkable Results Which Can Be Produced in Making the Face Look Young and Beautiful, by Simple Methods, How to Stop Hair Falling and Remove Superfluous Hair.

EVEN at your middle age you can get rid of nearly all those wrinkles. Get a two-ounce package of eptol from your druggist. It will cost about fifty cents. Mix this with a tablespoonful of glycerine in a half pint of water. The cream which results is very rich, and yet can and should be used liberally. This will make the texture of the skin much finer, and as a result of it becoming more plump, the large and small wrinkles will soon be found to have almost entirely disappeared.

MISS G. M. P.—You will be able to get rid of those blackheads in a few moments. You don't have to wait weeks to produce the result. Sprinkle a little neroxin on a wet cloth and rub the blackheads with this for a few minutes and when you look in the mirror you will see nearly every blackhead gone. The neroxin costs about fifty cents at the drug store. Repeat the application of neroxin for several days and you will be rid of them completely.

• • •

GOODNESS—It is more difficult for hair to grow luxuriantly when the scalp retains that film of scale and fatty accumulation which forms on all scalps. The only way to remove it absolutely is not to use soap, but something which will dissolve it away. For this purpose use a teaspoonful of eggol in a half cup of water as a shampoo. This will let your hair breathe, grow luxuriantly, too, and give the hair a remarkably silky sheen. For twenty-five cents you can get enough eggol to last for over a dozen of these splendid head washes.

MISS N. A.—A beautiful complexion can be accepted as an assured fact, if the proper means are employed. Every skin possesses the possibilities of being remarkably beautiful. This result is assured by the following formula. Do not buy an already prepared cosmetic, but make up your own cream as follows: it takes but a few moments and then you are certain of the results. Get one ounce of zintone from your druggist for about fifty cents. Mix the contents of this with two tablespoonfuls of glycerine in a pint of water, and your cream will be ready. After you use this freely for a week or so your complexion should be spotless, queenly and beautiful.

LILLIE—Certain materials are very quickly absorbed by the hair-roots and are acted upon by them very promptly. Such, for instance, is the following which has been found to be a most remarkable hair-forcer. You need nothing else to make your hair grow to splendid length and vigor. It will make hair stop falling at once, and fill in bald spots within a few weeks. Mix one ounce of beta-quinol with half a pint of water and half a pint of bay rum, or with a pint of witch hazel instead of the water and bay rum. For fifty cents any druggist will supply you with the beta-quinol.

MISS T. R. T.—Women who know the best and simplest way to remove superfluous hairs go about it by dissolving them away. They do not use many of the pastes and powders commonly sold. They do not use anything to irritate and redden the skin. The only way to dissolve away hair and so that it leaves no reddening or irritation, is to moisten the hairs with sulfo solution which can be obtained for one dollar at any drug store. It will never fail to satisfy you completely.

SEARCH—You ask what is the best face powder it is possible to get. I will answer that it is "Fresca Beauty Powder," which is sold in drug stores for fifty cents. It is exquisitely fine, blends perfectly with the skin-tint, and stays on most beautifully. Imported powders cannot excel it.

This powder, however, has not been on the market very long and not all toilet counters have it in stock. So if you are unable to obtain it from your regular dealer, I will be glad to see to it that you are supplied by mail if you will write to my Secretary and enclose either ten cents for the trial size or fifty cents for the large box of Fresca Beauty Powder.

Simply address: Secretary to Miss Suratt, Thompson Bldg., Chicago, Ill., and she will faithfully attend to your wishes.

How Nuxated Iron Helped
Put Me in Such Superb Condition as to Enable ## Me To Whip Jess Willard
and Win the World's Championship.

"Nuxated Iron put added power behind my punch and helped me to accomplish what I did at Toledo."
JACK DEMPSEY.

JACK DEMPSEY
"Tiger of the Ring"
Tells a Secret of His Training Recommends Nuxated Iron to Every Man and Woman Who Wants to Build Greater STRENGTH, ENERGY and POWER.

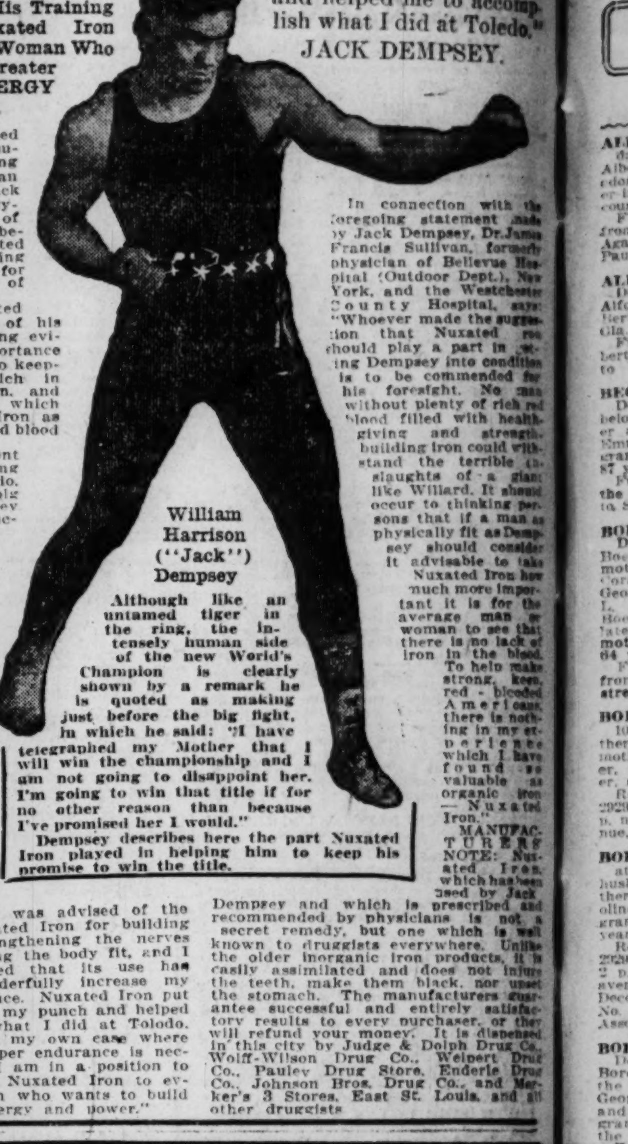
Today recognized as the physical superior to any living man—the Superman of the Age — Jack Dempsey, Heavyweight Champion of the world, explains below the part Nuxated Iron played in helping to prepare him for the supreme test of his career.

That he took Nuxated Iron as a part of his training is convincing evidence of the importance Dempsey attached to keeping his blood rich in strength-giving iron, and the high regard in which he holds Nuxated Iron as master strength and blood builder.

In a statement made at his training quarters in Toledo, the scene of the big battle, Jack Dempsey said: After commencing the use of Nuxated Iron during my training for the big fight with Jess Willard, I soon noticed that I could stand harder strains with less fatigue than before, and I realized that I had found a tonic and blood builder which played an important part in getting me into fine condition. Formerly I had relied solely upon strength-building foods and outdoor exercise to keep my blood rich in red corpuscles, but with the World's Championship at stake, I felt that I could leave nothing undone that might help me to win. I was advised of the great value of Nuxated Iron for building up the blood, strengthening the nerves and aiding in keeping the body fit, and I am firmly convinced that its use has helped me to wonderfully increase my stamina and endurance. Nuxated Iron put added power behind my punch and helped me to accomplish what I did at Tolodo. From the results in my own case where the possession of super endurance is necessary, I feel that I am in a position to strongly recommend Nuxated Iron to every man and woman who wants to build greater strength, energy and power."



William Harrison ("Jack") Dempsey

Although like an untamed tiger in the ring, the intensely human side of the new World's Champion is clearly shown by a remark he is quoted as making just before the big fight, in which he said: "I have telegraphed my Mother that I will win the championship and I am not going to disappoint her. I'm going to win that title if for no other reason than because I've promised her I would."

Dempsey describes here the part Nuxated Iron played in helping him to keep his promise to win the title.

In connection with the foregoing statement made by Jack Dempsey, Dr. James Francis Sullivan, formerly physician of Bellevue Hospital (Outdoor Dept.), New York, and the Westchester County Hospital, says: "Whoever made the suggestion that Nuxated Iron should play a part in getting Dempsey into condition is to be commended for his foresight. No man without plenty of rich red blood filled with health-giving and strength-building iron could withstand the terrible onslaughts of a giant like Willard. It should occur to thinking persons that if a man as physically fit as Dempsey should consider it advisable to take Nuxated Iron how much more important it is for the average man or woman to see that there is no lack of iron in the blood. To help make strong, keen, red-blooded Americans, there is nothing in my experience which I have found so valuable as organic iron—Nuxated Iron."

MANUFACTURERS' NOTE: Nuxated Iron, which has been used by Jack Dempsey and which is prescribed and recommended by physicians is not a secret remedy, but one which is well known to druggists everywhere. Unlike the older inorganic iron products, it is easily assimilated and does not injure the teeth, make them black, nor upset the stomach. The manufacturers guarantee successful and entirely satisfactory results to every purchaser, or they will refund your money. It is dispensed in this city by Judge & Dolph Drug Co., Wolff-Wilson Drug Co., Weipert Drug Co., Pauley Drug Store, Enderle Drug Co., Johnson Bros. Drug Co., and Merker's 3 Stores, East St. Louis, and all other druggists.

Face bleaches are harmful and we do not recommend them. Mrs. Woolworth's residence is at 990 Fifth av., New York City. Mrs. F. J. Shepard resides in Tarrytown, New York.

COUNTRY LASSY.—A song lyric is a poem set to music. It is arranged according to the taste of the author or composer. Naturally the music accompanies a song lyric. Music publishing companies accept song lyrics written by hand. It would cost you $1 to have it copyrighted. You may write it on any kind and size paper, by hand or machine. When submitting poetry to magazines it is customary to place the author's name, address and the date along with the words "submitted at usual rates" at the top of the paper. Put your signature at the end of the poem also.

WOOD RIVER.—The following is a poem you might be able to use:

The Trials of a Twin.

In form and feature, face and limb,
I grew so like my brother,
That folks got taking me for him,
And each one for another
It puzzled all our kith and kin,
It reached a fearful pitch;
For one of us was born a twin,
And not a soul knew which.
One day, to make the matters worse,
Before our names were fixed,
As we were being washed by nurse,
We got completely mixed;
And thus, you see, by Fate's decree,
Or rather nurse's whim,
My brother John got christened me,
And I got christened him.
This fatal likeness ever dogged
My footsteps when at school,
And I was always getting flogged,
When John turned out a fool.
I put this question fruitlessly,
To everyone I knew,
"What would you do, if you were me,
To prove that you were you?"
Our close resemblance turned the tide
Of my domestic life,
For somehow, my intended bride
Became my brother's wife.
In fact, year after year the same
Absurd mistakes went on,
And when I died, the neighbors came
And buried brother John.

Gentle zephyrs blow lightly o'er the grave where mother sleeps,
Where the moonbeams shining brightly hover around her narrow bed for memory vigil keeps,
While she lived we knew, but gladness, every joy was all our own,
But the night of grief and sadness when her spirit hence had flown came upon us.
Thus we slept over her that now doth sleep, angel wings have borne her spirit to a purer land above, where the blest forever inherit all the Father's holy love of sweet zephyrs, whisper lightly o'er that sacred hallowed spot where the moonbeams sparkle brightly. Oh, it can never be forgotten. Farewell, dear mother; some day in heaven we hope to meet, where our happiness will forever be complete.
SON AND DAUGHTERS AND OTHERS WHO LOVE HER.

How we miss you, no one knows;
You are gone, but not forgotten,
By the ones who loved you so.

We little thought that on that day
Our darling mother would be called away.

Never from our memory fade.
Loving hearts will always linger
Around the grave where she is laid.

We all must follow
And meet in heaven,
Where there is no sorrow.
Loved by all who knew him.

Our hearts in deep sorrow return to the day
As memory recalls how death bore you away
And left us in tears, in grief and in woe,
When we stood by your bed one year ago.
One year, with all its changes since death strangely led us apart.
But, dear Edna, all these changes cannot take you from our heart.
Gone in the best of your days, blighted in womanhood's bloom,
Gone from the hearts that loved you, to sleep in the silent tomb.

Soon are coming, one by one.

CLOTHING

FOR SALE.

WE have "released" for the "first run" 200 suits and overcoats for Christmas selling at a big saving to you. Give yourself the "once over" twice. Maybe you are one of those "come-late-and-quit-early birds" and go around looking "down and out." No wonder you don't succeed. We are making it easy for you to buy clothes here, at $7.50 to $20. "Bargain day here" is not a one-day event. It is 365 days in a year "proposition." Come here "often." The "oftener" you come the "oftener" you save. It's "suit and overcoat time" now. "Sometimes you have to go outside to get inside information." Come "inside;" we will give you all the "outside information" in regard to the "High Cost" of Clothes. Buy our uncalled-for clothes; suits that will "dress you up." There is no time in life that you get so "down and out" that you can't get into the "Land of Beginning Again;" "start anew;" we "Are Calling You" with our 5 large stores, 120 feet filled with "bargains galore." If we don't get your money for clothes here, you don't spend your "dough" right. What you "save when you spend your dough is your profit." "Install the "Abrams System" of clothes buying, and save. Look prosperous. Don't go around looking "down and out." For 10 years we have saved thousands of dollars for the clothes-buying public. Be "awake" to the "fact" your personal appearance "must count. We have in "store" for you high-class suits; you can afford to wear two or three suits a season for the price of the customary one by purchasing our uncalled-for garments from our cleaning department; garments are tailor made and from the best manufacturers. Can you wear 34, 36, 38, 42, 40, 46 to 50 sizes? Also English and plain models. Vests, 50c. Pants, $2 to $3.95. Coats, $3 to $6.50. Uncalled-for Stetson hats, 95c. Open Sundays until 6 p. m. A THE "request" of the "manager," we want to make the last 15 days of 1919 "A Big Business Windup." We need $5000 more on the year's business to cover our allotment. We can save you 20 to 40 per cent on your clothing bills. Suits, overcoats and mackinaws. If your "money is going to count" with you spend it here. "Take it from us." "We'll take it from you" and give you a long run for your money. "Where your dollars will bring the limit for clothes." If there ever was a "time" when a man should make every "dollar" bring the "limit," time is now. The Rule-of-Reason—out of the high-rent district, no expensive habits, no "heavy overhead expenses," but solid values. "More than your money's worth" on high-class suits and overcoats. "Adopt our close-to-the-shore profit system. "What the Drummers' Sample Clothes Shop means to you:" These fine garments are made by the manufacturers for display or modeling purposes for traveling salesmen; they are made much better than the regular goods; after they show them off we buy them at a big discount; we give you the benefit of our immense buying capacity; this policy enables us to save you $5.00 to $7.50. We're "lowering" the "high" game cost of "living;" we claim with our "5 big stores" eliminating all unnecessary expenses. You save the difference. Never in the "history" of these "United States" will you "see prices" as "high" as this fall. Don't "tread the old beaten path," paying for the high rents "which don't get you anywhere." Play the "new game" All we ask of you, "go shopping around" first and come here last, and we will certainly get your "dough." We are the only store in St. Louis showing "real" plain and silk-lined $30 and $35 blue, green, brown flannel waistline suits at these prices: $24.98 and $27.98. Don't spend "a dollar for clothes" unless you see our "fall line." "Pay less; buy more;" To the "Drummers' Sample Clothes Shop." Five big stores in one. THE NEW SPARK PLUG
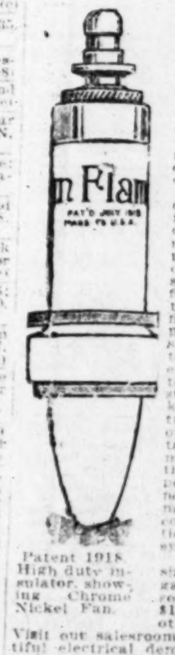
(Rotating Electrode)

BEGINNING MONDAY, DEC. 15, WE WILL BEGIN OUR INTRODUCTORY SALE OF OUR NEW FAN FLAME SPARK PLUGS.



Patent 1918
High duty insulator, showing Chrome Nickel Fan.

This new principal plug differs from the standard stationary one-point plugs, as a view of the cut hereon will show.

The six-point nickel windmill-shape FAN is attached to the apex of the center electrode, and is loosely attached thereto.

The constant compression and explosion of the engine when in motion causes this fan to rotate. The current passing over the center electrode in the usual manner comes in contact with a revolving or vibrating six-point fan; this current is distributed to each of the six points of the said fan, firing at all times within the bowl of plug from five to nine hundredths per cent greater fire spark. It is now possible to answer the call of every journal in the land to be able to ignite instantaneously what is known as a learner mixture (less gas) by about one-fourth. It is an established fact the lean mixture produces something near one hundred per cent more pulling power than the over-rich mixture so long used in connection with the stationary one or two point system so long employed.

They are made in all sizes for all makes of gasoline engines of whatsoever type. Price, net, $1.25 each, no deviation other than to dealers.

Visit our salesroom and witness our beautiful electrical demonstration daily. Sold under a positive guarantee in every case when directions are complied with. Out-of-town car owners may order a set of these plugs to be sent C. O. D. by parcel post prepaid, the same will be shipped day received. Sales Room, 100 N. 7th st., St. Louis, Mo.

How to Give Your Husband A Merry Christmas on a Dime

BY RING W. LARDNER

TO THE EDITOR:

Along about this time in Dec. women folks has generally always got their xmas lists all made out and their presents boughten, except what they are going to give their husbands, but when they finely start looking for their pocket book and find it in the clothes hamper or somewheres they discover that the amount left to spend on the bread winner is anywheres from nothing clear up to a dollar and they can't figure out how they happened to be so light till they remember that they blowed $9.75 on a inch square handkerchief for Polly Grant that went to Vassar with them 10 yrs. ago and they haven't only seen her once since and didn't like her then and won't see her no more in this life and for all as they know her husband may be in the handkerchief mfg. business.

But the question is what are they going to give the spouse besides the apology for not giveing him something decent and tho they realize that its hard to find something he might have use for that don't cost at least $1.50 yet they have got to show that they think of him once per annum but still and all they don't want to slip him a remembrance that would make him laugh in their face like a pen wipper or a wash cloth or something.

Hunting For a House, Has This Happened to You?

BY JAMES J. MONTAGUE

YOU remember the poor real estate agent who had to be a notary public to help out, and who painted his own "for rent" signs? He usually had desk room in somebody else's place, and agilely stepped out of the back door when the bill collector came in the front door. You always used to feel sorry for him.

Well, you don't need to feel sorry for him any more. He's got an office, with mission furniture and a filing cabinet in it, two stenographers and a clerk. When you want to see him he's usually out on the golf course taking lessons from the professional. He's being urged to run for Mayor to save the city from ring politics, and people who used to call him "Bill" call him mister.

I went to see him the other day. Some friends from a Western city wanted a house in our suburbs. His clerk said he wasn't in and listened languidly when we stated our business.

"No use," said the clerk, "we ain't got nothing to rent."

"Not a single house in town?"

"Nope."

That seemed final, and we were about to leave when Bill came in. He was in a hurry, but he listened to us.

"I've got just one house for $600," he said. That sounded reasonable. My friend and his wife looked at each other hopefully.

"I guess we can pay that," said my friend. "How do we pay it?"

"Monthly, in advance."

"What kind of a house?"

"Ten rooms, three baths, two-car garage."

"Gee! That's some house to get for $50 a month. I thought houses were high around here?"

Bill lost interest.

"Six hundred dollars a month, not a year," he said.

We went away from there.

At another office down the street we found a house listed for a hundred dollars. Making sure that it was a hundred dollars a month, not a week, we went to see it.

The family that occupied it was about to move out. The lady showed us the house.

"Of course," she said, "if you have just got to have a house, like we did, I suppose you can live here. There isn't any water in the kitchen, the furnace won't heat but one room at a time, the roof leaks in five or six places, there is a foot of water in the cellar after every rain, and the landlord won't make any repairs. I'm not saying anything against the house, you understand. It will do if you have to have a roof. But you'd probably freeze to death or die of malaria if you took it. And I forgot to mention that it's full of rats."

We cast no lingering, longing look behind as we left.

As we walked down the street I happened to remember about Jones' place. Jones, I knew, wanted to sell it. He had bought it four or five years ago for $3000. It wasn't much of a house and there was only a pocket-handkerchief lot in front of it. It ought to be a bargain.

I telephoned Jones, and he referred me to a real estate man.

"I promised him I wouldn't sell it except through him," he said.

So we went to the real estate man.

He was in a hurry, like the other real estate men, but he paused long enough to look up the house in his card index.

"Fifteen thousand dollars, cash," he said.

"But the place only cost three thousand," I said.

"That was three years ago. Houses are up. If you want it you'll have to hurry, because four or five other people are after it. I'll close with one of them this afternoon sure. Do you want it?"

We didn't.

"I think," said my friend, "that it would be cheaper to build a house. Then we can have it just as we want it. Do you know any and the system of borrowing often [illegible]des over a court in need of jurors, but it rarely gives an opening to a man who has been challenged in another court. If it is the same sort of a case and he is stricken off in No. 4, he usually meets with another short shrift when he is loaned to No. 2 or No. 5, as the case may be. Automobile and United Railways damage actions clutter the dockets and it isn't every juror who can please both sides in these controversies.

H C of L Makes It Difficult to Get Jurors

Quite often a juror who "goes on" Monday morning, over his protest, finds himself in three or four rooms before his week is up, without ever getting a chance to sit and pass on the law and evidence, even though he might be willing. The "voir dire" is always his undoing. When the 18 names composing the panel are called from which to make the 12 selections, he goes within the rail with a guilty look, knowing that his stay will be short, and his presentment is usually well based. He knows too many people, or there is something about him that causes fear in the breast of plaintiff's counsel, and he is promptly banished. After his first repulse one of this class discarded a diamond stick pin and a few other marks of opulence and went into another panel in a different room, to which he was marched, only to meet with another repulse. Then he lay back and marked time till his week was up, when he drew pay at the same rate as those who actually served in cases and rendered verdicts. This juror was heard to vow that the Sheriff's sleuths would never cross his palm with another subpena.

Many persons who are called take a particular dislike to the experience they are called upon to undergo in the preliminary examination of the talesmen before "12 good men and true" are picked out of the pot in the "voir dire" process, as the lawyers call it. They are subjected to a most searching examination, even though the case may not involve more than $500, and if there is any indication that they know something they shouldn't they are bombarded, and in some instances made to feel that they are just being found out. One juror who recently confessed that he had on several occasions been so friendly with some of the officials of a corporation that was named as defendant in the case on trial, as to have actually taken a few sociable drinks with them, was banished so quickly that all the spectators looked at him in a manner that implied that his offending was particularly grievous, and that his exposure was well timed. Still, there is another class of jurors who are never stricken off, but get on every case in which their names are called. These are the candidates whose answers indicate that their information, on all subjects, is on the edge of the vanishing point. They seem to suit the lawyers much better than those who are up and posted on many things that might figure in the trial.

What will St. Louis and Missouri do when the women get all the rights of citizenship that belong to the men is a question that is giving concern to both Judges and lawyers. Will they try to beg off with the same degree of persistence that characterizes the male citizenry?

He goes at it like a response to a riot call and gesticulates as he addresses the exponent of the law's majesty. "I am expecting a wire any minute, Your Honor," he says.

Will it be quite as easy for the counsel to separate the inviting from the uninviting prospects, when it comes to selecting the 12 persons who will make or break the case? Women jurors are serving in other states and the novelty of the thing has completely disappeared in these commonwealths, though for years the oddity of the situation presented was regarded as a wonder. With the coming of the women jurors, it is expected, as a matter of course, that there will be a better play in the legal profession for the women counsel, who will be looked to to make better than men lawyers when it comes to the searching examination of the "voir dire." The woman lawyer will be asked to conduct these examinations when her sisters find their way into the various panels in civil and criminal cases, and the new order of things will work a big increase in her share of the practice. There are women lawyers now, but they are not regularly seen in the courts, certainly not to the extent that will be observed later, when there will be "taleswomen" as well as "talesmen" to be taken into consideration.

One of the first reforms to come with "ladies of the jury" will be some improvements in the conference rooms up under the dome of the old Courthouse, where jurors sit, debate and arrive at verdicts.

These rooms are arranged so as to encourage quick agreements on the part of jurors. They certainly were designed with no other purpose in view, as they are devoid of comforts and well calculated to make 12 men want to get out and away from them, with the greatest possible dispatch. The prediction is freely made that there will be some sweeping reforms, when the women are sent to such rooms to deliberate and render verdicts in keeping with the law and evidence. They will want to know why such crude places are supplied for such important functions, and they might ask, too, why the evidence of unrestricted tobacco usage is so manifest in such quarters. But this is only one of the great series of problems for the future; so why anticipate?

Invention Measures Millionth of an Inch

production was reached in November, 1918, and by Christmas the factory had turned out 50 sets of gauges. There was no longer any need of Sweden's "Joe blocks" in this country. Altogether, 150 sets of the gauges have been made at the bureau, every inspector in both the army and the navy having been supplied with one. The Swedish blocks sold for $2000 a set; Hoke precision gauges, as they are known to science in this and other countries, are being sold by the Connecticut firm at $450.

There are 81 discs in a full Hoke set, ranging in thickness from one-twentieth of an inch to four inches. They are of shiny steel, seven-eighths of an inch in diameter, perforated like Chinese money. Say you wish to make from the discs a "built-up" gauge of 3.1416 inches. You take the three-inch disc and add others from the varying sizes till you get the required length. The result is a perfect 3.1416—a gauge that is a connecting link between the master gauge of the machine shop and the prototype of all gauges in Paris.

The discs are "wrung" together by sliding them one on another, so as to exclude the air. When this is done they cling together as if glued. You cannot pull them apart, but must "unwring" them—slide them apart. The phenomenon is explained by the flatness of the surfaces. It is conceivable, according to the inventor, that surfaces may be made so flat that when they are pushed together the molecular adhesion will be as firm as the metal itself.

"What is it that I have discovered?" Hoke repeated the question.

"A principle as simple as that which enabled an early discoverer to stand an egg upright by chipping one end. It is the principle, to state it without technicalities, of making a large number of identical parts and sticking them together and measuring the entire bunch to determine the cumulative error. The individual part might contain an error too small to be discovered by any known means, but when the parts are put together the combined error can be detected.

"That's the secret of the Hoke process, by which we can divide a standard of length with an accuracy never before attained."

Hoke illustrated his method in this way: Suppose you wish to measure the diameter of a 1-cent piece. Take 100 new 1-cent pieces and lay them in a row. With an ordinary steel tape measure you can get within, say, one-twentieth of an inch of the correct length of the entire lot. Divide by the number of 1-cent pieces and you get within one-two-thousandths of an inch of the diameter of each piece.

Two other principles are tied up with that of measuring the cumulative error. The parts must be identical, and there must be what Hoke calls the "symmetrical distribution of error." Identical parts are made in a simple machine which Hoke built for the Bureau of Standards. The process, briefly, is to grind and polish the parts to identical thicknesses between two castiron discs, the error being evenly distributed among the parts by moving them at intervals from one fixed position to another between the two discs.

How can one form some conception of a millionth of an inch? Consider, says Hoke, a hair from the human head. The average thickness of a hair is three-one-thousandths of an inch. Split this hair into 3000 slices and each will be a millionth of an inch in thickness.

"Nature," says the inventor, "works not in millionths but in billionths of inches. The point of a fine steel needle, looks infinitely sharp, but examine it through a microscope and it looks like the end of a busted telegraph pole. But take the stinger of a bee, and no matter how powerful the microscope, the end of the stinger is seen as a point. That point is possibly the billionth of an inch."

Hoke is now applying his principles to the making of precision gears, balls, cylinders and angles.

"When precision gears, gears that mesh with absolute accuracy, are put in automobiles," he said, "you won't hear any grinding noise in low speed."

He is Maj. Hoke in this story, because that is the title still given him by attaches at the Bureau of Standards, where the Hoke gauge factory is one of the show places. Having done his part in the winning of the war, he has recently been discharged from the service and is now in civilian clothes. Soon he will receive a medal from the Franklin Institute of Philadelphia for "meritorious invention."

builders?" I knew a couple. We went to see them both. They were not encouraging. As nearly as we could learn from their conversation, the value of a dollar in the building business was $.0275.

The first man said he had so much to do anyway that he couldn't undertake any new contracts before next August. The second said that what with labor strikes, slow deliveries of material and general shortage of everything a builder needs, he'd only take the job on a cost plus basis.

"What does that mean?"

You buy all the materials, pay all the labor and I take 20 per cent for doing the work.

"What would you build me a nice little seven-room house for?" inquired my friend.

The builder covered a blotter with figures, added them up and replied:

"I could build you a very nice house of that size for fifteen or sixteen thousand dollars."

So we gave it up. It was necessary for my friend to remain in the metropolis over the winter. So he rented a lot on the outskirts of the city and bought a tent.

La-May Face Powder Is Harmless to the Most Delicate Skin

A specialist has at last perfected a pure face powder that positively will not cause enlarged pores, blackheads and irritations. In fact, while it is considered the best face powder, it is also a remedy for complexion troubles. It is guaranteed pure and harmless to the most delicate baby skin. It beautifies wonderfully because it helps to clear and lighten the skin and protect the complexion from blemishes. This new kind of face powder is made largely of an ingredient that skin specialists use in the treatment of the complexion. And it really stays on better than any other face powder. Of course, saying this, every one knows we mean the famous La-may Powder (French, Poudre L'Ame). This is the powder that does not contain starchy rice powder or dangerous white lead to make it adhere. White lead is a deadly poison and rice powder turns into a gluey paste that makes enlarged pores, blackheads and rice powder irritations. Because La-may is so pure and because it stays on so well it is now used by over a million American women. All dealers carry the large box, and many dealers also carry the small trial size. Be sure to try La-may. Then you will really know a perfect face powder. You will be sorry if you take a substitute. When you use this harmless powder and see how beautifully it improves your complexion, you will understand why La-may so quickly became the most popular beauty powder sold in America. Save this notice.

Celestial Gunner "Shoots Up" .. Lake Michigan .. With Biggest Meteor on Record

Its flare was visible in three states, and a dozen cities noticed force of detonation as it was quenched in the cold waters — Sky at night brilliantly illuminated during rush of mighty projectile, attended by roll of thunder — Curious facts about meteorites

-o- -o- -o- -o-

FOR ages the artillery of the solar system has been bombarding the earth at the rate of 400,000,000 meteors a day. Most of the gunnery has been small-arm fire, and the projectiles have been smothered in the globe's huge sandbag fortification of atmosphere. Occasionally a big naval rifle of the sky has spoken, and then a missile like the 36 1-2 ton meteorite of Cape York, Greenland, reaches its target.

But on the night of Nov. 26 some veritable "70-mile gun" of the firmament unleashed the biggest celestial shell in recorded history, according to the belief of astronomers. Its concussion with the armor belt of air, say eyewitnesses, produced an incandescence which lighted up the entire sky like day; it plowed its way through with a sound of hissing that was heard for miles; and its impact was attended by a giant detonation, the flames of which were visible in three states, and which produced earthquake-like tremors that rocked a dozen cities.

The providential chance which has prevented any recorded loss of human life through the falling of a meteor also held good in this instance. The great projectile dropped into Lake Michigan, apparently about 15 miles from Grand Haven. No doubt the shock of the white-hot orb when it plunged into the cold waters of the lake shattered it into a million fragments, so that no precise measurement of its dimensions will ever be possible.

But that it was of unparalleled caliber is indicated by the tremendous phenomena attending its arrival. Residents of Kalamazoo, Battle Creek, Grand Haven and South Bend, Ind., feeling the ground reel beneath them and seeing the walls quiver, fled their homes in fear of an earthquake. The rumblings of the explosion were audible as far south as Lafayette, Ind., and a flash of light is said to have been visible even in Chicago. The flare of the detonation was seen in Michigan, Illinois and Indiana, where many believed that some great store of ammunition had blown up.

Lighthouse guards at Grand Haven declare that they witnessed the entire occurrence.

"What seemed a giant ball of fire," they relate, "fell into Lake Michigan about 15 miles south of Grand Haven. It looked like a falling planet. In its rush downwards at terrific speed, we could clearly hear it hiss and whistle. When it struck the water, a pillar of flame erupted hundreds of feet into the air, with a blinding light and a deafening explosion."

"Houses were shaken," says another observer, "and the country was illuminated as if by a ray so all-enveloping that it was impossible to tell from what direction the blaze came. The earth trembled, and there came a deep, prolonged rumbling as of a terrific and distant explosion."

In former days so portentous a phenomenon, with its flare visible for 50 miles and its explosion shaking a trio of states, would have been taken as an omen of the most malign augury. It would have been interpreted as foretelling nothing less than the end of the world. But today it is taken merely as an occurrence of nature, though one of the most striking ones on record, and will serve to kindle a moment's renewed interest in that fascinating subject—meteors.

As has been said, it is estimated that the earth is bombed daily by 400,000,000 of these missiles from space, and is saved from destruction only by its belt of atmosphere. A vast majority of the meteors never reach the earth. They literally burn themselves up in the enormous friction heat engendered by their contact with the air. They disintegrate so effectively that the recorded number of meteors which have reached the earth is only 700. But the total number is so staggering that 20,000,000 of them would be visible each day, were it not for the clouds and the light of the sun and moon.

There are probably many which have neither been observed in their fall nor discovered where they lie. And many others explode into harmless dust even after they have approached the earth closely enough to be observed and heard in their passage through the air.

Meteors travel at fixed speed schedules, which scientists have computed with great exactness. They whirl in their orbits at the rate of a little more than 26 miles a second. They enter the atmospheric belt surrounding the earth at that speed, but then come under the influence of the globe's attraction, which Prof. Lowell has shown to range from .53 to 2.7 miles per second. By adding the average of this attraction to the natural speed of meteors, it will be seen that they approach the earth at about 28 miles a second, a speed about 50 times as terrific as the muzzle velocity of the most destructive of the big guns employed in the European war.

However, further comparison is required to calculate the velocity of a meteor with relation to the earth, as distinguished from its own rate of speed. An unchanging rule is that all meteors which come to earth between noon and midnight overtake it from the rear, while all those arriving between midnight and noon either meet the earth while traveling in an opposite direction from it or are overtaken by it while traveling in the same direction.

If the earth is bowling along ahead of the meteor at its own gait of 18 1-2 miles a second, while the meteor is rushing after it at 28 miles a second, the velocity with which the visitor comes to earth will be the difference between the two speeds, or about 9 1-2 miles a second. But in the head-on collisions which often happen, the velocity will be the sum of the two speeds, or 46 to 47 miles a second.

The solar system is pretty well cluttered up with meteors of various kinds. They are regarded as the scraps and refuse left over after the planets were completed. There was no celestial waste heap to pile them on, so they were thrown out into space and promptly began revolving in incalculable throngs about the sun. They are believed to be small planetary bodies, containing some of the same materials which compose the earth.

The most important of the meteors are those larger ones which survive their passage through the air and actually come to earth, where they are known as meteorites. Next in size and conspicuous effect are the fireballs or bolides, which sometimes travel alone, and sometimes are attended by a shower of smaller missiles. After these come the shooting stars, which exhibit a great dissimilarity of paths, motions and colors, and vary in size from those visible to the naked eye to the uncountable multitude of tiny ones which can be perceived only with the aid of a powerful telescope.

Properly speaking, meteors acquire the name only after they enter the earth's atmosphere and become luminous. The height at which they first are visible from the earth ranges from 40 to 80 miles, although a few have been seen at greater altitudes. The known meteorites are of three sorts in composition. Some are almost entirely of stone, others have varying quantities of metal fused with stone, and the remainder are almost entirely metal. The nature of the metal is essentially the same in all meteorites, being iron, alloyed with from 5 to 25 per cent of nickel. Both stone and metal meteorites usually have fused and pitted surfaces, after their furnace-like plunge into the air. Those of iron exhibit blackish or bluish crusts, through which gleam silvery-appearing interiors here and there. Most stone meteors have black, more or less shiny crusts, with grayish interiors.

The largest meteorite known is one of a group found at Cape York, Greenland. It is of iron and weighs 36½ tons. It is 10 feet 11 inches long, 6 feet 9 inches high, and 5 feet 2 inches wide. It had long been known and regarded with superstitious reverence by the natives of the region where it fell, but was not seen by white men until Admiral Peary's visit in 1895. Because of its size and shape, the Eskimos called it "Ahnighito," meaning a tent. About two miles away lay two other large meteorites, undoubtedly parts of the same fall. The three were carried away to New York City by Admiral Peary in 1896 and 1897.

There are only eight other meteorites which rank in size between the Cape York examples and the hundreds which weigh one ton or less. The places where they fell and their weights are as follows: Chupaderos, Mexico, 26 tons; Willamette, Ore., 15½ tons; El Morito, Mexico, 11 tons; Bendego, Brazil, 5 tons; Cranbourne, Australia, 4 tons; Adargas or Concepcion meteor of Mexico, from near Chupaderos, 3 tons; Casas Grandes, Mexico, nearly 2 tons, and Quinn Canyon, Nevada, 1½ tons.

From these masses the meteorites range down to material of microscopic dimensions. The largest stone meteor known fell on Long Island and weighs 1200 pounds. The fact that iron meteorites outweigh those of stone is due to the former's greater resistance to fracture and erosion.

The fall of a meteor is usually attended by phenomena of light and sound, which may be scarcely perceptible or else startling and violent. Even the fall of a meteor without an explosion is often accompanied by a noise like thunder. This is credited, as in the case of lightning, to the explosive shock given to the surrounding air by the sudden heating of the air in the vicinity of the passing meteor. Prolonged and rolling sounds such as sometimes occur are also due, as in the case of lightning, to irregular movements of the meteor in its course through the air.

An interesting calculation was made in the case of a meteorite a fragment of which came to earth in Missouri on the evening of Jan. 22, 1918. At 5:56 p. m. a meteorite burst high in the sky over Topeka, Kan., producing a shower of scattering fragments which had the appearance of an aerial bomb. At 5:56:10 p. m. a fragment of the meteor buried itself in a back yard at St. Joseph, Mo. The distance between the two cities is 90 miles. The fragment covered the distance in 10 seconds, at a rate of 9 miles a second.

Since the Lake Michigan meteor appeared at night, it probably was a case of head-on collision, and the force with which it plunged into the atmosphere was that of its great mass propelled at a rate of 46 1-2 miles a second. Suppose that some evil chance had caused it to drop in the midst of a crowded city!

the doctor to her.

"I want the truth," she whispered. "Will he make it?"

"Not much chance," was the ready answer; and the doctor went back to Big Jack's bedside.

Betty turned to a window and began to stare out at the bleak, bare forest. Everywhere she looked she saw the blue eyes, the faithful, reproachful blue eyes, of her sweetheart. One minute she couldn't believe he had done it, and the next minute she was inclined to fear that he had. Why wouldn't he tell her father of his past? And why hadn't he told her of his past? And yet—if he had wished to kill her father, would he have been cowardly enough to resort to a trap gun?

"An eye for an eye and a tooth for a tooth," she said to herself. "I will collect the debt from whoever owes it."

She went to an old cupboard, ransacked it, and found one 12-gauge shotgun shell loaded with buckshot.

"How far is it to where that money is hidden?" she asked Old Hannah.

"Not a quatter of a mile."

"I wonder why you didn't take it, Hannah."

"Sev'ral reasons, Betty," readily. "I couldn't spend it. I'd be ketched with it, ef I tried to spend it, and cawnvicted o' mudder. See? Asides, it goes ag'in the grain o' me to steal. More'n that, Big Jack Ledworth has fed me, him and you, when I was hongry. Me steal? Betty, got to face my Master some time soon. a old, Betty."

Big Jack's daughter went into the other room and came back a moment later with the broom wire and the single-barreled shotgun in her hands. She threw a shawl over her shoulders and put another about her head; then she took the shotgun down at the breech and hid it in the folds of the lower shawl. With the broom wire in the other hand, she turned toward the outer door.

"Come on, Hannah," she whispered. "If I wait to see whether dad dies or not, it will be too late, perhaps. Hannah, I'm going to set the same trap gun for the cur dog that set it for dad."

III.

The teller of fortunes took Betty straight to the hidden money. It lay under a flat stone at the base of a low cliff that stood at the head of a small laurel-filled cove. Betty took the money out of the satchel and wrapped it in her apron; then she filled the satchel with dead leaves and put it back. The shotgun, loaded with buckshot and well hidden, was set so that the thief, when he turned over the flat stone, would at the same time pull the wire that led to the trigger. There was not one chance in 10,000 that the wrong man would spring the deadly trap; it was in the densest of thickets, and there were no hunters so close to the logging operations; the cutting of the timber had driven out the game.

Betty and Old Hannah hastened back to the Ledworth cabin and found that Big Jack still lay in a stupor. Betty threw fresh wood on the fire; then the two women went to the fire in the other room.

"Hannah," began Betty, "last night when I stopped at your cabin you were not there, though there was a light burning. You were out and following the man who shot and robbed dad."

Old Hannah frowned, and Betty believed that she had guessed aright. Betty went on: "You heard the shot and you thought of my father, and you ran down the trail—and followed the thief."

Again Old Hannah frowned, and again Betty believed she had guessed correctly—and she really had. Betty continued: "But how could you tell that it was Carrington Day? Why are you so sure of it? It was dark, wasn't it?"

"The crone laughed a low, beaten laugh. "You'd make a good fortune teller, Miss Betty!" she said. "Afore it happened, not long afore, I seen Carrington Day a-lookin' in at my window, Miss Betty!"

Betty went white.

Not long after darkness fell the lumberjacks came to inquire about Big Jack. His daughter told them there was little ground for hope, and even Cale North looked blue over it. All but Carrington Day, they turned and went back to the boarding house.

Day stepped to the girl, who stood in the doorway with her back to the light, and took her hand. Her face was in the shadow; if he could have seen her face, it would have frightened him, perhaps. She withdrew her hand.

"I want the truth, Carrington," she asked straightforwardly: "Why did you come here to work?"

Day seemed hurt. "Do you think it was because I did something I am ashamed of?" he whispered.

"Why did you come here to work?" repeated Big Jack's daughter, icily.

Day rested one shoulder against the door facing and bent his head.

"The things that drove me here," he told her, grief in every word of it, "were my father's total failure in business, the resultant death of both my father and my mother, the public sale of all our property to satisfy debts, and—poverty. I came here to learn lumbering, to learn the business from the bottom. That's all, Betty."

He waited a moment for her to speak. She didn't, and he went slowly toward the boarding house below.

A little before midnight, Big Jack called feebly for Betty. She went to him.

"Have you found out," he began.

"No. But I will."

"He's better. I think he will get well," smiled the doctor.

Better! Betty straightened. How glad she was! But—was it fair now to let the thief run blindly into the trap? She went into the other room to think it over, and she had barely closed the door behind her when there came to her quick ears the roar of a gunshot, a quarter of a mile away! Yes, the thief had gone, perhaps to take his ill-golden gains to a better hiding place, to the trap and had sprung it.

Betty threw a shawl over her shoulders and was gone into the still, mountain night. Through the laurels and treelaps she ran like a doe—to see who it was, to see whether it was the one man of all men. Just before she reached the little thicket, she heard a low moan.

"Carrington!" she murmured breathlessly. "Carrington!"

She went on into the thicket. The moaning had stopped. At the flat stone a dark figure day face downward. She sank beside it.

"Carrington!" she grieved. "Carrington!"

The figure did not move. She rose blindly and made her way, tortured as few other human beings have ever been tortured, back into the valley. She awoke Billy, the commissary clerk, and Billy awoke the lumberjacks. The fire was not yet dead in the commissary's big wood heater; they gathered in there—and Carrington Day was there—and he was asking for his bearskin coat!

"So it wasn't you!" cried Betty, reeling toward him. "Thank God, it wasn't you!"

The thief had worn Day's bearskin coat, with its big fur collar turned up, for warmth and for purposes of disguise, and it had deceived both Betty and Old Hannah. The missing lumberjack was Cale North. But he was only shot in the legs, thanks either to Betty's bad judgment or to a kind Providence.

And when Big Jack got well he accepted Carrington Day for his son-in-law.

ladies of the court wear them. My column is about Japanese fashions. You might not be able to know the difference, but we can tell when a kimono is in good style. Different colors are greatly liked in different seasons. This year they are wearing dark colors, particularly blue. The design also is put on in a different place and in a different way each year, and there is a difference in the way the sash is tied. This year the ladies are wearing kimonos of very thin silk, as thin as that you call chiffon' in English. And underneath they have beautiful underwear in colors.

"Do you have women reporters as well as women editors in Japan?" the Contessa asked.

"Yes," said Miss Kohashi, "I have two of them who bring me news. As well as two gentlemen," she added, with a touch of pride. "Not long ago I sent one of the girls to a matrimonial bureau that advertised to bring young people to become acquainted with each other, or to help parents. My reporter pretended to be a girl who was seeking a husband, and she found that the bureau was a—what is it in English?—a 'fake'. So we put it in the paper and spoiled the bureau."

"What is the attitude of the modern Japanese woman toward the old system of having her husband chosen for her by her parents?" inquired Miss Holm.

"I do not think a woman should marry anyone she does not like," replied the Japanese lady, "but I think it is too radical for young people to choose for themselves entirely. Many things seem to us radical in Japan," she added with a smile.

"I will spend one year learning to speak English thoroughly. I could have learned much more in Tokio, but I have been so busy. Then I am going to spend another year at the School of Journalism in Columbia, so that I can teach journalism to the young women in Tokio Union College. Women of Japan are liking the newspaper profession. Already we have a club of 20 women journalists in Tokio."

WOMAN'S CLOTHES FROM A WOMAN DOCTOR'S VIEWPOINT

Dr. Kristine Mann and her simplified wardrobe one of the features of the big gathering of feminine physicians — A system that will enable any woman to pass a display of up-to-the-minute modes without ever causing her to take a second look—But this would be a disaster to the thousands of dress and suit workers who make their living turning out ladies' garments —How to hold up stockings prophylactically :: :: ::

By SARAH MACDOUGAL.

FEMININE physicians from all over the map—London, Paris, Edinburgh, Italy, Japan—had been devoting sessions of their international convention in New York to criticising women's clothes. They found fault with not just the garments you can ordinarily see, but the ones you just can't. One speaker became garrulous about garters. Another complained of corsets. Some were frantic about French heels.

What, then, should women wear? If there were in the world any group that knows more about it than the commercial designers, surely it would be these women, with their intimate and esoteric information about the feminine form divine or deformed. I went first to the physician who had been grumbling about garters, quite a famous person, who turned out to be a very genial woman in a very mannish suit.

"Many of us have upsetting ideas about the prevailing styles," she confessed, "But we do not dress so very well. At least I don't. But there is one woman here who dresses up to our convictions. That is Dr. Kristine Mann of New York. She talks charmingly about clothes, if you can get her started."

I learned that Dr. Mann had been a college professor before she became a physician. After she had been teaching for several years at Vassar College, she decided to give up the work of improving the minds of young women and to begin improving their bodies. Her specialty was to be preventive medicine. It always has been and is to this day. She thinks of health as something to be promoted rather than of disease as something to be cured. During the war she was health supervisor in the women's branch of the Ordnance Department in Washington. She has served as medical director of the Department Store Educational Association of New York, of which Miss Anne Morgan and other prominent women are members.

Dr. Mann is a handsome woman. Her abundant, fair hair is slightly tinged with gray. She is dignified and at the same time simple and very charming. Her skin is fair and her eyes are very blue and very earnest. She was disinclined at first to talk about clothes or herself, and by the time you are with her for a few minutes you are conscious that she reserves her life for purposes beyond herself. Public health is her hobby. She considers ill health a disgrace—to somebody.

"Beauty should be an essential feature of dress," Dr Mann told me. "I see no reason why beauty should interfere with the healthful aspect of dress. Beauty must always be the base on which we build—beauty of color and line, for women will always be interested in charming colors. As a woman develops in artistic perception her sense of beauty undergoes a change. She grows to dislike stilted and fussy and stuffy clothes. It is possible for a woman to be beautifully dressed in an evening gown or an afternoon gown and to be as comfortable as if she were wearing an old-fashioned kitchen dress."

"If a woman has leisure, cultivated taste and definite ideas about dress she should plan her own clothes."

Dr. Mann was a symphony in brown and gold, quite an appropriate outfit for an amber autumn afternoon. She was wearing a blouse, or rather a "slip" of gold-colored chiffon, of which only the sleeves and soft folds about the neck were visible. Over this was a long, semi-fitted belted tunic of brown silk poplin., daintily embroidered with gold thread and touches of turquoise blue. She wore very smart brown Oxford shoes, which exactly matched the dark brown of her gown, and brown silk stockings. Her coat was also brown, and was lined with a very dark shade of turquoise-blue silk poplin. If the doctor wanted to look colorful of an evening she could turn that coat inside out, for it was made to be reversible. She looked like a woman who could talk convincingly about clothes.

Dr. Mann's philosophy on dress presupposes and prescribes that a woman should, first of all, have the right kind of a body. Then she should go ahead and dress it so that the garments would not offend its health or the artistic sensibilities of herself or her friends. She does not like to think that clothes should be used to conceal deformities. There shouldn't be any deformities—neither spineless backs nor half alive limbs nor excess fat.

"To begin at the beginning, a woman should wear thin underwear of as good quality as she can afford," Dr. Mann prescribed. "If her figure is what it should be she will not need corsets. If she is too fat or too thin, she should take a physical examination to determine what form of exercise will put her in good condition. It is not wise to prescribe swimming or tennis indiscriminately. Ordinarily, a woman can keep her figure if she goes in for the right kind of exercise. It is too absurd to imagine that corsets keep fat from accumulating. Perhaps they do modify the disposition of the fat, but if it does not accumulate at the waist line it is likely to accumulate pretty close to it. One cannot corset the body all over.

"My main objection to corsets or French heels is not because of any immediate harmful effect. They are bad because they disincline a woman to healthful activity. They impede the free motion of the body and the feet. Corsets interfere with the flexibility of the trunk in every motion a woman makes. French heels develop a stilted walk. There are no corsets or French heels in my wardrobe. I used to wear them, but they never encouraged me to get out and walk several miles a day, which I always do. Watch a woman in a 'straight front' stoop to pick up a pin," she suggested. "Her motion is very different from that of the uncorseted woman, and less graceful."

For the business or professional woman who clings to her corsets the tailored suit is the best all-round utility garment, in Dr. Mann's opinion. This outfit she considers a boon to the woman who is not resourceful about planning pretty dresses. Its main drawback is that the shirtwaist and skirt combination demands corsets to keep the connection all it should be. She also thinks this severe costume is not suited to every feminine temperament.

"I have all my clothes made by a woman who specializes in two-piece gowns," Dr. Mann confided. "She is a very clever designer, with artistic ideas about line and color. She makes for me the things that are suited to my figure and my temperament. She would study any other woman in the same way. The result is that I feel so much at home in my clothes that I forget all about them. They are absolutely mine. I do not worry over getting acquainted with them and wondering whether they are properly adjusted.

"If a woman has leisure, cultivated taste and definite ideas about dress she should plan her own clothes. If not, or if she is a busy professional woman, she should place the problem in the hands of an expert, as I have done. It may be expensive at first, but it pays in the long run. I can dress in less than five minutes in the morning, and I spend very little time thinking about my clothes."

bearskin coat stepped in. Betty remembered Old Hannah's "prediction," and bit her lip.

"Is this the superintendent?" inquired the stranger.

The mountaineer stepped forward and put out his hand. "Yes. Jack Ledworth."

"My name is Day," said the other, and they shook hands. "I've come to ask you for a job in the woods."

"After supper," smiled Big Jack, "we'll talk about that. Betty, honey, another place at the table."

The stranger sat himself down and ate with the Ledworths. Big Jack pitied Day, for he knew that Day had been driven to ask for a poor job by circumstances that he could not control. And he wondered what it had been that Day had done. For the pale young man didn't look like a criminal, by any means.

An hour later the superintendent took his new employe down to the big, rough boarding house, where, in the upstairs, the cots of the lumberjacks were arranged in rows like the beds in a hospital ward. An empty cot was found beside the cot occupied by Cale North. When Ledworth had gone, the lumberjacks, true to their custom, sought fun at the expense of the newcomer, without much success. It ended with the pouring of a few drops of yellow corn whisky on the pale young man's brown hair, and——

"In the presence o' these here witnesses, I hereby christen you 'Better Days'!" in the laughing voice of a lumberjack.

"I'm sick now," quietly said the victim to the man with the flat, coffin-shaped bottle. "When I get well I'll thrash you in the presence of these same witnesses."

Then he went to his cot, undressed and hung his clothing on nails that had been driven halfway into the wall, and crept wearily under the blankets. Cale North, the coward and the pariah, sought his companionship.

"What did you do that you came here?" whispered North. "I won't tell."

"Killed an old man," was the answer. "He was a miser. I made him sit on a red-hot stove until water boiled in his mouth, before he'd show me where his money was buried. Don't tell."

II.

Three weeks passed. A ruddy glow had come to the face of Carrington Day, and the work was fast hardening his muscles; already he had whipped, in the presence of witnesses, the man he had promised to whip. He had fallen heels over head in love with Betty Ledworth, and he had found that his love was reciprocated. Big Jack saw the trend of things, and called Day aside in the woods.

"It's time for me to know your past," said Big Jack.

Day beat his gloved hands together to warm them. It was still very cold.

"I can't go over it, Jack," he said; and a pride that might well have been the pride of a Lee or a Forrest was in voice, in his blue eyes, in his bearing.

"You don't go to see Betty any more, understand?" Ledworth flared up.

"If Betty says I may, I will," said Day, standing up as straight as a pine.

Thereupon the hotheaded mountaineer knocked the young lowlander down and coolly walked off about his business.

The next day Supt. Ledworth went to Johnsboro afoot for the monthly payroll, which amounted to some $700. He was to return not later than 10 o'clock that night. When the clock struck 10 he had not come, and Betty became uneasy. She bundled herself up in shawls and went out the narrow lowland trail, hoping to meet him. The sky was clear, but there was no moon. Farther and farther she went, listening, listening for the sound of his heavy but rapid footsteps. Not until she had gone a mile, not until she had reached the dilapidated cabin of the fortune teller, did she halt. There was a light, she saw, in the cabin.

"Hannah!" she called, and had no answer.

Had the old crone been abed, there would have been no light in her house; had she been at home, she would have answered, for her ears were as quick as those of a fox. It was queer. Betty went on down the narrow trail, and 10 minutes later she stumbled over the inert body of her giant father. Big Jack was lying face downward and his little money satchel was gone.

"Dad!" the young woman cried brokenly and brokenheartedly, sinking to her knees at his shoulder—"Dad!"

He gave no sign of life. In her near-hysteria she didn't think to put an ear to his breast. She believed that he was dead; that he had been waylaid by some black-souled villain and killed for the money he carried. Then she became suddenly and strangely calm. The mountain heart sent its fiery hot blood in a mad rush to her brain, and set terribly strong and strongly terrible primitive forces at work; her schooling and her reading were far away from her now. She was a Ledworth, the last of the Ledworths, with whom the code had been to take that which had been taken, to collect that which was due. That she was a woman made no difference. The spirit of her fighting people overcame the matter of sex as well as it overcame anything else that stood in its way.

She rose from her knees, there in the cold mountain night, with one hand on her father's great, still shoulder; the other hand she held upward, calling the Almighty to witness, while she said in a voice of iron:

"An eye for an eye."

Then Betty Ledworth hastened to the camp and aroused the lumberjacks, and she saw that they were all there, that no man of them was missing. They followed her out on the dark lowland trail, and she outran them all. Carrington Day found that Big Jack's heart was still beating, though faintly, and Betty sent two men to the lowland for a doctor.

"Don't bring any officers," Big Jack's daughter called after the runners. The theft of the company's money had no place in her mind.

"Why not officers? Why not the law?" asked Day. To which she answered coldly:

"I am the law myself."

They carried the unconscious superintendent home and put him to bed, and did all they knew to do for him. A bullet had grazed the skull above his left ear, another bullet had gone into his left shoulder, and still another had penetrated his left lung. When there was nothing to do but wait for the arrival of the doctor, Betty sat down beside her father and watched; she saw every rise and fall of the great chest. She spoke not even to Carrington Day; it was as though she did not hear him when he tried to console her.

The doctor came just before the break of dawn. He took out the two bullets and administered restoratives, and Big Jack came to in a hazy sort of way.

"Coward!" mumbled Big Jack. "My little pet—Betty!"

"Here I am, dad, honey," she crooned it, bending over him, kissing him on the brow—"here's your little Betty."

"Betty!" Big Jack mumbled. "Betty! An eye—for an eye"——

"Yes, I know, dad, and I'll take it; I'll collect the debt," in a voice that blanched the cheeks of Carrington Day.

Big Jack closed his eyes. Betty faced the gray old doctor. "Will he make it?"

"Can't tell yet," the doctor whispered. "He's bled inside. He has, I should say, about one chance in 20."

Betty turned to the lumberjacks. "Go down to breakfast, then go to your work," she ordered, without excepting even Carrington Day. For her there was now no Carrington Day.

The men started for the boarding house. A few minutes later, Cale North hastened to the Ledworth cabin. He had been out on the lowland trail. In his hands he carried some 30 feet of tangled broom wire and a cheap single-barreled shotgun of the kind that was sold in the commissary. Betty turned to meet him.

"It was this!" said North, excitedly. "It was this that shot your father! I found it in the fork of a tree beside the trail, and this wire was wrapped to the trigger! It was a trap and your father sprung it himself by running against the wire! It was loaded with buckshot!"

"And if your father had been a little closer," began the doctor, when Betty interrupted:

"Give me the gun and the wire and go to work, Cale."

Cale gave her the gun and the wire and went to work.

The hours went by, and the middle of the afternoon came, and Big Jack lay in a stupor. Betty was just thinking of old Hannah, when that old creature limped in on her dogwood cane. The girl put a finger across her lips and pointed toward the bed. Old Hannah muttered "I know," and led Betty into the next room.

"Ye say ye don't believe in fortune tellin'?" began the crone, a strange light of triumph in her sunken, beady eyes.

"Can you tell me who shot my father?" asked Betty. At that moment nothing else mattered.

Old Hannah sat down in a creaking chair and went to the pocket of her calico skirt for a twist of tobacco.

"Yes," she creaked, "I can tell ye, but you won't believe it."

Betty caught one of the thin old shoulders in a painful grip.

"Who was it, Hannah?" she demanded.

"It was Carrington Day."

"No—no!" smotheredly. Betty loosed old Hannah's thin shoulder and reeled. Now she realized what Carrington Day, the man she loved, was to her. "Hannah," she went on throbbingly, "it is impossible."

"Didn't I tell ye you wouldn't believe it?" and the crone drew down the corners of her wrinkled mouth. "Betty, I liked Carrington Day. But may the Lord strike me dead, may I die this same minute, ef I don't know—I say ef I don't know!—it was Carrington Day! Ef ye don't believe it, I'll take ye and show ye whar he hid the money!"

Betty questioned her rapidly, to no avail. Plainly, anything that Old Hannah knew would be used as "fortune-telling," and in no other way. Betty judged, and judged correctly, that the old woman had not lied to her outright—and then the girl's heart broke at the bare thought of collecting the debt of a life from the man she loved so much.

But—perhaps her father wouldn't die. She called

St. Louisan's Invention Which Measures - the Millionth Part of an Inch -

How Maj. W. E. Hoke, whose father invented the chalk plate process used by leading newspapers up to 20 years ago, startled Washington with a timely discovery during the war—Why the Government took up his idea and quickly developed it — Fortune assured the man who got his inspiration while he was in bed but very much awake :: ::

THIS story must go back to the Maxwell-Preller murder and the old local room of the St. Louis Post-Dispatch in order to explain how it is that a machine part can now be tested for accuracy down to the one-millionth part of an inch—or, as the St. Louis inventor of the measuring process says, down to the very frazzle of a gnat's heel.

In 1884, Joseph W. Hoke of 2006 California avenue, St. Louis, invented what was known as the Hoke plate and now is known throughout the newspaper and engraving world as the chalk plate. The chalk plate succeeded the old wood block as a means of reproducing drawing in print, and though on larger newspapers it has given way to the zinc etching and the halftone, it is still extensively used by small newspapers, and by weather bureaus throughout the world for their weather maps.

Hoke, the inventor, sought from the editor of the Post-Dispatch an opportunity to show what he could do with his process, and received the promise that he would be allowed to try his hand on the next "big story" that lent itself to illustration. Then came the Maxwell-Preller murder. The editor notified Hoke. With three companions, Hoke rushed in a cab to the Southern Hotel, where the body of a man had been found in a trunk. Sketches were hastily made by the party, the chalk plates were made, and in an hour from the time the artists arrived at the scene the Post-Dispatch was on the streets with an extra containing not only a verbal account of the murder mystery, but—marvel of journalistic enterprise—a complete pictorial story. Seven illustrations were printed—a picture of the trunk, another of the interior of the room, a reproduction of the mystifying placard, "So perish all traitors to the great cause," found inside the lid of the trunk, and other sketches made by the amateur artist-engravers. The chalk plate had proved its merit.

With the inventor on that occasion were his son, then about 19 years old; his daughter, Miss Martha H. Hoke, and a friend, Miss Lillian Brown, daughter of B. Gratz Brown, a former Governor of Missouri. The elder Hoke is dead; Miss Hoke is a miniature painter living in the artists' colony at Provincetown, Mass.; Miss Brown teaches art in the McKinley High School in St. Louis and spends her summers at Provincetown.

That leaves one member of the party to be accounted for. He is the teller of the foregoing story—Maj. W. E. Hoke of St. Louis and Washington, D. C., bachelor, 54 years old, with a prospective income from his invention of $50,000 a year, even if he doesn't care to invent anything else. He it is who showed the Bureau of Standards of the United States Government how to make little steel discs of proved accuracy to one-millionth of an inch, the frazzle of a gnat's heel.

The invention traces directly back to his father's chalk plate. Soon after the publication of the Maxwell-Preller pictures, the inventor died and young Hoke took over the business of manufacturing plates at 304 North Third street, where it still is established. Possession of the little shop at that address gave him an opportunity to gratify his inherited taste for mechanical experiment. He never attended a technical school, but he read avidly of books on mechanics. He retained the newspaper connections his father had formed, and through his work as illustrator came into intimate contact with the newspaper colony of St. Louis. He worked for the Republic when "Gus" Thomas was the chief artist of that newspaper; later he made chalk plates for the old Chronicle, and finally, about 1911, he became a newspaper photographer, making a specialty of posed pictures for the fashion pages of the Post-Dispatch and the late Republic.

Hoke's Third street shop was also his home. For years, he says, it was a favorite rendezvous of newspaper photographers and sketch artists. The latchstring was always out and a pot of coffee boiling on the stove. The walls were covered with pictures, the work of Hoke and his guests.

—STRAUSS PORTRAIT

MAJ. W. E. HOKE.

By day Hoke was a chalk-plate manufacturer and a newspaper photographer; by night in his machine shop he carried on experiments in mechanics. He developed a passion for absolute accuracy of measurement. This led him to a study of gauges.

"The most important thing in mechanics," said Hoke, in telling of this phase of his career, "is to be able to bore a hole with extreme accuracy. It is this ability which makes quantity production possible; makes it possible, that is, for the parts of a machine to be manufactured in scattered factories and assembled into a perfect union. This is the American system of manufacturing as opposed to the European system of building a machine. Under the European system a mechanic fits one piece to another; he makes the piece fit the hole; in short, he builds his machine piecemeal. If he is a good mechanic he turns out a good machine, but the process is slow and laborious. Our system is to make each part of a certain, absolute size, by means of gauges. Our mechanic makes a hole and tests it with a 'plug gauge,' which has a 'go' and a 'not-go' end. The 'go' end must fit into this hole and the 'not-go' end must be too large for it. If the hole fulfills the test, then it is correct within the 'tolerance' permitted—that is, the maximum variation that can be allowed."

The point of an ordinary sewing needle, seen through a most powerful microscope, looks like a broken-off telegraph pole. But the stinger of a wasp, through the same glass, still vanishes in a point, about the smallest thing in nature.

American industry, then, must have gauges—plug gauges, ring gauges and other varieties. These are, so to speak, the proletariat. Above them is the aristocracy of master gauges, used to test the accuracy of the workday variety, and at the supreme pinnacle is a king of all gauges in the world, a platinum iridium bar one perfect meter in length, more jealously guarded in its repository in Paris than was ever the jewel casket of a monarch. A descendant of this royal bar sets the standard of American measurement. It may be seen, but not touched, in the Bureau of Standards here. No variation of temperature is permitted to endanger its perfection, nor any infinitesimal vibration.

Hoke was not satisfied with the gauges in his little St. Louis workshop. Their "tolerance" was too great. He set his brain to the task of producing a gauge that would measure distances to a finer fraction than science had ever achieved—a precision gauge of the rare quality necessary to test the accuracy of master gauges, which work usually in tolerances of one-thousandth of an inch.

It was a fascinating idea to the mind of a man enamored of mechanics, as Hoke was. He turned it over and over in his brain for years before he found the answer to his problem.

"It came suddenly," said Hoke. "One night I had a rush of brains to the head. I got up out of bed in the middle of the night, tested the conclusion I had reached and found it good. I had the right idea, sure enough.

"In a few days I had worked out the details of a machine for turning out precision gauges. We got into the war soon after that and I offered the discovery to the Ordnance Department."

The war gave Hoke his chance. America was in dire need of precision gauges for use in thousands of delicate mechanical operations in the making of shells, airplane motors, big guns and the like. There were far too few precision gauges in the country and no more coming in. Some manufacturers were losing war contracts for lack of the means of making the required tests.

The shortage was the result of a monopoly of precision-gauge manufacture by a Swede, Johannson of Eskilstuna. For 12 years the whole world had gone to Johannson for gauges. In 1917 American manufacturers paid him large tribute for the apparatus which no American could produce. The Krupps of Germany once tried to get along without him, but found they couldn't. The world's machine shops, it seemed, were destined to be always at the mercy of the Swedish monopoly.

Enter now a St. Louis newspaper photographer, a man totally unknown to the scientific world, with the announcement that he had discovered the means of turning out precision gauges. Nor did he stop with that. He said that he could not only make precision gauges, but far better gauges than Johannson, with his secret process, had ever made, and make them cheaper.

The Swedish gauges, the standard for the world, measure down to one-one-hundred-thousandth of an inch.

The St. Louis photographer said that his would measure to one-millionth!

It is no wonder that the Government scientists were incredulous. But the Government at that time was grasping at straws, and it told Hoke to come on to Washington and show what he could do. That was in July, 1918. Hoke was sent to the Bureau of Standards, and in five minutes had convinced the experts there that his idea was worth testing.

The bureau told off a workman and a scientist to aid Hoke in building his machine.

"We scraped around in the back yard," said Hoke, "and got a few castings. In two days the machine was completed and on the third day we were turning out the new gauges."

The ill luck that dogs the course of some inventors was completely absent in Hoke's case. The war had opened the door of opportunity, a door at which he might otherwise have knocked in vain for years. Now, it happened that a scientist of the bureau, C. G. Peters, had just perfected the optical method of measurement, by which the variation of distance between two surfaces, though no more than a millionth of an inch, can be measured by the reflection of the bands of light produced by helium gas. That's a whole story in itself, going back to certain basic principles discovered by Isaac Newton.

"Newton," remarks Hoke parenthetically, "was certainly a wonder. A lot of the 'new stuff" of these days is grounded on the fundamentals that he made known."

There was no mechanical device at the bureal for testing Hoke's claim to an accuracy almost inconceivable, but fortunately there was the new "light-wave interference" method. It was used for the first time on a patented product when Hoke's discs were tested. It proved that Hoke was right—his discs were right to the millionth of an inch.

Hoke gave the shop rights in his discovery to the Government, retaining the commercial rights, which he later sold to a Connecticut firm. He was commissioned a Major in the Ordnance Department, given the use of a building at the bureau for a gauge factory and told to go to work producing gauges. Fifty thousand dollars was appropriated for the work. Quantity

The CODE OF THE LEDWORTHS

A Story of Love and Adventure Among the Mountains of Tennessee

By HAPSBURG LIEBE

ON THE day after the Empire Lumber Co. bought the timber in the Copperhead Mountain country, the Empire Lumber Co. sent a diplomatic messenger out to give big Jack Ledworth a good job. Furthermore, the messenger had orders to promise Big Jack that, as soon as he was capable, he would be made superintendent of the logging operations, at a salary the giant hill man had never dreamed was paid anywhere or to anybody—a hundred dollars a month. The company's officers saw ahead of them: they made a master stroke. For Big Jack was a lion, out there in the Copperhead Mountain country; his word was inexorable law; there was none who dared to beard him in his den or out. But he tried to be fair, and he tried to be square, and he lived religiously up to the code of his fathers:

"Take an eye for an eye, and a tooth for a tooth, and never let a man be more kind to you than you are to him. Never turn a beggar away from your door, and if anybody looks angle-eyed at your womenfolk, kill him quick. Give a man as much respect as he gives himself, and a woman a great deal more. Pay your debts, collect all that is owing to you, and trust no man until you know he's worth it."

Not that he led a clan. The only Ledworths of that branch in Tennessee were Big Jack and his daughter Betty. Feuds and mountain fever had been largely responsible for the thinning down of the name.

Ledworth hated to think of the timber being cut from the great and beautiful valley that had been his home since the days of his boyhood; it was a sacrilege. He accepted a job helping to cut it because Betty the flapper wanted to go to school in a little city down in the lowland, and with the money he made he could send her. Big Jack idolized his daughter; to him she was not far below the angels.

Betty was in the first blush of her young womanhood when she went back to her giant and lonely father and took charge of the old home cabin, which stood 200 yards up on the mountainside from the company's big, rough-board commissary and boarding house; these two buildings stood on a level spot in the center of the valley.

"Trouble. I see trouble," solemnly said Old Hannah, a lone old woman who was the Copperhead Mountain country's newsbearer and fortune teller, and who lived in a dilapidated cabin a mile westward on the lowland trail.

"How now! Trouble?" smiled the buxom mistress of the boarding house.

"Yes," and the white-haired old woman adjusted her red bandanna headgear, jabbed the commissary floor with her dogwood cane and thrust one wrinkled brown hand into the pocket of her calico skirt for a twist of tobacco—"Yes, trouble. Burnt powder, and blood, and death, and somebody put in a hole in the ground. Wait, Mis' Mullens. Wait and see!"

Mistress Mullens ceased to smile. Old Hannah's predictions frequently were good. The truth was that the old fortune teller usually managed to find out things ahead of other people, and then predicted, of course, remarkably well. But Old Hannah was also a good guesser.

Every logging camp must have its bully, and the bully at the Empire camp—when Big Jack wasn't anywhere near—was a burly, sandy-haired fellow who went by the name of Cale North. North was not a mountaineer. There were few mountaineers at the Empire camp. Nobody knew where North came from. These out-of-the-way places are used, sometimes, as refuges by men who wish to lie low until certain events in the outer world are forgotten.

Betty had been back a week, and it was the coldest weather of the winter. Supper was over, darkness had fallen, and most of the lumberjacks were gathered around the big wood heater in the commissary. The front door opened noiselessly, and Supt. Jack Ledworth, in laced knee-high boots and brown corduroys, with his broad-brimmed black hat set squarely on his head, walked noiselessly in. Only the commissary clerk saw him.

"Gi' me a can o' cawn, Billy," said Big Jack, quietly, "and a pound"——

He broke off and turned toward the crowd of lumberjacks at the stove. He had heard Betty's name, and Cale North had uttered it.

——"A peacherino, a genuine peacherino," said North. "She's"——

Big as he was, Ledworth caught him by his coat collar and jerked him to his feet.

"What does that mean, Cale," growled Big Jack, "that word 'peacherino'?"

Cale North turned a little pale. Cale North was one of those men who fight only when victory is sure, who fight only lesser forces. It was his first clash with Big Jack, and he saw his high place among his fellows in danger.

"Peacherino?" he muttered. "It's complimentary, of course. It means a—a regular pippin; a regular doll of a girl."

"I don't like any o' them names," frowned Big Jack. Behind his raven-black beard the others saw that his face was ashen. "Don't you never even speak her name any more; and to show you I mean what I say"——

With a blow that might have broken in a wall, he knocked Cale North down. North rose slowly. Big Jack waited, every nerve in his giant figure as tight as a fiddlestring. North went out by the back door. The next day three men, one at a time, whipped North roundly. The Empire camp's bully had become, in a few hours' time, a cringing cur of a coward.

That afternoon Old Hannah went to Big Jack's cabin with news. Betty let her in, and the old creature limped to the big stone fireplace to warm her hands and feet. It was still cold.

"Do ye believe in fortune tellin', Betty?" asked Old Hannah, as she scooped up a live coal for her pipe.

"Not very much, anyway," smiled Betty. Betty was busily wrapping up some cold food for her visitor.

"Ye don't!" exclaimed the old woman. "Then listen here. You don't love nobody now. Eh? I knowed it. But afore long you'll love somebody. Betty, he's a-comin'. He'll be here today. He's got on a bearskin coat, and a darby hat, and shiny shoes, and city clo'es. His hair is brown and his eyes is as blue as the sky. But he's pale, Betty. He's sick, pore boy."

Betty laughed. She was not impressed. Old Hannah rose with a rheumatic groan. "Wait and see, Miss Betty," she said, "wait and see." A few minutes later she took the little bundle of cold food and went.

The young man she had described was then resting at the fortune teller's cabin; he was very weary from his long walk in the cold.

Darkness fell, and Big Jack came home. Betty had a steaming supper ready, and a fire of oaken logs burned cheerily in the wide stone fireplace. They were in the act of sitting down at the dining table, when there was a rap at the door.

"Come in!" Big Jack bawled heartily.

The door opened, and a pale young man in a long

Feminine Problems Discussed Over the Tea Cups -- by Women Editors From Foreign Lands --

Japan, Sweden and Italy represented in quaint meeting in New York — Trained observers discuss topics of interest to their sex from national viewpoints :: :: :: ::

THE woman editor of the first woman's page ever incorporated in a daily newspaper in Japan, the woman editor of the largest women's magazine in Sweden, and an Italian Contessa, who is proud to be the hard-working correspondent of a newspaper in Rome, met together in America the other day on the cosmopolitan ground of the feminine love of tea.

Miss Miyo Kohashi, not quite five feet tall, rose to receive her cup and bowed over it with quaint courtesy. Contessa Maria Loschi insisted on two lumps, because, she said, one does not get enough sugar in Italy since the war. Miss Thorma Holm of Sweden asked, with a twinkle, whether tea is not now the American national beverage.

These three women journalists were enabled to foregather in the United States because they had been assigned by their several newspapers to "cover" the International Conference of Women Physicians, recently in session at New York. Sixteen nations and four continents were represented by the women doctors.

"It is most interesting to me to notice the points on which we have the same opinion, and those on which we disagree," said the Contessa over her tea cup. "This morning the American and English doctors were talking of the saving of woman's energy that would be effected if we did our cooking in community kitchens and left our children for the most part of the day in the care of child-training experts. Now, that would never do for Italy. We Italians think that our children are entitled to the love and patience of their own mothers.

"I happen, among the other things I do, to be tutor in French to the royal Princesses of Italy," she continued. "I remember how embarrassed I was the first time that I met the Queen. But I found her simple in her manners, and, like any Italian mother, interested primarily in the welfare of her children. Often during a lesson she would come in and ask me about one of the girls. 'How is she doing? How is she getting on?' "

Thorma Holm, editor of leading woman's magazine in Sweden.

"But does the average woman in Italy have opportunity to enter the professions?" asked Miss Holm. "Did you, yourself, for instance, encounter no opposition in becoming a newspaper woman? Are there many women in that profession in Italy?"

"Well, of course," the Contessa admitted, "we do have prejudices, though women are coming into their own. We now have the suffrage, and—yes, there are a number of newspaper women. They are not reporters, as women may be here in America, but they do feature writing."

"In Sweden, women are very progressive," Miss Holm said. "A large proportion of our housewives are engaged in outside professional work. Still, we have remained a very domestic people and will not let anything interfere with our homes. That is where we have much trouble, for we have not learned to do our housework scientifically and the servant problem is becoming a serious one with us.

"It seems to me," she continued very seriously, "that the housewife must learn to have a professional attitude toward her housework. Most girls who marry do not know their jobs. Marriage, I think, is a little business management, for the woman governs her husband's money. She must have her eyes open.

"Before I became an editor I was an expert in foods," Miss Holm went on. "We have in Stockholm a Kommun, or Central Bureau, to which all the women, rich and poor alike, go for advice in matters of home economy. There I was, for seven years, home counsel. And I have been also an Inspector of Restaurants under the 'Stockholm system.' Here in America they now have prohibition of liquor, as I understand. In Sweden we have Government control, exercised by the cities, each city deciding on its own system. In Stockholm it is permitted for a man to have three liters of cognac or brandy in three months at the market price. He carries a little pass book in which the purchase is written. He may have also three extra liters with a tax in addition to the price. The tax is 5 crowns, or about $1, on the first extra liter, 10 crowns on the second and 20 crowns on the third. He cannot purchase more than six liters except at the restaurants with his food. There are 30 restaurants belonging to the system. Here a man may have a very small glass of liquor with a full meal. He cannot get it with a sandwich or something light. The man's allowance of spirits must do for the whole family, of course. But then the man does most of the drinking in Sweden.

"I was for three years Inspector of Restaurants under the 'Stockholm system.' Then I became editor of The Housemother, a weekly magazine for women, containing fashions, recipes, articles on housekeeping, book reviews and a serial story. It has a circulation of 18,000, which is very large for a small country like Sweden. I have just sold it.

"It is my work in life to make women happy in their housewrok." The pretty blond lady said this so earnestly that the color deepened in her cheeks. "They can learn to do housework without having their souls in the dishpan. So I have come to America to get some new ideas. America is the country to which everyone is looking, now, for leadership.

"It is my idea that we should establish in Stockholm a Central Bureau that will be a kind of first aid to the housewife, so that she can manage her housekeeping without the aid of servants. There would be a restaurant service that would serve meals in the home. To this the housewife would call up on the telephone and say: 'I have decided to have lunch served today in my home. What have you?' And the food would be delivered to her, ready to serve. And she might call up another department of this bureau: 'I wish to have two rooms cleaned with a vacuum cleaner today,' and the bureau would attend to that work. The difficult question, of course, is to furnish such service at a price that will be within the means of the general public. I do not know whether the bureau should be operated by the city or by private organizations. I think that competition would make the price cheaper."

Miss Kohashi listened to this discussion with alert interest.

"Many of your ideas seem very radical to me," she said in her precise English. "I too, have come to America to learn."

"Tell us about your work as a newspaper woman in Japan," she was urged.

"I have been six years an editor on a daily newspaper," she began. "Before that I was another six years editor of a magazine published by a college in Tokio. The Yomiuri, which means 'Reading and Hearing,' is an old and very conservative newspaper in Tokio. It is literary, and is read by high-class people. About six years ago the editor decided to make a page for women, and asked me to edit it. That was just at the time when Mme. Caillaux shot to death the man in France. I had to write about that shooting on my page. It made me cry as a woman, though as an editor I was glad."

She made the last statement gravely. and picked up a newspaper from the table to explain the makeup of her page. "First I print editorials about things of interest to women, matters that happen in Japan or outside in the world. Next I have a column about fashions.

"No, the Japanese women are not yet wearing European or American clothes. The ordinary people laugh at them, though the

High Cost of Living Makes It Difficult to Get Jurors

Excuses are piled up every week by veniremen who object to losing time from their work to serve the courts for the Missouri scale of $1.50 per day and no allowance for overtime — Ingenious methods resorted to every Monday morning in the St. Louis courts—Things that may happen when the women are called for jury service :: :: :: ::

OLD H. C. L., that great disturber of all economic adjustments that have served the people so well in past decades, has poked his ugly countenance even in the courtrooms of the land, particularly in the cities, and has made it exceedingly difficult to keep these tribunals supplied with dependable stocks of jurors. Now juries are most essential under the American system of dispensing justice and the judicial mills must be supplied if the grind is to be continuous and satisfactory to Judge, counselor and litigant. But there is a rub in the large amount of time consumed by the good citizen, in return for the meager allowance accorded him by the State for the time and mental strain consumed in the service. A man getting as much as $10 or $15 per day in his regular employment, is going to feel like he has a real grievance when he is pounced upon by a Deputy Sheriff, handed a paper commanding him to set aside all manner of excuse and delay, and enter his appearance in such and such a court on a certain Monday morning. If the duty involves the loss of his regular pay he is tempted to resort to strategem, political influence and even more questionable methods, to escape the week's detention that such duty involves.

This explains why the trial Judges of the St. Louis courts find their Monday mornings such strenuous sessions. All the jurors, except those who by some mysterious manipulation get their names erased beforehand, are expected to answer when their names are called in the room to which they are summoned. Then the Judge, following the system that has been in vogue, almost since the beginning of orderly processes, announces that those who have excuses to offer why they should not be required to serve, might step forward and tell it to the Court. Nowadays the percentage of responses runs very high, but there is no appreciable increase in the number of those who get away. The Judge has to have jurors and he cannot, of course, allow himself to be swayed by every moving appeal, for if he did, the Court's important function of distributing even-handed justice via the jury route, might be seriously interfered with; hence there must be careful counsel and some discrimination dependent on circumstances.

The man who looks sick and has fortification in the shape of a physician's certificate, has no trouble getting a line drawn through his name, but the man who cannot possibly lose the time from his important business engagements gets little sympathy. He is reminded that all good citizens have certain obligations to perform and that jury duty is the most important. Sometimes, if the Judge is feeling a bit extra-judicial, this sort of a plea is shut off with a rebuke the applicant is not likely to forget in a hurry. In such cases, he slips back quietly to his seat behind the rail and seeks to attract as little attention as possible. The man who has a sick wife or child is shown a reasonable amount of consideration, and if the service involves any hardship at his home on account of his absence in court, he is allowed to go his way, usually with the injunction that he must return again in a week or two.

But it is the regular jury dodgers that the Judges like to suppress, and they are usually ready for these petitioners when they line up in front of the bench, when the excuses are requested. These applicants are shrewd enough not to tell the Judge that they cannot afford to lose the salary, wages or other income in return for the $1.50 per day the great State of Missouri pays its servants for such important duty, as this plea has been judicially bowled over too often; but he does wax eloquent and almost tearfully, as he tells how indispensable he is in his particular job and how a near-cataclysm might ensue, should he be detached even for such a short period as a week. His employers would suffer and there would be confusion and heavy losses to business, unless he was permitted to at once return to his post. Then the Judge begins to ask questions and in most cases he decides that if the tearful pleader should happen to meet with such misfortune as a collision with an automobile, the world and the business would rock along singularly unmoved. Judges may believe that there are many indispensable people in the world under ordinary circumstances, but when it comes to the Monday morning "lineup," they are often disposed to forget it and they do with the applicants who are always fighting service, as they would fight a contagion, or something else that impressed them as peculiarly forbidding.

The man who looks sick and has fortification in the shape of a physician's certificate, has no trouble getting a line drawn through his name.

There is also the man who has an important deal on, in Chicago or some other town, who will be well-nigh ruined if he is tied up for a week, listening to things that do not concern him in the least. He goes at it like a response to a riot call and gesticulates as he addresses the exponent of the law's majesty. "I am expecting a wire any minute, Your Honor," he says, in his most earnest manner, "and if I am tied up here, this important deal, which means so much, will just have to be called off."

In many instances the Judge, after a question or two, assures the applicant that the outlook is not quite as dark as it appeared at first glance to the man with the excuse. He even shows him how nicely he can avoid a manifestly threatening situation, by writing a letter or sending a telegram. These business men are very often told that the courts need men of their kind, to insure verdicts in keeping with the law and the evidence, and that their own interests should cause them to willingly suffer a little inconvenience, if they were not disposed to discharge their duties as worthy citizens.

The man who suffers from sick headaches when he has to sit in a courtroom all day is also among the regulars, but he gets nowhere in the absence of the duly authorized physician's certificate. He keeps on bobbing up at all the sittings, and he can, with little effort, work up a pained expression. One of the Circuit Judges always tells these petitioners that he has to sit there every day, and that he does not find it so painful. On one occasion, a juror, in an unguarded moment, told this Judge that he was elected for that purpose, and that he well knew what was in store for him when he sought the nomination and election. It is needless to add that the prayer of this applicant was not considered further and that he went back to the benches in a hurry. Then there is the bricklayer, stonemason or other outdoor worker, who always gets his call at the wrong time. He does not mind the service when the weather extremes prevent his regular employment at his trade, but he does object to laying down his trowel or jackplane when they might be kept in use, for the Missouri jury scale of $1.50 per diem and no allowance for overtime. When it is at all possible to arrange the lists, the mechanics are given relief, but when the Sheriff's yields are not plentiful, it is not always convenient to set these names back to other dates.

Notwithstanding the great number of eligible lists from which the names are drawn from the Jury Commissioner's wheel, there is very often a noticeable scarcity of jurors, especially when there is a rush of damage suits such as are regularly filed against the United Railways Co. In these cases there are many jurors who never get a chance to sit in a trial. When the disqualifications and challenges are piling up in several courtrooms at the same time, there is usually a call for reinforcements sent from the divisions which have run low in jury material. It is then that the detached jurors who are fixed for the week, find themselves parading about the old Courthouse, headed by a Deputy Sheriff, seeking a haven where they might be welcome. They are needed to fill gaps

Still Another "Industrial Democracy," With Some Features About It to Make You Think

Over two-thirds of the employes of the Goodyear Company, Akron, O., taken into partnership—Senate and House of workers who can pass a bill over the veto of the factory manager — How the establishment of this government stimulated the purchase of stock on a two-year-time-payment basis — Other features of the plan -o- -o-

IN THE last two years the Post-Dispatch has printed a number of news items and special articles telling of the growth in this country of what is generally known as industrial democracies — meaning, briefly, manufacturing establishments where the employes have a voice in the management of the plant and a share in the profits. At first these efforts were restricted in a number of ways. Each succeeding experiment seems to have taken on a wider, more liberal plan of operation, so that today the earlier dream of complete co-operation between workman and employer appears far on the road toward accomplishment. The plant to be described here is that of the Goodyear Tire and Rubber Co., of Akron, O.

Not only has the great Akron factory enrolled 17,101 of its 25,000 workers in its corporate family, but it has actually established a form of government among the employes to pass on working conditions in its great array of shops that is pronounced far in advance of most of the other innovations of like character. When the stock issue open to all subscribers was placed on sale last month for a 10-day period consisting of $40,000,000 preferred, 7 per cent, nonassessable, cumulative shares, at $100 par value, fully two-thirds of the employes, representing every department, voluntarily came forward and entered subscriptions amounting to $7,700,000, an average of five shares to the purchaser. Under the terms of the sale, these employes pay for their stock at the rate of $4 per month on each share, which means that they will have two years to complete the transaction.

The question right here is: Why did about 66 per cent of the employes of the Goodyear company buy stock in the concern that employs them? The answer appears to lie in the fact that the employes of the Goodyear company are members of and voters in—under certain reasonable regulations—an industrial republic which is quite the biggest thing of its kind in the United States.

Lord Leverhulme of England is proud of the co-partnership in his business of 4500 of approximately 15,000 employes eligible to such a relation. But these 4500 are participants under a bonus system and they do not receive actual shares of stock but co-partnership certificates which, while dividend bearing, are nontransferable. The Goodyear employes have contracted to buy their stock outright, and when they have paid for it the shares will be turned over to them. They are offered an incentive to hold the stock after they have paid for it, but the outstanding matter of interest to them is that they will be absolue owners of their stock at the expiration of two years, provided they have continued their payments to the end of the period.

Adding force to the theory that the foundation in the Goodyear plant at Akron of a form of industrial republic stimulated the employes to purchase stock in the concern is a comparison of the recent stock issue, of which the workers took 19 1-4 per cent, with that of 1918, when the company financed itself by selling preferred stock to the par value of $15,000,000 and invited the employes to come in. The workers took 6 2-3 per cent, or $1,009,000. In the interval between these stock issues the industrial republic plan was put into operation.

The Goodyear industrial republic is founded on the Federal plan, but is much broader in its scope than the latter scheme as relates to the influence of the workers in matters concerning wages, hours and shop operation. The Federal plan usually provides for the operation of the business of a concern, in so far as shop management is concerned, by a House of Representatives, elected by the management, but containing employe representation, and a cabinet selected exclusively by the management, which has the power of veto.

In the Goodyear plant the House of Representatives and the Senate, which form the Industrial Assembly, are exclusively composed of employes. There is no Cabinet. P. W. Litchfield, vice president of the company and factory manager, acts for the company in its relations with the House and the Senate. His position in the Goodyear Industrial Republic is analogous to that of the President of the United States in our political republic as to the power of veto. He can veto any bill sent to him by the assembly of the Goodyear Industrial Republic, but these bodies can override his veto by a two-thirds vote.

The plans of the industrial republic provide that not until a veto has been overturned by a two-thirds vote of the assembly shall the directors of the corporation be called in. Thus far the relations between the assembly and the representative of the management have been of the most amicable nature. F. A. Seiberling, president of the Goodyear company, said in a recent address to the factory employes, referring to the contingency provided for in the plan of a law being passed by the assembly over the company representative: "It is hard to conceive that any of the recommendations of the industrial assembly will be denied by the board of directors."

The Industrial Assembly of the Goodyear plant makes a pretty sizable industrial legislature, consisting of 20 Senators and 40 Representatives. For the purpose of organization of the assembly the factory was divided into 10 senatorial districts and 40 representative precincts. Each precinct elected by secret ballot one member to the House to serve one year and each district elected two Senators to serve two years. Representatives are required to be not less than 21 years of age and to have a continuous service record of one year in the factory. Senators must be not less than 25 years old and must have been continuously employed in the factory for five years or more.

Voters must be American citizens and able to show at least six months of continuous service records in the factory. Qualified voters are called industrians, and any industrian is at liberty to propose at any time to his Representative or Senator plans or suggestions for the betterment of the workers or the plant or both. The industrial republic plan was not adopted until it had been approved by a vote of the employes. Each member of the assembly on taking office subscribed to the following oath:

F. A. SEIBERLING.

"I solemnly swear that I will support the Constitution and laws of the United States and the State of Ohio and the industrial representation plan of the Goodyear factory and that I will, to the best of my ability, faithfully and conscientiously discharge the duties incumbent on me as a member of the assembly."

The oath is a feature that is not encountered in any other plan of co-operation based on employe representation by election of spokesmen for the workmen. Other features are unusual.

The Senate and the House have separate chambers for their deliberations, and after Jan. 1 will be installed in quarters in the new $1,000,000 clubhouse connected with the Goodyear plant. Each legislative chamber will be equipped with a rostrum—on which will rest a gavel and the conventional pitcher of ice-water—desks for clerks and members, and a gallery for spectators. The desks will be arranged in the semi-circular form peculiar to state legislative chambers. Strict parliamentary rules govern the deliberations. J. B. Long is Speaker of the House and E. J. Hard is President of the Senate. Both are popular veteran employes of the Goodyear concern.

As to how the plan is working, some of the results may be cited. One of the laws passed by the assembly established a Saturday half holiday in all departments. This law was unhesitatingly signed by Manager Litchfield.

At the time of the formation of the assembly there was in force a factory rule by which workmen who were late in reporting in the morning were "docked" pay for an hour and a half of time. Workmen brought to the attention of the assembly unusual traffic conditions which make it impossible for all employes to be at work on time some mornings. After thorough consideration the rule was so modified that employes who are late now lose pay for only 15 minutes. Here was a concrete illustration to every worker in the plant of the efficiency of the industrial assembly. The percentage of tardiness has decreased because, psychologically, having made it easier to be late employes try harder to be on time.

The assembly has enacted a law making all shifts in the plant permanent. Legislative action has also been taken to adjust differences which threatened to result in strikes.

Many conferences have been held between committees appointed by the assembly and representativs of the management. Certain of the officers and committees of the assembly hold weekly conferences with the factory manager and executive heads, although the House and Senate hold regular meetings only on the first Monday of each month. These conferences are authorized by the plan.

It is specifically provided in the industrial republic plan that no Goodyear employe shall be discriminated against on account of membership or nonmembership in any labor organization, or shall there be discrimination against any member of the assembly for action taken by him in the performance of his duties as outlined in the plan. Provision is made that the assembly shall have the right to make changes in factory rules or regulations adopted by the management.

Under the industrial republic plan any industrian may bring before the assembly for review a complaint against the conduct of a foreman. One result of the plan has been the speeding up of production by the confidence of employes that initiative and good work will bring reward.

The success of the effort to interest the Goodyear employes in the November issue of preferred stock was due primarily to the confidence of the workers in the plant and its product and its future, but the 66 per cent response was achieved by skillful and unremitting efforts to make the employes understand the selling plan and its benefits. Prior to the opening of the sale workers were called to the sales office in various departments and given talks lasting an hour. These meetings were held on company time.

In the first three hours after the opening of the sale employes subscribed for 1000 shares. The subscriptions poured in up to the moment of close of the offering, the late comers having been absent or ill during the preliminary campaign.

In paying for the stock on the installment plan, employes are charged 5 per cent interest on the amount due, but subscribers are credited with dividends as they accrue at the rate of 7 per cent per annum. After a stated period employe subscribers are paid a cash bonus of $3 per share per annum if they remain in the service of the company. Of course, after the installment payments have been concluded and the employe is the owner of the stock he receives his dividends in cash.

The Goodyear company maintains in Akron, in and about the plant, welfare and recreation activities which are not approached in any other industrial institution in the world.

Any Goodyear employe may select a lot, make a small payment down, choose his own plans and have erected the kind of a house he wants to occupy He continues his payments in the form of monthly installments, the size of which is governed by his wages or salary, and at the end of five years the company makes him a present of 25 per cent of the cost of the property.

Now as to the recreational end of the system:

There are published in the Goodyear plant a tri-weekly newspaper and a monthly magazine with a combined circulation of 100,000 On the subscription lists are thousands of persons who are not employed by the Goodyear concern.

Goodyear Hall, a million dollar clubhouse, is approaching completion. It contains a theater which will seat 3000, a gymnasium with space for 1800 spectators, the legislative chambers of the industrial assembly and every convenience of a high-class club.

F. A. Seiberling, the president of the company, has given to the employes Seiberling Field, a park and recreation ground covering 28 acres. The athletic and recreation fields are the finest in the country. Seating capacity is provided for 10,000 spectators of games and sports. The field is open to the citizens of Akron as well as to Goodyear employes, and serves to form a closer link between the municipality and its greatest industry.

How to Make a Woman Happy at Christmas

By HELEN ROWLAND.

"WHAT will make a woman happy?"

The bachelor sprang the question without warning, as the Widow finished unwinding the last inch of pink yarn from his fingers, and sank back in her chair, a shimmering mass of black satin and tulle draperies.

"Why, anything—and everything—Mr. Cutting!" she answered, vaguely.

"But that's just it!" declared the Bachelor. "I know everything would make her happy—but I can't give her EVERYTHING!"

"Oh!" The Widow smiled comprehendingly. "I wondered why that furrowed brow and abstracted mein. Is it the old, old problem?"

"Yes." The bachelor sighed and lit a cigarette. "The perennial puzzle—how to make a girl happy at Christmas time! I've nearly lost my reason, my self-respect and my credit at the bank, already, trying to solve it!"

"Poor boy!" sympathized the Widow, putting down her knitting and clasping her hands behind her shimmering head. "Perhaps you are trying to make too many girls happy. That's what gives most men heart-fag, at this time of the year. Now, if you could just concentrate on one—or two—or three?"

"Time was," he mused regretfully, "when a box of flowers and a sentimental message would set their little hearts all a-flitter-fluttering; and a man could leave a dozen orders at the florist's for violets or orchids, tuck a card bearing a pretty couplet or quatrain in each, and call his 'Christmas shopping' done! But now, nothing short of a motor car or a rope of pearls can stir a single thrill in them. And whatever you send them, you can't tell what they'll think about it. If you put your soul in pawn to get something to please them, they'll think you an extravagant fool—and if you don't, they'll think you a penny pincher. If you give them something too significant and personal, they think you are going to propose the next time you call, and if you give them something impersonal and insignificant"——

"That's it!" broke in the Widow, with sudden conviction. "A man is always worrying about what a woman will THINK, instead of about what she will FEEL. His burning idea is to give her something which will make her admire his taste, or his generosity, or his cleverness, instead of something that will make her happy. He is so bent on giving her something that will make an impression, that he forgets to give her what she would appreciate more than anything else in the world!"

"What's that?" inquired the Bachelor, anxiously.

"A little personal thought, a little personal attention, a little personal study, Mr. Cutting. Find out what sort of a girl she is and what she is more interested in"——

"Oh, I see! And send her something appropriate'! How novel!" scoffed the Bachelor, satirically. "If she's domestic, send her a washing machine! If she's a suffragette, send her a set of Gladstone! If she's a Radical, send her a bomb!"

"On the contrary," answered the Widow, quite unperturbed, "find out what she's most interested in—and send her something to make her forget it!

"Give her something to put a little glamour in her life. If she's a quiet, prim, little domestic mouse, send her something foolish and frivolous and pretty and utterly useless. Nobody else will! If she's blase and worldly and sophisticated, send her something to appeal to her soul—a book of poems, or a pearl-and-gold prayer book, or an incense burner from an Eastern temple. If she's a highbrow, send her a vanity case, or a Persian kitten to play with"——

"What will make a woman happy?"

"Or a Teddy bear or a woolly lamb!" finished the Bachelor ironically. "Ye gods! You talk like the Kaiser!"

"What!" The widow dropped her knitting bag, wool and all.

"When he found out that a soldier's family were starving," explained the Bachelor, with fine mockery, "he sent them his portrait in full regalia."

—"If she's blase and worldly, send her something to appeal to her soul"—

"Well, anyway," argued the Widow, stoutly, "it made them forget their troubles, and it put a little glamour in their lives. And that's what Christmas gifts are for—to stir us out of our dull, dry routine, and awaken our imagination, and sprinkle star dust on our visions. Christmas is the mystic, magic time of the year, when everybody should play fairy godmother, or fairy godfather, to everybody else, and go about touching dull, commonplace lives with a magic wand. And since most men have NO imagination, perhaps your old way was the best."

"MY old way?" The Bachelor looked mystified.

"Your old way," repeated the Widow, "of sending each girl flowers and a scrap of poetry for Christmas, instead of a diamond anklet or a house and lot, or a pet leopard. After all, most women are romanticists at heart, however blase and sophisticated they may appear on the surface—and flowers and poetry and mistletoe and sentiment are the real sparkle on the little, dull tree of existence."

"Ah!" murmured the Bachelor, delightedly, "I thought you'd agree with me!"

"Agree with you?" The Widow looked distinctly disconcerted.

"Because," and the Bachelor leaned back with a sigh of comfort, "that's just what I DID. After acquiring brain fag trying to study their personalities and rushing around from shop to shop, like a paranoiac, and going down to buy a Persian kitten and coming back with a cockatoo, or rushing in for a book of poems and coming out with a kewpie doll, I gave it up—and left a dozen orders at the florist's; And it doesn't even matter if the cards get mixed!" And he sighed again, luxuriously.

"Why doesn't it?" demanded the Widow suspiciously.

"Because, the inscription on all of them is exactly the same—and will fit any girl like an umbrella," chuckled the Bachelor.

"Oh, I know!" cried the Widow, clapping her hands enthusiastically, "'To the Girl who has brightened my darkest hours, go say what my heart would say, sweet flowers!'"

"How—how on earth did you know what I wrote?" exclaimed the Bachelor blankly.

"Because it's what you always write," confessed the Widow. "You wrote it once to ME—and I was pleased!"

"And then they talk of 'woman's infinite variety!'" muttered the Bachelor bitterly. "They're all exactly alike!"

"And yet," mused the Widow, picking up her knitting with an enigmatic smile, "a man is never tired of exchanging one woman for another!"

WIDOW-CISMS.

If you want to give your wife something which will really surprise her, for Christmas, give her an enthusiastic compliment, a spontaneous smile and an unexpected kiss.

Odd numbers may be lucky, but at this, the mistletoe season, the most popular number in all the world is two.

If a girl is born to be looked at, she'll never be listened to—because no man ever will admit that brains and beauty can exist in the same woman.

A "sincere man" is one who never bluffs anybody—except a woman.

A man can forgive a woman for any sin on earth—except that of nagging him about his own sins.

Woman's Clothes From Woman Doctors Viewpoint

Dr. Mann can remember when her early morning exercise consisted of making connection up and down her back with hooks and eyes, buttons and buttonholes. Now, almost everything she wears is a "slip-over," that slips into place by the simple operation of having head and arms plunged through it. The adjustment is completed with a sash or a belt, which can be fastened in a jiffy. She confesses that her ideas on dress are none too practical for the very fat woman, and she admits that slothfulness is not the only reason for fatty degeneration. While discussing dress she has in mind the average woman who, with a little care, can dispense with corsets and still look trim and graceful.

"With the exception of the brassiere, which some women must wear, there should be no garment that actually confines the body," she advised. "If the muscles are going to perform the functions nature planned for them, the body must be free and it must have air."

Without her coat or shoes, everything Dr. Mann was wearing would weigh only a few ounces. She told me that she could pack three or four such frocks into a suit case. All her gowns are what she calls "combinations."

"I could put a tunic of filmy blue chiffon over this brown tunic and it would look quite presentable for evening wear," she suggested.

"How about garters?" I asked Dr. Mann. For if one mustn't wear corsets and the doctors scold about round elastics, while the police object to half hose, what are women to do about it?

"Why not wear knitted ones?" she asked.

You remember the kind your grandmother used to knit—an inch wide and half or three-quarters of a yard long. They go round and round like a doughboy's leggings, with the ends tucked in. It seems ever so many of the women doctors wear them. They "give" more than elastic. They do not interfere with the circulation and they do keep one's silk stockings up. Dr. Mann recommends them with an air of one who knows what she is talking about.

One of the advantages of adopting artistic, prophylactic clothes, it seems, is the sense of completeness and satisfied sufficiency they convey. One can keep calm and content and uncovetous while sauntering along the avenue and looking in the shop windows. It really gives a comfortable sense of superiority to sum up the number of elegant things one sees and does not want—wouldn't wear for the world, in fact. It is not for such as Dr. Mann that the more than 100,000 workers in the women's garment trades in New York labor through the livelong day.

BACHELORS

Character Sketches by W. E. HILL

The man who used to say he wouldn't marry until he could support a wife properly. Now he is too wrapped up in himself and his growing income to bother about matrimony.

The woman-hating bachelor. Once he was engaged to a widow, who, as it turned out, was just after his money and didn't love him for himself alone.

The girls whom Roland likes never like him, and vice versa, so that Roland seems doomed to an early bachelorhood.

Ethridge is one of those bachelors with whom careful mothers and husbands would trust their daughters and wives anywhere. Fond mammas are crazy about Ethridge's manners. Daughters are not so crazy over him. He is always telling them how they ought to wear their hair and comparing nail polishes. Nevertheless, Ethridge is awfully handy to have around when an escort is needed.

The artistic bachelor who is wedded to a career—likewise to purple dressing gowns, studio teas and Zatik draperies.

The, socially inclined bachelor, who has rushed every debutante since 1867 and is still getting away with it. Known among the younger set as "the girls' friendly society."

The bore. He gets asked to wash-day dinners now and then. Had an unhappy love affair once. Wears a girl's ring on his watch charm. Loves to tell about "back in '79, when I was in Decatur, Ill."

Joe Speed is always "waiting for the right little girl" to come along and lead him to church. The truth is, there are too many "right little girls" coming along with every show that plays Joe's town for him to think of settling down.

Frederick, the spoiled child, whose home life as an only son is made much too easy for him to undertake the worries of married life. His mother is constantly picking out candidates for the honor, but Frederick sees a flaw in every one.

Along in the middle eighties, or thereabouts, Mr. Jolly was considered terribly fascinating. He has never gotten over it, and is still "beauing it" with the younger set of today. He is making Georgia, the daughter of an old flame, promise to give him a "nice little teeny kiss" when he gives her a box of candy—and it is always the wrong kind of candy.

The man who is in constant dread lest some designing female of the species between eighteen and eighty will fall madly in love with him and drag him to the altar.

What every real boy wants for Christmas

CHRISTMAS and a Winchester! What a combination for a real American boy! Nothing on earth gives a boy more pleasure than a gun. And it gives him valuable training, too—every American boy ought to know how to shoot.

The new W. J. R. C. Range Kit contains everything a boy needs for rifle shooting. A .22 caliber bolt action rifle—a real Winchester—with lots of cartridges and targets, and a gun case, cartridge belt and cleaning outfit.

With such a splendid equipment any boy can learn to shoot—and shoot safely. Each kit contains a copy of the W. J. R. C. Rule Book, which tells how to handle a rifle with perfect safety, and describes all the fine points of shooting.

And the new Range Kit is the official outfit of the Winchester Junior Rifle Corps. With this kit any boy can compete for the famous Winchester trophies, the Marksman, Sharpshooter and Expert Rifleman medals. Thousands of American boys are now winning these rewards for skill.

And when a boy learns to shoot he can have no end of sport. With a Winchester .22 rifle he can hunt small game—he can shoot rats, sparrows, starlings, crows and other pests.

Go to your dealer and ask to see the W. J. R. C. Range Kit. Examine the whole outfit. Fit the sturdy little rifle to your shoulder—you won't be able to keep your hands off it.

See the dealer today—before his Christmas supply is gone.

50 Eggs a Day!

Last winter eggs sold as high as $1.00 a dozen. As America's foremost poultry expert, I predict that this winter eggs will go even higher. Poultry raisers are going to reap tremendous profits. You, too, can make sure of a big egg yield by giving your hens a few cents' worth of "More Eggs" Tonic.

This product has been tried, tested and proven by 400,000 chicken raisers. It is acknowleged by thousands of users the best and most successful egg producer on the market today. Every day that you don't use it means that you are losing money. Don't delay. Start with a few cents' worth of "More Eggs" Tonic now. With egg prices breaking all records, this is the time to get eggs and more eggs from your hens.

Got 117 Eggs Instead of 3

That's the experience of one poultry raiser who wrote me. And Mrs. Myrtle Ice, of Boston, Ky., writes: "I was only getting 12 eggs a day and now get 50." Here are a few letters out of thousands:

27 Eggs Instead of 1

I began feeding "More Eggs" Tonic to my flock of hens in November. At that time I was getting one egg every other day. Then on December 5th I brought in 27, which is pretty good for this time of the year. I think "More Eggs" Tonic is fine.—MRS. E. H. PALMER, Dundee, Mich.

"More Eggs" Paid the Pastor

I can't express in words how much I have been benefitted by "More Eggs." I've paid my debts, clothed the children in new dresses, and that is not all—I paid my pastor his dues. I sold 42¼ doz. eggs last week, set 4 doz., ate some and had 1¼ doz. left.—MRS. LENA McBROON, Woodbury, Tenn.

Banker Endorses "More Eggs"

Some time ago I got from you "More Eggs" and now it means MORE EGGS. I am now fully convinced of its utility. I have 14 pullets and 14 hens one year old and the first 10 days in December they laid 11 dozen eggs. Yours very truly, H. F. POHLAND, President, The Citizens' Bank of Ashland, Oregon.

160 Hens—1500 Eggs

I have fed 2 boxes of "More Eggs" to my hens and I think they have broken the egg record. I have 160 White Leghorns and in exactly 21 days I got 125 dozen eggs.—MRS. H. M. PATTON, Waverly, Mo.

8868 Eggs from 125 Hens

Since using the "More Eggs" I have got more eggs than at any time I have been in the poultry business, about 30 years. Since March 18th to Nov. 16th I have marketed 740 dozen and only have 125 hens. I highly recommend "More Eggs" Tonic to all poultry raisers.—MRS. W. S. DEAHL, Exline, Ia.

Doubles Egg Production

I have been using "More Eggs" Tonic 3 or 4 weeks now. My egg production has been doubled.—J. C. KOENINGER, Paradise, Texas.

When the Rattlesnake Struck

Judge!
When you sent me up for four years you called me a rattlesnake. Maybe I am one—anyhow, you hear me rattling now.
One year after I got to the pen, my daughter died of—well, they said it was poverty and the disgrace together. You've got a daughter, Judge, and I'm going to make you know how it feels to lose one. I'm free now, and I guess I've turned to rattlesnake all right. Look out when I strike.
Yours respectfully,

O. HENRY

12 Volumes
274 Stories

O. Henry has made another record. More volumes of his works have been sold than any short stories in the history of the world. Up to the day this page goes to press 3,784,000 volumes have been sold—in England and Australia, France and Germany—throughout the world—over two million in the United States alone. So many editions have been printed that the old plates were entirely worn out and we had to make brand-new plates for this edition. So you will get the very first impression from these new plates—the clearest, cleanest print you have ever seen.

Finish These Stories for Yourself

The girl got $6 a week and was lonely. "Piggy," you can imagine his kind, was waiting downstairs. He knew where champagne and music could be had. But that night she didn't go. That was Lord Kitchener's doing. But another night? O. Henry tells about it in a story. Read it.

A Thief —She?

And yet with a shiver she told him all the sordid story! The stage life—the nights of drunkenness—the days of remorse for her sin — all was poured out in the desperate tale. But he loved her in spite of all, and—then came the astounding truth—the unexpected twist—that makes O. Henry the most eagerly read of American story tellers.

Boudoir Set $1.50

For the Girl Who Is Particular About Her Nails –

what could be a more thoughtful Christmas gift than a supply of her favorite Lustrite preparations, in a box dainty enough to be accorded a permanent place on her dressing table?

The new Lustrite Boudoir Set might have been designed especially for holiday giving. Its rich blue box contains all the essentials for nail beauty, each in its snow-white porcelain jar with a decorative blue top.

First and largest, because most important, is the jar of Lustrite Cuticle Ice (The Cuticle Softener) to keep the little half-moons at the base of her nails looking their best without removing the cuticle, which is extremely harmful, whether done with scissors or harsh acids.

Next, the Lustrite Nail Whitener to make the tips immaculate.

Then the Lustrite Salve Enamel to smooth and polish the nail surface.

And finally Lustrite Nail Cake to give the brilliant mirror finish.

Even the implements are included—a fine nail file, an orangewood stick, and several emery boards.

And the whole set costs but $1.50.

MUTT AND JEFF—Some Hypnotic Stuff

By BUD FISHER

THAT'S ENOUGH, JEFF. YOU'VE CERTAINLY HYPNOTIZED THE DOG. I GOTTA HAND IT TO YOU – I DIDN'T THINK YOU COULD DO IT.
HOW'LL YOU WAKE HIM UP?
I SIMPLY SNAP MY FINGERS LIKE THIS AND SAY "WAKE UP!" SEE? HE'S AWAKE.
SNAP!
BOW!
CERTAINLY I CAN HYPNOTIZE PEOPLE. WHY DO YOU ASK SUCH A QUESTION, MUTT?
I WANT YOU TO HYPNOTIZE MY WIFE AND MAKE HER TELL WHERE SHE'S HID MY MONEY. I'M BROKE AND I NEED IT.
THAT'LL BE AS EASY AS PIE. I'LL DISGUISE MYSELF AND YOU CAN INTRODUCE ME AS SVENGALI THE SECOND.
OH, FINE!
DEAR, MEET SVENGALI THE SECOND, THE WORLD'S GREATEST HYPNOTIST.
INTERESTING IF TRUE! CHARMED!
DELIGHTED!
DEAR, WOULDN'T YOU LIKE TO TEST SVENGALI'S POWERS?
OH, I'D LOVE TO BE HYPNOTIZED!
MR. MUTT CHOSE HIS WORDS WELL WHEN HE CALLED ME THE PEER OF ALL HYPNOTISTS, AND I WILL BE PLEASED TO HYPNOTIZE YOU- HIS WIFE.
FOO FOO! YOU ARE NOW IN MY POWER AND MUST ANSWER MY QUESTIONS. MRS. MUTT, WHERE DID YOU HIDE MR. MUTT'S MONEY? ANSWER ME THAT!
I HID THE MONEY IN THE TOP DRAWER OF THE DRESSER!
SHE'S IN A SOUND SLEEP, MUTT. IT'S O.K! GO AND GET YOUR COIN IN THE DRESSER.
BUT ARE YOU QUITE SURE SHE WON'T WAKE UP?
SHE'LL STAY IN THE TRANCE UNTIL I SNAP MY FINGERS LIKE THAT, AND SAY, "WAKE UP, MRS. MUTT"!
SNAP!
JEFF, YOU'RE A WIZARD. HERE'S THE COIN JUST AS SHE SAID. PRETTY SOFT.
WHAT TH'-?
FOR THE LOVE OF MIKE, MUTT, LISTEN. TO REASON. I CAN'T UNDERSTAND HOW SHE WOKE UP.
